

Voter rebellion flares—and incumbents topple

A Herald staff report

Village elections in the Northwest suburbs Tuesday appeared to confirm widespread speculation of recent years about a latent spirit of rebellion among voters.

In five of eight suburban towns, insurgent candidates claimed nearly a clean sweep against the officeholders in power; in a sixth, Rolling Meadows, the incumbent mayor and one alderman survived election threats with razor-thin margins and another alderman was unseated.

"You've got an 'anti' vote here," said Mrs. Carolyn Krause, who share defeat with four other village trustee candidates of the Incumbent United Citizens Party in Mount Prospect.

"It was demonstrated throughout the Northwest suburbs that it was not a year for 'the state,'" said ousted Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Gary Armstrong, whose Best Government Party also lost three seats on the village board.

IN WHEELING, four "reform" candidates of the Wheeling Improvement Party swept the village board election in what the incumbents acknowledged was public reaction to zoning and bribery scandals in the village within the past year.

Three incumbent aldermen were deposed from the Des Plaines City Council, while one survived.

In Palatine, independent village Trustee Fred H. Zajonc not only survived a concentrated effort to defeat him by the Palatine Republican organization — which claimed a clean sweep in village elections two years ago — but led the ticket. Two Republican incumbents were successful over independent challengers, however.

There were exceptions to the "anti" vote in Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg. In Schaumburg, the incumbent Schaumburg United Party swept the offices of village president, village clerk, and four seats on the village board. Hoffman Estates elected three candidates of the ruling Republican Party, including one incumbent, over a single independent challenger.

GENERALLY, THE election results conformed to the opinion expressed by

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert, who supported the losing United Citizens Party. "Whatever happened in this campaign, it was the time for the independent — whatever that phrase means," Teichert said.

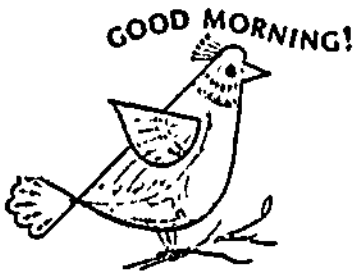

Poll workers of the United Citizens Party expressed surprise at the number of ballots marked for a straight independent vote. Defeated Trustee O. T. Gustus, a UCP candidate, said he detected the voter attitude toward incumbents when he became aware that Mount Prospect residents had no interest in questioning him about village affairs.

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer said he was not surprised by his narrow margin over challenger William Miseska, his predecessor as mayor. Meyer claimed a victory with 79 votes out of a total of 3,556. "In any election, it's easier to run against an incumbent," said Meyer. One of Meyer's running mates, Ald. John T. Rock, won by only seven votes over challenger Charles W. Zeller.

Republicans who failed to unseat Zajonc in Palatine interpreted his victory to his "watchdog appeal" to the voters in the village with a 6-to-1 GOP majority on the board.

"The people were saying they don't want a rubber stamp board — not that that's what we have," said Village Pres. Wendell Jones. "They want someone on the board who is critical and independent."

Building-code woes

New confrontation looms with Centex

by JERRY THOMAS

Elk Grove Village officials plan to confront Centex Homes Corp. officials on building code violations the village says exist in an estimated 1,700 Centex-built homes.

Village Mgr. Charles Willis said Wednesday "It's time to do it. Last summer when the issue of defective furnaces and code violations and premature furnace failures was under review, we agreed that code violations we maintain exist to some degree in some homes, and the heat-exchanger replacement program should be dealt with separately."

Willis said, "Now that the builder's inspection program is nearing an end the village will take up the matter of code violations."

WESTERN HEATING and Air Conditioning Co., Maywood, which was hired by Centex to replace defective heat exchangers, reported finding faulty parts in one-third of the houses inspected, Willis said. He said 35 per cent of the 1,000 homes checked by Western contained defective heat exchangers.

The village building department in September 1974, in the midst of a furnace investigation pinpointing the causes for furnace failure, said many Centex homes built in the 1960s have code violations.

The department compiled a list of furnace installations and building code violations in 28 models of Centex-built homes.

Centex refused to accept responsibility for the alleged violations, but agreed to conduct a massive heat exchanger inspection and replacement program.

WILLIS TERMED the heat-exchanger replacement program "a life safety factor. We acknowledged that if there were any cracked or defective heat exchangers leaking toxic fumes, that was the 'highest risk factor and the main problem to contend with,'" he said.

A spokesman for the contractor said calls for inspections are down to about one a day.

Residents who want inspections are asked to send in the self-addressed postcard sent to them by the builder or call 358-9477 for further information.

Centex officials were not available for comment.

New zoning rules weighed for buildings

The Elk Grove Village Plan Commission is considering revisions in zoning ordinances to allow zero lot-line houses and to encourage more landscaped area in apartment developments by raising the density.

The plan commission Wednesday night reviewed a proposed amendment to the planned-unit-development ordinance setting forth the guidelines for zero lot-line homes.

Centex Homes Corp. has asked the village for permission to build the homes as part of a 665-acre project west of Meacham Road.

Zero lot-line houses eliminate traditional side and rear yard lot lines but retain a regular sized front yard. The relatively new building concept is intended to accommodate houses on smaller than average lots.

THE PROPOSED amendment, presented by village planning consultant Tod Trayser, provides for zero lot-line homes to be built on lots at least 45 feet wide with a minimum of 4,500 square feet per dwelling unit and a sideyard at least 15 feet wide.

All zero lot-line homes, according to the proposal, would back onto a neighborhood park or a landscaped area at least 30 feet wide between homes.

The incentive plan for developers of apartment complexes would allow more units per acre in return for providing various amenities such as landscaping, recreational facilities or public land. The present density maximum in a planned unit development is 5 units per acre.

The plan commission also discussed possible formation of a village appearance-control commission to review plans for developments and judge the esthetics of each project.

The comments of the appearance-control commission along with plan commission recommendations would be used by the village board in its deliberations on builder requests.

The plan commission directed Trayser to obtain copies of appearance-control commission ordinances used by other communities and to study whether keeping a 5-unit-per-acre density requirement in planned-unit developments is feasible with zero lot-line homes. These issues will be discussed by the plan commission at the May 21 meeting.

Six Chicago residents were treated and released late Wednesday afternoon from Alexian Brothers Medical Center after a seven-car accident in Elk Grove Township.

The accident occurred at about 1:30 p.m. on Elmhurst Road between Oakton Street and Higgins Road, Sheriff's Police said.

Elk Grove Village police and fire departments assisted county police and state troopers.

Details of the accident were not available Wednesday night.

Major food chains in price war

by KAREN THOMPSON

Grocery prices were on the downswing Wednesday as clerks at food stores restamped cans and wrappers in what is developing as a price fight among major food chains.

Jewel Food Stores and Dominick's Finer Foods have announced cuts of 10 to 25 per cent on name-brand and house-brand canned goods, frozen foods, butter, eggs, margarine, cheese and many non-food items.

Dominick's spokesmen said between 8,000 and 10,000 items will be reduced in price. Jewel plans mark-downs on more than 3,000 of the 8,000 to 12,000 items carried in its stores.

THE TUSSELE for the buck began Monday when Dominick's purchased substantially more than its usual amount of newspaper advertising space to announce the birth of "Total Savings Policy" and the demise of its discount-stamp program.

"Buying groceries has become so complicated and confusing to the shopper — what with coupons, small print, limits, etc. — that we have decided to simplify the whole thing and go back to the basics of offering the lowest everyday prices possible," said Dominick's president, Dominick Di Matteo Jr. He said the company would continue to honor nationally distributed stamps.

Both firms said they expected sales volume increases and improved operational practices to help offset the price reductions and both denied there had been an increase in food inventories recently because of consumer resistance.

IN A SURVEY Wednesday of four representative grocery stores in the Northwest suburbs, prices appeared to be moving downward because of the battle between the chains.

Stockboys were cluttering up the aisles, stamping down costs, some of which will be changing throughout next week. Jewel expected to have most of the mark-downs completed by today. Dominick's will be changing prices until next week. A&P Stores and National spokesmen said they have been steadily reducing prices since the first of the year.

Financing settled for 'Superblock'

The $14 million Superblock project, controversial first step in downtown Des Plaines revitalization, has received its long-awaited financing. Jerome R. Gottlieb, president of Des Plaines Mall Corp., said Wednesday. The move represents a major step forward for the often delayed, highly controversial project that plans to bring a three-story shopping mall and 12-floor office building to Lee and Prairie streets. "The financial people have always had confidence in the project, but the money was not available," Gottlieb said. He described the past year as the "worst I have ever seen" for obtaining mortgage money.

Centex faces code violations

Elk Grove Village officials plan to confront Centex Homes Corp. officials on building code violations the village says exist in an estimated 1,700 Centex-built homes. "It's time to do it," said Village Mfr. Charles Willis. Defective heat exchangers have turned up in 35 per cent of some 1,100 homes inspected, and village officials suspect violations of the building code in many of the homes.

He gets 4 votes — and wins

A funny thing happened to Leland Gibbs Tuesday when he was voting in the Plum Grove Countryside Park Board election: He decided to become a candidate. He wrote his name on the ballot and encouraged three friends and neighbors to write it in too. The result: Gibbs, with four votes, won a six-year term on the park board, which serves a small section of Rolling Meadows. "I have a call in to our attorney," Board Pres. Ernest Martin, said Wednesday. But, he conceded, it appears Gibbs "is legally entitled to the term."

More extortion charges

Fulle wins trial delay until June 2

County Republican Chairman Floyd T. Fulle won a delay until June 2 in his federal trial Wednesday as federal prosecutors added $29,000 to the list of alleged extortion payments to Fulle by developer Thomas Origer.

U.S. District Court Judge Abraham L. Marovitz, who insisted at earlier hearings on an April 21 trial date, agreed to the delay after Fulle's attorneys demanded either separate trials on two extortion charges involving Origer and contractor William Adams or more time to prepare their defense.

Fulle's attorneys said U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson began to develop the case against Fulle in 1973 and that Thompson has had more than a year to prepare for trial.

Fulle, a county commissioner, was indicted Feb. 13 and his lawyers indicated that two months has not been adequate to prepare a defense in the complicated case involving extortion, perjury and tax-evasion charges.

Fulle was charged with shaking down Origer for $10,000 to influence county zoning of an apartment complex between 1968 and 1970.

A new document filed Wednesday by prosecutors charged that Fulle received an additional $29,000 in payoffs from Origer between 1968 and 1968.

PROSECUTION on the new charges is barred by the statute of limitations. Fulle, a county board member since 1964, allegedly received a $2,500 payment from Origer to influence zoning of 7.5 acres near Golf Road and Western Avenue in Maine Township.

The payoff was made at Rosemont Village Hall in September, 1966, the government said.

Other alleged payoffs charged for the first time Wednesday included:

- $7,500 cash delivered by Origer to Fulle in Schiller Park at Fulle's newspaper office. He is a publisher of Suburban Progress, a weekly newspaper. The 1967 payoff involved zoning for an 18-acre tract of Origer land near Golf and Potter roads in Maine Township.

- $6,500 paid on May 1968, $3,500 paid in July or August 1968 and $9,000 paid by Origer to Fulle in September 1968. The prosecutors did not specify what properties were involved in these alleged payoffs.

The hearing before Marovitz Wednesday confirmed for the first time that Origer, and attorney Robert Haskins have received immunity from prosecution for testimony in corruption cases.

Origer's immunity agreement states that he will not be prosecuted for criminal tax evasion but that Thompson will seek civil repayment of any tax not paid by Origer.

Origer, a multimillionaire builder and former owner of the Chicago Fire professional football team, made his fortune building apartment complexes in unincorporated areas of the north suburbs.

A DEFENSE MOTION asking for the trial delay indicated Wednesday that Adams has not received immunity although "whatever he may say will not be used against him."

One extortion count against Fulle charges that he demanded a payoff from Adams for approval of Selligren Inc.'s Old Madrid project. The complex received apartment zoning from the County Board and later was annexed by Palatine.

Marovitz denied Fulle's motion for separate trials on each extortion charge.

Cambodia surrenders to Communist rebels

by United Press International

Cambodia fell to the Communists today, the Cambodia embassy in Bangkok said.

The embassy said the government surrendered to Khmer Rouge insurgents who have taken over Phnom Penh.

"The government surrendered at 7 a.m.," said Col. Phin Oum, the military attaché who has been in radio contact with Phnom Penh. The colonel said the situation is calm in the city though thousands of Phnom Penh residents had staged a huge demonstration in the city streets to receive the Khmer Rouge.

In Washington, a State Dept. spokesman said: "I am aware of the reports but we won't have any comment."

"The situation appears to be calm," Phin Oum said. "Thirty minutes ago (10:33 p.m. CDT Wednesday) the population in the city held a big demonstration to receive the Khmer Rouge, who have entered Phnom Penh."

The colonel said he had no word on the fate of the members of the government who had surrendered, nor any details on how the surrender was accomplished.

Earlier, a clandestine radio broadcast by the insurgents said they had captured Chamcar Mon, the presidential palace and the Wat Phnom, which is only a few hundreds of yards from the Hotel LePhnom, which has been designated a neutral site by the International Red Cross.

UPI newsmen in Phnom Penh have been unable to file reports from the capital, apparently because all normal communications with the city have been cut.

In the last story cabled from Phnom Penh, received Wednesday night, UPI reporters said that the government forces were continuing to fight off insurgents from the south, where the rebels were making a strong bid to enter the city. The city itself had been receiving heavy shelling, the reports said.

Earlier the International Red Cross in Geneva had reported the Cambodian government offered to surrender but that ousted Prince Norodom Sihanouk in Peking had turned down the proposal.

"He gave a negative answer," Red Cross information chief Alain Modoux said in Geneva concerning Sihanouk's reply to the Cambodian surrender proposal.

Modoux said the Red Cross had acted only as intermediary.

"We were used only as a means of transmitting the proposal. We did not participate," Modoux said. "It is now up to the parties to take initiatives in what they want to do."

Radio Phnom Penh came on the air as usual at 5 a.m. Thursday Phnom Penh time but gave no news reports. Two hours later, it suddenly ceased broadcasting.

Experts believed the power generator to the station had stopped functioning, either because of a lack of fuel or by fighting.

The final attack on Phnom Penh began Wednesday with a heavy rocket and artillery barrage on the city. Rebel forces by nightfall Wednesday — the last word by UPI newsmen out of the capital — were poised at the edge of Phnom Penh on all sides.

Radio Phnom Penh in its last newscast late Wednesday night said government troops had driven back one push into the capital across the United Nations bridge. That report could not be confirmed.

Ford: U.S. did not carry out commitment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford said Wednesday the "tragic situation in South Vietnam would not have occurred" if Washington had backed Saigon the way Moscow and Peking have backed Hanoi.

Ford said he could not blame the Soviets and the Chinese for supporting North Vietnam's offensive and expressed disgust that the United States had failed to honor its own military support commitments to South Vietnam.

"It makes me sick everytime I hear or read about it," Ford said in an appearance before the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

He compared the situation in Vietnam to "the last minute of the last quarter of the game," but insisted Saigon could survive North Vietnam's assault if Congress would rush through the $722 million in emergency military aid he has requested.

He said it was still not too late for Saigon to make effective use of the military aid he has requested.

"I am absolutely convinced, if the Congress made available the $722 million in military assistance that I have requested in a timely way, that the South Vietnamese could stabilize the situation," Ford told the editors.

"Unfortunately the United States did not carry out its commitment in supplying military hardware and economic aid to South Vietnam. I wish we had."

An editor asked whether China and Russia had not violated the spirit of détente by giving Hanoi $1.5 billion in aid since the signing of the Paris peace accords in 1973.

Ford said the United States on one side and Peking and Moscow on the other made commitments to keep Saigon and Hanoi, respectively, supplied with adequate military arms.

"It appears that they (Peking and Moscow) have maintained that commitment," he said. "Unfortunately, the United States did not."

"I don't think we can blame China and the Soviet Union in this case."

He said the United States nonetheless was attempting to "achieve a ceasefire" through diplomatic channels.

Ford also said he has ordered the evacuation of all "nonessential American personnel" from South Vietnam.

"We are phasing out on a daily basis such U.S. personnel who have no responsibility either for the government or for whatever purpose they are there," Ford said.

Americans to leave Saigon

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist forces attacking with tanks and artillery Wednesday captured their 18th province capital, routed a government regiment and shelled South Vietnam's biggest air base for the third day. Americans under orders from President Ford began packing up to leave Saigon.

South Vietnamese intelligence reports said government reconnaissance planes had spotted a Russian-built MIG19 fighter jet parked at a one-time U. S. base at Pleiku, 230 miles north of Saigon — within striking range of the capital.

U.S. and Vietnamese officials prepared to start evacuating within 24 hours "non-essential" personnel among the 5,500 Americans still in Saigon. President Ford, in issuing the order, said in Washington those with "meaningful" jobs would stay on, but that he could not say how many that would be.

Phan Rang, capital of Ninh Thuan province 165 miles northeast of Saigon, fell to a tank-led, 5,000-man Communist force that sent government defenders, outnumbered two to one, fleeing to rescue ships waiting off the coast in the South China Sea.

The Communists now control 18 of South Vietnam's 44 provinces. Newsweek said what military experts believed to be North Vietnam's crack 7th Division — about 10,000 men at full strength — rolled over a 2,500-man South Vietnamese regiment just west of yet another embattled province capital — Xuan Loc 38 miles northeast of Saigon.

Field reports said the Communists swept across Highway 1 between Xuan Loc and Saigon's biggest airbase at Bien Hoa. The defeat destroyed about 80 per cent of the government regiment and sent the defenders reeling 15 miles, to within 23 miles of Saigon.

Emergency board created; railway strike is averted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Wednesday created an emergency board to stall for 60 days a threatened strike against the nation's railroads Friday.

The Board will inquire into a contract dispute between the National Railway Labor Conference, composed of most of the nation's railroads, and employees represented by the Brotherhood of Railway, Airline Clerks.

The union had announced that its members would walk out Friday.

Ford acted under provisions of the National Railway Labor Act, which authorizes establishment of a presidential emergency panel to conduct an inquiry when a dispute, in the judgment of the National Mediation Board, threatens to deprive a section of the country of essential transportation service.

Rivals OK cease-fire in Beirut

BEIRUT (UPI) — Premier Rashid Solh announced Wednesday that Palestinian guerrillas and Phalangist militiamen had agreed on a cease-fire in their four-day battle around Beirut in which more than 300 persons were killed or wounded.

Solh threatened violators with the "iron fist" of Lebanese security forces. But an hour after the cease-fire went into effect sporadic shooting could still be heard.

Clashes between the Palestinians and right-wing Phalangists since Sunday killed at least 105 persons and wounded more than 200 others.

The Phalangists, a strongly anti-Communist private political party, charge the Palestinians have too much control over sections of Lebanon bordering on Israel. They also deplore guerrilla raids into Israel which have brought Israeli reprisal attacks on Lebanese villagers.

Elsewhere in the Mideast:

• Israelis observed the 27th anniversary of the Jewish nation but security forces were on guard along land frontiers and at sea against Arab guerrilla attacks. All police leaves were canceled. Civil guard volunteers and civil defense teams of middle-aged men in green fatigues reinforced troops on patrol duty.

Chiang Kai-shek buried as two million mourn

• Chiang Kai-shek, last of the Big Four World War II leaders was buried Wednesday in a mausoleum on the island of Taipei, 200 miles from the mainland he had vowed to regain. More than two million persons lined the 40-mile funeral route. Chiang's casket was escorted by his widow Madame Chiang, his eldest son Premier Chiang and others in a 70-car cortege. Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and more than 2,500 persons attended the funeral at Sun Yat-sen Memorial Hall.

• Soviet leaders Wednesday ousted former KGB secret police chief Alexander Sholepin from the ruling Politburo, ending his decade-long battle for power with Leonid Brezhnev and in effect backing detente with the United States. A terse Kremlin announcement said the shakeup was ordered by a Communist party Central Committee which backed Brezhnev's leadership and hailed his pursuit of improved East-West relations.

• In the old Western cowboy film, the good guy rides off into the sunset on his horse. Roswell Canfield Howard, 66, however, tried to marry his. Howard showed up at the Boulder (Colo.) County Courthouse with his horse, Dolly, and applied for a marriage license. He was turned down by clerk Clela Rorex who explained Dolly, 8, was too young to get married, and she hadn't taken a blood test. Actually, Howard explained, he didn't really want to marry Dolly. He was just "spoofing" the county clerk who recently issued marriage licenses to four couples of the same sex. Howard believes if boy can marry boy, and girl can marry girl, then a lonesome old cowboy should be able to hitch up with his favorite mare.

North Carolina sounds ERA death knell

The North Carolina House sounded the death knell for the Equal Rights Amendment in 1975 Wednesday, killing it by five votes. The House rejected ERA 62-57 and then dashed any hope of reconsidering the measure later in the session by a three-vote margin.

The amendment has been ratified by 34 states and the approval of 38 is needed by 1979 for it to become part of the constitution. The measure still is alive in the Florida, Missouri and Illinois legislatures, but even proponents are not optimistic.

Aerospace firm hit with slush fund charge

The Securities and Exchange Commission Wednesday charged the giant aerospace Northrop Corp. of California with creating a $30 million slush fund for the purpose of illegal political contributions and other secret payments since 1961. The SEC said Northrop Chairman Thomas V. Jones and Vice President James Allen, who left the company Dec. 31, were in charge of the fund from which some $476,000 was channeled to various political candidates and for other purposes.

Ford, aides sued over housing subsidies

The General Accounting Office has filed suit against President Ford and several of his aides, charging the administration with violating the law by refusing to spend more than $264 million in housing subsidies for low income Americans. Comptroller General Elmer B. Staats, head of GAO, sought a court order in the suit filed Tuesday ordering Ford to obligate the housing funds appropriated by Congress three years ago.

The GAO, the investigative arm of Congress, also named Housing Secretary Carla A. Hills and Budget Director James T. Lynn as defendants in the suit.

Connally case now up to jury

With John B. Connally brushing away tears, the defense and prosecution made their final pleas in his bribery trial Wednesday and left the jury to decide who has been lying — Connally or his accuser. Defense Counsel Edward Bennett Williams got the final word in summation, describing the former Treasury Secretary as a man of "honor and integrity" who has been falsely accused of bribe-taking by "a fraud and a swindler."

Violence 'a way of life' in schools

Violence and vandalism have become "a fundamental way of life" in the nation's schools, a prominent educator told Congress Wednesday. James A. Harris, president of the 1.7-million-member National Education Association, suggested more laws to restrict handgun sales as a first step to improve the moral climate of the country and thus "save countless lives and enable education to resume in many schools now paralyzed by fear and conflict."

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said more students died "in the combat zones of our schools" between 1970 and 1973 than the number of American soldiers killed in the first three years of the Vietnam War.

Butz plans to remain in office

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, an outspoken maverick during more than three years in the Cabinet, now intends to remain in office through the end of President Ford's term, government sources said Wednesday. They said that Ford, knowing that Butz wanted to leave this summer, asked him about three weeks ago to stay on. After considering the matter for about 10 days and doing what one friend described as "quite a selling job" with his wife, Butz agreed.

Study further nationalizations in Portugal

Government officials in Lisbon Wednesday studied the possibility of further nationalizations of industries which would give the ruling Armed Forces Movement almost complete control over Portugal's economy. The Communist party, meanwhile, called a major rally to show its support of the state takers that have already turned Portugal into the most socialized nation in Western Europe.

MARQUETTE, MICH. (UPI) — Superior, the 51st state?

Yes, says Michigan state Rep. Dominic J. Jacobetti, a Democrat from Negaunee. He wants the upper peninsula to secede from Michigan and become the state of Superior.

Doubtful, says U.S. Rep. Phillip E. Ruppe, a Republican from Houghton who is the upper peninsula's only representative in Washington.

"I think it's dreaming the impractical dream," Ruppe said. "It's a nice dream but not a very realistic one."

The two peninsulas have been part of Michigan since 1836 when Congress joined them as part of the settlement of the so-called Toledo Strip war.

The statehood idea gained momentum recently when the Marquette City Council voted to put the idea on a special ballot next November and the state Senate's Business Committee approved a special legislative study of the possibility.

An Ironwood attorney, Theodore G. Albert, ran for Congress last November on a secessionist platform but was badly beaten by Ruppe.

Argument on the subject ranges from outright approval to flat rejection.

"It's a very good idea and we could survive just as well by ourselves," said Mrs. Donald Olgron of Ishpeming.

"I'll never happen," said William S. Huebler of Escanaba, "and if it did, it wouldn't work."

Jacobetti said northern residents want to break away from the lower peninsula because downstate politicians ignore or shortchange them.

"The people are taking it seriously," he said. "They really are independence minded in the upper peninsula."

He said he liked the name Superior — "because it's the superior part of the state and the superior part of the nation, as far as I'm concerned."

Jacobetti already has chosen Marquette as the capital of Superior, the pike as the state fish, the partridge as the state bird and a green and blue state flag featuring a doe, a miner and a logger.

The proposed state, he said, could introduce legalized gambling as a source of revenue.

Superior, the 51st state? Well...

The 'old rope trick' delights young David Racine.

Just ask Wally Matz.

The 81-year-old Matz, former star of the 1950s television program "Super Circus," came to Arlington Heights and Dryden School Wednesday looking like any businessman.

But he left a clown, to the delight of some 400 youngsters at the school.

A Chicago resident, Matz travels around the area with his show, a combination of games, magic tricks and an explanation-demonstration of just how clowns are made.

Step by step, to the wide-eyed wonderment of the youngsters, he applies his makeup, explaining as he goes just how he makes each feature.

As the tension and excitement builds in the youthful audience, Matz slowly assumes character, adding a wig, funny hat, vest and baggy pants.

"Don't these pants look like your mom's pajamas?" asks Matz.

"Naw, my mom's skinny," a youngster answers.

A call for volunteers produces a sea of eager hands. But only two are allowed to help Matz in 'tricks' ranging from the traditional rope knot trick to making animals out of balloons.

With 10 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren, Matz is continuing to delight the young with his antics. Several more performances of the Chicago-based clown are scheduled in the area.

Rolling Meadows teacher runnerup in home ec contest

A teacher at Rolling Meadows High School, Dorothy Scharf, has been named runnerup in the recent Home Economics Teacher of the Year competition, sponsored by the American Home Economics Assn. and Family Circle magazine.

Mrs. Scharf, an Arlington Heights resident, has taught home economics in High School Dist. 214 for 19 years. She initiated the "leanroom" concept in which students prepare and serve luncheons to staff members at Forest View High School.

At Rolling Meadows High School, she has guided the school's Home Economics Related Occupations (HERO) program in community service and fund-raising activities.

She also is a member of the Rolling Meadows Community Advisory Council, serving as a liaison between the high school and local industry.

Criteria for the selection of Home Economics Teacher of the Year include innovativeness, impact on individuals, effectiveness in stimulating students and integration of subject matter with other related subjects.

Walker aide solicited funds: report

Gov. Daniel Walker's top political adviser, Victor R. de Grazia, personally solicited campaign donations from leaders of at least three major state-regulated agencies, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch reported Wednesday.

De Grazia, deputy governor, urged officials in the real estate industry, savings and loan associations and residential contractors to help wipe out Walker's campaign debt, the newspaper said.

According to the report, de Grazia wanted the officials to persuade members of their respective industries to purchase tickets to the governor's midterm dinner, held March 21 at the Palmer House Hotel in Chicago. The tickets sold for $1,000 a couple.

The newspaper quoted sources close to the governor's office as saying the donations would help smooth out any industry problems that might occur. The three industries are monitored by state commissioners appointed by Walker.

Industry leaders said the calls were unusual. The call was "unusual because the amount was irregular," said Robert E. Cook, executive vice president of the Illinois Assn. of Realtors. "I mean the tickets were high."

De Grazia does not deny making the requests. "There was no pressure, no threats," he said. "I only told them I'd appreciate it if they'd participate in the dinner because it was a bad thing for the governor — and a bad thing for the state — to still have this deficit."

Jobless seek more aid

More than 30,000 persons have exhausted regular state unemployment benefits and have applied for extended aid in the past two months, the Illinois Bureau of Employment Security said Wednesday.

Between Feb. 22 and April 5, there were 31,186 applications for extended benefits. In Illinois, regular compensation benefits last 26 weeks, but under a state-federal program started in February, people unemployed for a longer period can apply for an extra 13 weeks of benefits.

Guilt in murder conspiracy

Former Champaign County public defender Larry Cramer was found guilty Wednesday of conspiring to murder his wife.

The nine-woman, three-man jury deliberated 17½ hours before reaching its verdict. Cramer was stunned when the jury foreman read the decision and his wife, Judy, appeared distraught.

Mrs. Cramer had continued to live with her husband and had testified in his behalf. She was one of only two defense witnesses at the trial. "He's my husband and I love him," she testified.

In addition to the conspiracy conviction, Cramer also was convicted of solicitation to commit murder. The 2½-week trial ended with defense attorney

Donald Tennant declaring that the decision would be appealed.

During the trial, the prosecution contended Cramer had taken out more than $225,000 worth of insurance policies on his wife, and wanted her killed so he could collect the money.

Chief witness against Cramer was Charles Weatherington, Cramer's former client, who said he was approached by Cramer over a 10-month period, discussing various ways of killing Mrs. Cramer.

Plans under discussion, he said, included staging a car accident, having dogs attack her and slitting her throat.

Census called inefficient

The census is biased, inefficient and too expensive and should be abolished, according to the director of the Survey Research Laboratory at the University of Illinois.

"The scope of the operation is so huge," said Robert Ferber, "that the organizational problems are virtually insuperable, particularly given the one-time nature of the project."

"To hire and train all the people needed for such a task and then to let them go a short while afterward is inefficient and very costly to say the least," he said.

Ferber said the census has a built-in bias toward understatement. "People are much more likely to be missed in a census than they are to be double-counted," he said.

Ferber suggested the census be replaced by sample surveys, which would be more accurate, less costly and available more quickly.

State jobless strike off

A strike against the Illinois Bureau of Employment Security has been averted, officials of Local 1006-American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees said Wednesday.

The strike, threatened for Thursday, reportedly would have shut down the state's unemployment-compensation division which issues benefit checks to eligible applicants among the 381,000 persons without jobs in Illinois.

A referendum of 1,500 union members failed by 70 votes to receive the two-thirds majority necessary for a strike, said Bernice Jacobson, Local 1006 president.

She said a group of union members is dissatisfied with the results, leaving the possibility that a wildcat strike could occur.

The referendum failed to receive the necessary majority because labor and management have agreed to meet today and discuss their differences, Miss Jacobson said.

Another hope for settlement is the release of $700,000 to IBES recommended Tuesday by a legislative subcommittee of the Illinois General Assembly.

THE MAIN ISSUE of the strike threat was the intent by IBES Administrator Christopher Nugent to lay off 523 employees in the bureau's employment security section, which helps the unemployed find jobs.

Nugent's action led to a compromise offer under which 253 would be retained and the remaining 268 would be laid off but offered temporary part-time work in other offices.

Releasing the $700,000 would pay salaries until June and give the two sides time to work out their problems which also include wage and overtime grievances, Miss Jacobson added.

Nugent, testifying before the subcommittee, said a strike by agency employees would not slow down the disbursement of unemployment checks.

"I don't believe it," Miss Jacobson said. "I think we could close down the system."

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Fat won't help circulation

When a person gains weight do the arteries and veins to the heart increase too? I realize they increase in the fat areas of the body, but does this also happen to the heart at the same time?

Gaining fat alone will not significantly increase the circulation to the heart muscle. While gaining weight the fatty-cholesterol deposits that develop in the arteries to the heart may decrease the ability of the heart to increase its own blood supply. Eventually that can lead to fatal heart irregularities or heart attacks.

Actually, the blood supply to a pound of fat tissue is far less than to most other areas of the body. The muscles are practically a bloody sponge compared to the bloodless fat tissue. The reason is simple. While there is a constant fat turnover the fat cells do not actively participate in using energy in the same way a muscle cell does. The muscle cell breaks down your food to final end products of carbon dioxide and water, releasing the energy to be used by your body. The fat cells merely convert fat into various forms to be stored or released, depending on whether you need energy or are eating too much and need to store energy as fat.

This has a lot to do with why muscles are "energy cells" that produce energy and make you feel good. It is why a muscular person will use more energy at rest than a fat person of the same weight will. Always think of muscles as energy converters and fat as energy storage tanks.

Obviously, if you want energy to enjoy living, you need energy-converting cells or muscles, not energy storage tanks.

How much does a nose job cost? How long does it take for complete recovery? Why would a doctor refuse surgery? Can a person have his nose the way he wants it?

You had better ask the surgeon who you want to do the job as prices vary. Expect to pay $1,000. Perhaps more or a little less depending upon your doctor.

You will see an immediate change, but it will take three weeks for a good improvement, and you will see a steady decrease in swelling and after effects for as much as six or eight months after surgery.

A doctor may not think the patient really has enough variation in the nose to justify surgery. When the nose is the right size for the rest of the features and looks pretty good he runs the risk that such a patient won't be satisfied with surgery no matter how well he does the job.

Surgeons also recognize that some patients have other problems, sometimes in the psychological area that make it less likely that the patient will really be satisfied with the results. Expecting too much is one example.

Surgeons are particularly leery of the patient who knows exactly what kind of nose he wants. Sometimes what the patient wants won't do at all for the rest of the features. Talk to your doctor about what features of your nose you want changed, and let the doctor tell you what is best for you.

The environment

'Earth Day' for fifth time April 20-26

by LEA TONKIN

Get involved
That's what Earth Day is all about, area environmentalists say. Tuesday marks the fifth observance of Earth Day as part of the April 20-26 Earth Week set by Congress. The event is planned to promote a review of environmental progress, a commitment to restore and protect the quality of the environment and education in environmental issues.

Catherine Quigg, vice president of the Palatine-based Pollution and Environmental Problems Inc. (PEP), said PEP will mark Earth Day with a public meeting in which any Northwest suburban citizen can voice his concerns, local or national.

"We will try to advise people as to what they can do to be effective in taking action," she said.

The fifth Earth Day observance marks "subtle but real changes in attitudes" toward environmental problems, she said. Citing PEP efforts to inform the public of nuclear power industry problems and the benefits of solar energy use, Mrs. Quigg said, "an individual or a small active group can accomplish a great deal." The group will meet at 8 p.m. in the Palatine Village Hall.

Mrs. Lee Botts of the Lake Michigan Federation, Chicago, said the group plans to promote Lake Michigan awareness during Earth Week. Citizens who want to be involved in the protection of the environment need to understand the complex laws and regulations that affect water quality, she said.

James Reisa, of the federal Council on Environmental Quality said important legislation aimed at pollution control has been adopted within the past five years. The emphasis is shifting to implementation of the new regulations and issues as land planning and toxic substances, he said.

chief co-sponsor of House Bill 461, said Miss Fisher's statement before the Springfield committee "on behalf of future generations" was brief and effective. A last-minute effort to include a portion of the Des Plaines River under the protective provisions of H.B. 461 was unsuccessful. The bill goes to the House for consideration.

Audubon meets today

The Prairie Woods chapter of the National Audubon Society will meet today at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, Arlington Heights. The movie, "Wood duck's world — lifecycle of a wood duck," will be shown and new officers will be installed at the meeting at 7:30 p.m.

Hearing on drinking water

A public hearing on drinking water standards will be held today in Chicago. The hearing at 9:30 a.m. is sponsored by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, to hear comments on proposed standards that set limits for contaminants and require monitoring of public water-supply systems. The EPA action is required by the Safe Drinking Water Act signed into law in December 1974. The hearing will be held at the Presidential Ballroom of the Midland Hotel, 172 W. Adams St. Written comments may be sent, in triplicate, to the Water Supply Division, (WH-450), EPA, Washington, D.C. 20460. Attn: Comment Clerk, Interim Primary Drinking Water Standards. Comments must be received by May 16.

British policemen no 'bobbies on bicycles,' officer says

BRITISH POLICEMAN Keith Hunter lecture to students in the Harper College Criminal Justice program. Hunter explained the organization of police forces in England and Wales during a

'We were in bad shape 20 years ago, but now we're professionals...'

by WANDALYN RICE

The British police have the image of the slightly lovable "bobbie" in the United States, but a British police chief says his officers also are highly trained professionals with great pride.

"We were in pretty bad shape 20 years ago," Keith Hunter told a group of criminal justice students and police officers at Harper College. "But the chief police officers and civil servants took the initiative and agreed that wherever a citizen met a policeman he was entitled to the same quality of treatment and the same quality of service."

Hunter, who visited Harper and Northwest suburban police departments this week, is visiting the United States under a program arranged by the John Jay College of Criminal Justice in New York.

A quiet, soft-spoken man with a professorial air, Hunter said he is a commander in the Essex police and is on leave from his department to run a police-training program in Kent.

BRITISH POLICE, he said, consider themselves professional members of a national police service even though they are hired locally by county officials.

Also, under the law, Hunter said police are not servants to those who hire them, but instead are responsible to the courts. "It is illegal for the political arm to interfere with law enforcement because once due process has started we consider ourselves responsible to the courts," he said.

Police chiefs may be fired by county officials for inefficiency, Hunter said, but "if any sectionalism or partisanship is involved" the county would be threatened with the loss of the funds that come from Parliament.

"THE LAST SCANDAL" was in Nottingham where the chief police officer called in Scotland Yard to investigate corruption on the county council and after the council was quite properly denied a look at investigation files, they fired the chief officer," he said.

After the firing, he said, the Home Secretary of Parliament stepped in and said that if the council did not reinstate the chief officer, the county would lose law-enforcement funds. "There was great public outcry and the chief officer was reinstated," he said.

Hunter said police training has been regionalized, with the recruits from several departments attending the training school he heads.

Police recruits in England must be at least 5 feet 8 inches tall and must pass a standardized test which shows their academic ability. The police don't require high school diplomas or other degrees because, "We get a large number of young people with a good educational background who are semi-literate and a large number of older officers without much education who can read and write very well," he said. "We felt we should set our own standards."

After a police recruit goes through his initial training, he spends two years on probation, Hunter said. "He spends most of those two years on foot," he said, "because we don't want them riding around in cars until we feel they are full-fledged police officers."

MORE EXPERIENCED officers return frequently for training in how to deal with mass demonstrations and dissent, among other things, Hunter said. "In the command course (the course required of officers who may become chiefs) they have to learn Chairman Mao's revolutionary philosophy and they have to learn it word-perfect," he said.

Hunter said that in working on demonstrations, the British police use large numbers of men and "have developed a doctrine of minimum force. The police have always recognized the right to protest and wanted to secure the rights of the citizens while pointing out accompanying responsibilities," he said. "We have a tradition of going up to demonstrators and looking them in the eye and smiling at them. It seems to work quite well."

British police traditionally do not carry guns, he said, and "every time a policeman is shot the debate resumes on that." So far, he said, "it has been the feeling among the police and the public that to arm the police would escalate the violence."

High court denies 42% equalizer rate

The Illinois Supreme Court criticized state officials Wednesday for failing to enforce real estate equalizer laws, but refused to uphold a Lake County decision requiring equalization of assessments at 42 per cent.

The ruling ended a threat that property taxes in many Illinois counties would soar because of a Lake County Circuit Court decision ordering the 42 per cent equalization rate.

A Lake County couple sought to force the Dept. of Local Government Affairs to follow state law by equalizing property taxes at 50 per cent of market value statewide.

In his decision, Chief Justice Robert Underwood said, "No real effort has been made by state or local officials to assess property at its fair cash value as required by statute."

Underwood said the court was "compelled to defer action" because the state already has issued multipliers for 65 counties for 1974 tax bills. He said that forcing the work to be done again would waste money and time.

ATTORNEY Paul Hamer, who filed the original Lake County challenge, said the decision means that in counties where there is no assigned multiplier yet, the state will have to use the 50 per cent figure.

The Illinois Senate is considering a bill passed by the House last week that would lower the level of equalization from 50 per cent to 33 1/3 per cent. The bill was being rushed through the Illinois

General Assembly in case the Supreme Court ordered the assessments to be made uniform at the 42 per cent level.

Hamer said the lowered equalizer would mean less income for municipalities and school districts. "They won't receive the full amount of their tax levy," he said. "A change in the level of assessment can't be changed without changing the maximum tax rates."

Hamer said the inter-county disputes over tax rates would end if the state would distribute aid on the basis of population and not assessed value.

The equalizer is needed because Illinois counties assess property at different percentages of market value. Cook County, for example, assesses single-family homes at 22 per cent. The state assigns an equalizer or multiplier, which was 148 last year in Cook County, to increase the lower rates.

Suburban valuation tops Chicago

Total real estate assessments in Schaumburg Township increased 9.12 per cent from 1973 to 1974, County Assessor Thomas M. Tully said this week.

In announcing that the total suburban assessed valuation surpassed that of the City of Chicago for the first time in 1974, Tully also indicated that the suburban area assessments increased 7.80 per cent during the year.

Other local townships showed lesser increases than Schaumburg Township during the year, Tully said. He indicated the assessed valuation jumped 5.08 per cent to $382.3 million in Elk Grove Township, 1.61 per cent to $475.2 million to $274.000 in Maine Township, 3.07 per cent to $203.9 million in Palatine Township and 4.30 per cent to $377.2 million in Wheeling Township.

Schaumburg Township's increase to $237.8 million was among the highest for townships not involved in a quadrennial reassessment last year.

Explaining that the assessment increases affect the tax rates for local municipal, school and local district taxes, Tully said, the "increased tax base can mean lower taxes for everyone, especially homeowners. If local taxing bodies exhibit fiscal responsibility at budgeting time."

Tully explained his contention that homeowners are sharing less of the total property tax burden than ever before by pointing to major increases in the assessments of industrial, commercial and vacant properties. The shift of the tax burden away from the homeowner is attributable to the new classification system which assesses homes at 22 per cent and industrial and commercial property at 40 per cent, Tully said.

The total assessed value for the county in 1974 reached $6.8 billion in the suburbs and $6.6 billion in Chicago for a countywide assessed valuation of $13.4 billion.

Dr. Middleton 'enjoying himself' in prison: wife

Dr. James G. Middleton is getting along fine at the federal penitentiary in Sandstone, Minn., his wife, Margaret, said Wednesday.

"He's having a good time, he's enjoying himself," Mrs. Middleton said of her husband, who has served two months of an 18-month sentence for violation of federal firearms and explosives regulations.

The former Des Plaines physician is working in the prison hospital at night and in the laboratory during the day, she said.

"He says the air is clear, he walks around in his shirtsleeves and the food is homemade," Mrs. Middleton said. "But he still wants to get out."

MIDDLETON, whose offices were at 969 S. Elmhurst Rd., was convicted on charges resulting from a raid on his office Dec. 1, 1970, by Sheriff's Police. Investigators found pipe bombs, detonators, three handguns, pornographic photographs, literature and movies and what were described as bizarre sexual devices.

He was sentenced to four years in prison but U.S. District Court Judge James B. Parsons agreed to the reduction in sentence because Middleton's record was clean since his conviction in February 1972. The doctor also was sentenced to 5 to 10 years in jail for a 1972 conviction on charges of deviate sexual assault on a female patient.

The decision to send Middleton,

Dr. James G. Middleton

48, to jail came abruptly Feb. 11. Since Parsons earlier indicated he would have more time to appeal his conviction. But Parsons changed his mind. His case will come up for parole hearing in May and Mrs. Middleton is organizing a write-in campaign to try to free him.

"We want people to write to the parole board and say that he wasn't a menace to society," she said. "I'm trying to get some of his patients to write, but it's a slow process."

RTA gives C&NW grant in lieu of fare-hike OK

The Regional Transportation Authority board Wednesday approved a $703,148 grant to the Chicago and North Western Ry. to make up for money the railroad lost when the RTA opposed a 7 per cent commuter-fare increase.

Although the C&NW reported estimated losses of $475,000 for the first three months of 1975, the RTA board did not recognize the entire loss because it disallows depreciation of equipment and payment of indebtedness. Under the RTA formula, the North Western still is operating in the black, said Joseph Tecson of Riverside, an RTA board member.

The board approved the grant in a 7-to-2 vote. Tecson said he supported it because the RTA jeopardized the railroad's chances for a fare increase and therefore closed off all opportunities to recover losses. The RTA became involved in the fare-increase request when RTA board members Daniel Baldino and Nicholas Bosen appeared before an Illinois Commerce Commission hearing and recommended that the request for a 7 per cent increase be denied.

BALDINO AND BOSEN said board members wanted to stabilize fares and an increase would make that job more difficult. Baldino said the railroad should apply for aid from the RTA. The North Western immediately filed for $970,000 to cover anticipated losses.

The RTA board selected the $703,148 amount based on what the railroad could have earned if the fare increase had gone into effect Feb. 15. The grant will be paid in three installments and will cover a period up to June 30, when the area's railroads are expected to begin purchase-of-service agreements with the RTA. Earlier this year the North Western announced that its commuter service was losing money for the first time in 13 years.

James Macdonald, public relations director for the C&NW, said the grant will allow the railroad to operate near a break-even point on commuter services. In addition to increased labor and fuel costs, he said ridership is down 2.1 per cent because commuters are losing their jobs in the city. Total revenues for the first two months of the year were reported down $100,000 over the same period last year. Revenue this year is $4.4 million through February, Macdonald said.

He said the railroad officially will withdraw its rate request this week. The RTA prohibits fare increases or service cutbacks to carriers receiving RTA grants.

The board also awarded grants Wednesday to several suburban bus operations and a grant of $656,497 to the Milwaukee Road commuter service.

Hearings set on RTA grant applications

The Regional Transportation Authority will conduct public hearings next week on federal grant applications for purchase of 147 suburban buses, 364 suburban bus passenger shelters, and 50 commuter cars and 21 locomotives for the Rock Island Line commuter service.

The hearing on the buses and shelters, estimated to cost $11.9 million, will be at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Sheraton Oakbrook Hotel, 1401 W. 22nd St., Oakbrook.

The railroad equipment, estimated at $41.8 million will be discussed at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Kerr Junior High School, 2515 W. 123rd St., Blue Island.

The RTA is seeking 80 per cent funding from the federal government. The remainder would be supplied by the RTA and the Illinois Dept. of Transportation.

151 qualify for tonight's Lottery drawing

3 from area have chance at $1 million

Three Des Plaines residents are among 151 persons who have qualified for tonight's millionaire drawing in the Illinois Lottery.

James Fuller, 1411 Van Buren; William Walker, 711 Dulles, and Alma Guhn, 9136 Congress Dr., have qualified to become the fourth Illinois-made millionaire in the drawing at 7 p.m. at Bradley University in Peoria.

Besides the $1 million jackpot, one person will win a runnerup $100,000 prize and eight others will win $10,000. Fifty-four per cent of the finalists are from the Chicago metropolitan area, 31 are from neighboring states and one is from as far away as New Mexico.

Lottery officials are billing this as "rebate" week, in which $2.5 million will be given away in three separate drawings beginning two days after the deadline for filing income tax statements.

This morning in Kankakee, the Lottery will conduct its weekly Bonanza drawing with the top prize of $300,000. After tonight's millionaire ceremonies, the Lottery will draw numbers in its special Grand Slam game in the studios of WSNS, Channel 44, in Chicago.

In addition, lottery officials have announced that beginning May 8 all regular weekly drawings will be held in Chicago on Thursday evenings from the studios of WGN-TV, Channel 9.

The events will be televised at 7 p.m. and all Lotto, Bonanza and Millionaire numbers will be pulled in the 30-minute show. Bonanza winners will be selected during the time slot.

WGN and other stations will transmit the programs with the media sharing in the cost. Ralph Batch, Lottery superintendent, said WGN is not charging the state for the broadcasts. He said the new setup will reduce the Lottery's administrative costs, since equipment will not have to be moved from place to place and different arrangements made each week.

Liberal-arts majors not in demand

Job outlook for college grads bleak

Color the college class of 1975 slightly scared. The reason: not enough jobs to go around.

Liberal-arts graduates are having the most difficult time finding jobs, according to a United Press International survey, but even for law school graduates there is only one job for every two. For teachers, it's about the same.

Opportunities look strong for engineering graduates but that could change if the economy continues sickly.

"The mood of the campus has changed dramatically," Jack Shingleton said. He is head of placement at Michigan State University in East Lansing.

"Students are getting much more aggressive and competitive in their quest for employment."

"SOME MORNINGS, students start standing in line at 4 a.m. to get on the schedule for interviews with company representatives who come to campus. As many as 150 have been in the line by 6:30 a.m."

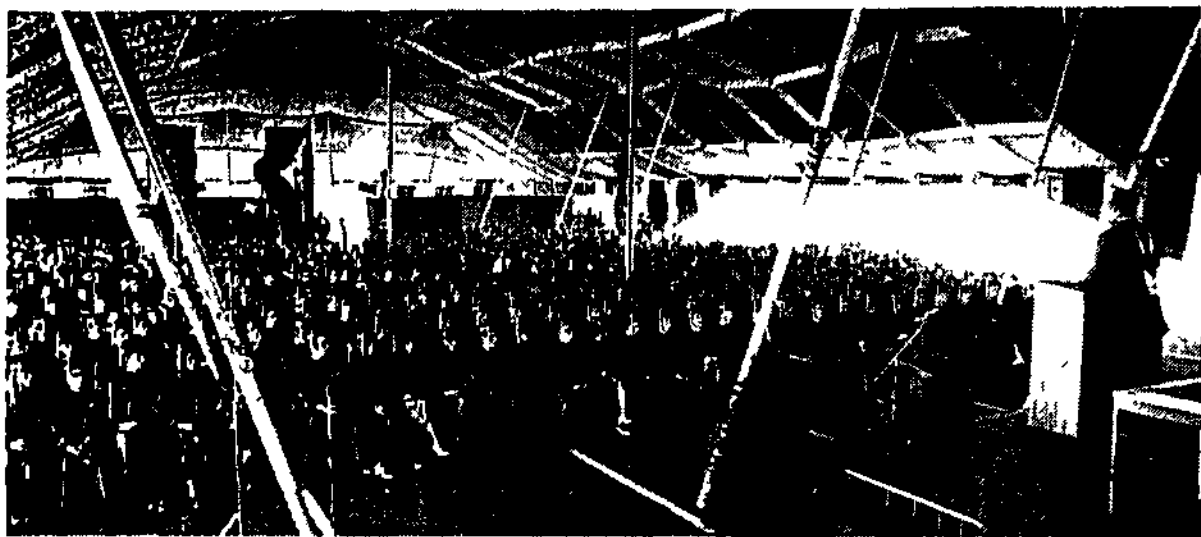

The number of companies coming on the Michigan State campus to hold job interviews is down seven per cent, from 1,873 companies last year to 1,660 this year.

Two surveys of trends in employment of college and university graduates show a confused picture.

"When some economic indicators are up and others are down, the trend may be reported as 'mixed' or 'uncertain,'" Frank S. Endicott said in describing findings of his 20th annual Endicott Report, copyrighted by Northwestern University, Evanston.

Endicott, retired director of placement and professor emeritus of education, found 29 per cent of the surveyed companies planned to contact more colleges; 40 per cent would contact the same number as last year; and 31 per cent would contact fewer.

SALARIES GENERALLY for the class of 1975 are up about five per cent, ranging from $750 a month or less to the more than $1,000 for engineers, according to Endicott.

The report found demand for women college graduates up seven per cent for 1975, and firms surveyed said they planned to hire three per cent more bachelor-degree engineers, who will be offered an average starting salary of $1,062 per month.

The second report on job prospects for the class of 1975 comes from the College Placement Council in Bethlehem, Pa.

The council, supported by dues, counts among its members 700 employers — mostly corporations — and some 1,700 career counseling and placement officers from four-year colleges. The council keeps track of almost all job categories except teaching.

"This year's college graduates face a confused employment picture," the council reported.

"If they are engineering majors, the outlook is bright. If they are headed for accounting or other financial-type positions, the prospects are fairly good.

"BUT IF THEY are majoring in most other disciplines, the pickings may be slim."

The council's survey indicated that employers plan to hire four per cent fewer college graduates. This compares with a four per cent increase experienced last year over the previous recruiting season. However, the downward trend in recruiting activity is not as sharp as one experienced four years ago.

The council found openings for engineers up nine per cent over last year. The employment prospects in other fields — sciences, mathematics, other technical, down 12 per cent; business, down 11 per cent; and other nontechnical, down three per cent.

The council said doctoral degree candidates will be hardest hit this year with 17 per cent fewer openings.

The two employer groups projecting the largest reductions are aerospace and construction, both expecting a 31 per cent drop.

Federal Civil Service expects to hold hiring to about the 1974 level.

The government's greatest demand is for engineers and more medical personnel, including doctors, nurses, veterinarians and medical technicians.

ALLAN W. HOWERTON, director of the Commission's College Relations Office, said the government will hire only one of every 20 job applicants with college degrees.

This tight situation he attributes to "the oversupply of liberal arts graduates on the job market."

The College Placement Council reported that words used by employers to describe the situation ranged from "cautious" to "uncertain" to "precarious."

The bright spots in addition to engineering are for graduates seeking positions in finance, insurance sales, agribusiness and in field involved with exploration for energy resources.

Newsman in Vietnam fear reprisals

NEW YORK — In the old days of the Vietnamese war, U.S. correspondents were worried about being killed by the Communists. Now they are concerned about the weapons of the South Vietnamese.

"I mean, I'm frightened," said ABC's Jim Bennett last week from Saigon. "I think that the jeopardy for the Americans is growing by the hour. I was told by an ARVN (South Vietnamese soldier) who managed to escape from Da Nang, but didn't have his gun, that as soon as he got one, he was certainly going to start shooting Americans. And there's no distinction as far as they are concerned."

NICK ARCHER, ABC News vice president in charge of network foreign correspondents, said ABC correspondent Ken Kashwahara was shot at by South Vietnamese troops last week near Nha Trang.

"In talking to people, justified or not," Kashwahara said last week, "I think that we should say that they, the South Vietnamese, do blame Americans for, in their words, letting them down. And it has gotten pretty bad as far as our jobs are concerned in covering what is going on."

"When I was in Cam Ranh Bay, we were forced to put on our car 'German TV Press' because any hint of us being Americans would immediately draw attention and, in some cases, might bring danger onto ourselves."

SINCE THE PULLOUT of U.S. troops restrictions and harassment of foreign correspondents by the South Vietnamese have escalated at the same pace as military setbacks have increased.

Last month, a French newsman was shot to death by South Vietnamese police who had brought him in for questioning about his dispatches.

"Yes, there is tension," said a reliable source at CBS News, "Yes, the men are concerned. It's a terrible time to be in Saigon." The source declined to discuss the situation further for fear of possible reprisals.

Richard Wald, president of NBC News, said he was aware of the tension. "I think our people are concerned," he said. "We are operating under a different set of conditions now. We used to be the friendly face."

IN SAIGON, Alan Dawson, UPI bureau chief, said, "There is every reason to fear for one's safety in Vietnam these days. There is a triple threat — a Da Nang-style panic among civilians and unruly South Vietnamese forces; a direct Communist attack on Saigon along the lines of the 1968 Tet offensive; and the possibility of a quick Communist takeover by coup or some other political means which possibly could mean reprisals."

We don't need new remap plan

Voting in Illinois is difficult enough without the Daley Democrats' latest scheme to make the process completely confusing for local residents.

Last weekend a plan was unveiled in Springfield to redistrict this state's 24 Congressional districts. To no one's surprise the remap is designed to increase the political power of the Daley machine.

For example, maverick Democrat Abner Mikva, never the warmest supporter of Daley, finds himself gerrymandered into the district of veteran Rep. Sidney R. Yates. If the remap plan is approved by the General Assembly, it's expected that Mikva will once again find himself without a constituency. (Other maverick congressmen, such as Ralph Metcalfe, may be similarly challenged, it is reported.)

This ill-conceived political plan also will throw Wheeling Township into Rep. Robert McClary's Lake County district, with the result that five-year Congressman Philip M. Crane would no longer represent the township.

This remap plan, spawned by a Democratic machine puffed up by the recent Daley mayoral landslide, is unnecessary and undesirable. The state was remapped in 1971, and the 1980 census is the best occasion for the next remap. The General Assembly should pass a simple resolution reaffirming the present map.

Democrats will argue — correctly — that the legislature has the option of remapping the state, as a result of 1971 court rulings. But such a remap is only an option; we've seen no good reason to toss out the present Congressional districts.

While Daley attempts to pick up two more Congressional seats, he should consider that an unnecessary remap discourages public participation in the political process. It's difficult enough now to know who represents us at all levels; this gerrymandering scheme only makes the voters' task that much more difficult.

Observers report the plan stands a good chance of General Assembly approval. That estimate can be revised, however, if Illinois residents remind their legislators that they object to blatant political maneuvers which make it more difficult for us to know our legislators.

Candidates get in the last words

Fence post letters to the editor

On April 4 in Herald "opinion" you endorsed candidates for the position of trustee for the village of Wheeling, Ill. I feel proud to have been one of the candidates that your news media endorsed. I am especially appreciative of the fact that such an endorsement by a local paper can do nothing but benefit the candidate on election day.

But more important to me is the fact that I was endorsed by a paper who has consistently and diligently worked to expose the deceptive practices and crooked officials in our village government. I sincerely believe that if there is any one person or concern who deserves credit for any success in cleaning up the Wheeling "mess," certainly your Herald deserves that credit.

Someday Wheeling will have village officials who are all honest and have a real concern about the village and its people — The Herald can then take pride in the important role it played in bringing this about.

Please accept my sincere appreciation for the endorsement which Paddock Publications gave to me when running for the library board in the last past election. Also to the 4,564 friends who gave me their votes. It will be my sincere concern to serve my community in the future in any way possible since the majority of electors selected another representative to the library board.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all those who were responsible for my victory in the school board election for Mount Prospect Dist. 57: those who encouraged me to run for a position on the school board; the Caucus who selected me; the Mount Prospect Herald who endorsed me; my family, friends, and neighbors who worked in my behalf; and all those who came out to vote for me.

I will do the best job possible to help maintain the high standard of education in our district.

She hits 'hypocrisy' of baby lift

America, where were you when we had to kill them in order to save them? Burn and destroy villages with bombs and napalm? America, where were you when we supported the corrupt Asian government and immoral war with our money and American lives? Where were you when we helped to create those orphans we now want to help? Hypocrisy is the name.

America, where were the wet eyes and humanity when the Asians were called "gooks"? I question our government's motives behind the baby-airlift. Is this a ploy (to soften us up) for more support for South Viet Nam? Will this open the door for further involvement, both in our money and lives? I think so.

Are we so glib or filled with guilt over the Viet Nam travesty that we don't question the rescue of these war orphans? I find it sickening that helpless babies are being made political pawns because of our past blunders in Viet Nam. Where will this face-saving end? Hoover promised us a "chicken in every pot and a car in every garage." What will Ford give us? An Asian war orphan in every home and an American son in every Asian foxhole?

I do not question the motives of the families adopting the children, as I am sure they will love and care for the children in every respect, but I do question the motives of our government's policies both here and abroad. The paradox of the baby airlift is: Does the end justify the means? On one hand helping orphans is a noble gesture and on the other using babies as "props" in a well-planned "strategy game" makes for good press and image (which we've been sorely lacking in lately). Again I ask, where will face saving end?

'Rebates will lead to inflation'

Ever since I was a little boy, people always portrayed Santa Claus as the "good guy," one who was generous at the right times and who could never do wrong. However, it seems that when Congress tries to play Santa Claus, that traditional immortal quality is lost.

In January, President Ford proposed a $16 billion anti-recession tax cut which would rebate revenue to those who paid it in the first time around. This was namely those persons in the $10,000-$20,000 category. The Senate, obviously without any real thought, approved a $32 billion package which was nothing more than an inflated bag of toys for everyone. But unlike Santa Claus, the Senate bill ignored those who were "good" during the year. The Senate money was not rebated to those who paid the taxes in the first place, but rather redistributed the money to those who paid little or no taxes. The final bill which President Ford signed into law was a $23.8 billion measure which for the average family of four earning $20,000 will receive a check for $200. However, let's trace that $200!

A nationwide survey, recently published in a weekly magazine, revealed that 82 per cent of those polled stated that they would most likely save the rebate money and leave it in a bank or other financial institutions. Supposedly, this money ideally would then be available as capital for investment by corporations, which in turn would produce more jobs. This savings will provide capital, all right — capital for investment by the federal government!

Secretary of the Treasury William Simon recently stated in an interview that government will borrow $70 billion this year alone. Which means that the government will take up a large portion of the money that should go to revive the economy. Specifically, the amount that the government will borrow this year breaks further down to around $330 for each of 212 million Americans. Which means that net effect of the rebate will be minimal — most of the money will go back to the government, especially if some of the proposed spending measures are passed.

In its abstract form, the tax rebate bill is another spending measure which in the long run will result in another surge of inflation. The budget deficit is now approaching $60 billion dollars, or 20 per cent of the federal budget. What institution or individual can afford to have 20 per cent of its spending be money it doesn't have?

Surely the answer is not the federal government. We need to examine our priorities and get ourselves on top of the real problem of inflation, which could well return if this boost in the economy is too much.

The original tax cut has been butchered from its original form and is now nothing more than a big cash giveaway. However, at least those in the middle class will get something out of this one!

Congress has demonstrated its total lack of fiscal responsibility and has possessed an inability to use our money wisely. It should be noted however, that there were some who realized the real situation, like our own U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane. Unfortunately, the majority in Congress lack the vision of our Congressman and think that they are dealing with monopoly money — as this tax bill illustrates.

The Santa Claus of old is known for watching out for "bad boys" and giving them what they deserve on Dec. 25. I would suggest that we do the same with the majority of Congress by watching out what happens to our money this year and give them what they deserve. Return those who show fiscal responsibility and dump those who don't on Election Day, 1976!

Hits 'eyesores'

Lest you forget, there are many residents of Arlington Heights who have moved here because the community, with its established zoning laws and municipal code, were written to make the residential areas pleasing to behold and, indeed, a pleasant place to live.

Relaxation of these regulations, which include the currently maligned truck and camper parking ban, can turn our neighborhood vistas into neighborhood eyesores and, in effect, take something from the homeowner that he paid for in the purchase of his home in this community.

I heartily endorse continuance of the parking ban codes as written and commend those who are behind the strict enforcement of same.

Local police applauded

Our special thanks to Officer May and the radio operator who on Easter Sunday brought us great joy in finding our family dog. On Saturday morning, March 29, our dog was going to be bathed for Easter. I removed his collar and rabies tag, but he had to go outside. I let him out and that was the last of Blackie. The dog was gone Saturday and Saturday night. It was freezing outside, cold, with snow flurries. Thoughts were that the dog was dead or frozen out in the cold. We could not sleep. We were worried and sick. We gave up hope he would ever come back. We prayed for his safe return.

Easter morning we called the Rolling Meadows police. A very kind and friendly officer answered the phone, asked the description of the dog, checked his records and said, "Yes, we have your dog. Can you come right over." We went right over. Easter Sunday was a joyful day for us. God heard our prayers.

Blackie was taken to a dog kennel Saturday morning. We picked him up Monday morning, as everything was closed Easter Sunday.

We wish to thank the entire Rolling Meadows Police Dept. for the prompt, friendly and very kind service. We need more friendliness in this world of ours.

EDITORIAL: Let's give the present primary system a chance before we restrict a voter's right to switch parties.

Bob Lahey's column

Daley could curb Wallace in '76

The recent interest of Alabama Gov. George Wallace in the legislative affairs of other states is a clear sign of his intentions to dominate the 1976 national convention of the Democratic Party.

Wallace has been attempting to influence legislators in such states as South Carolina, Wisconsin and a few others — where he made strong showings in 1972 primary elections before being shot by Arthur Bremer in Laurel Md. — to prevent changes in their methods of selecting delegates to the convention.

Wallace argues, with a measure of merit, that states should not revert from popular election of candidate selection to their naming by state conventions simply because of the attitude toward one candidate in a given year.

The very fact that there are efforts abroad in several states to change the method of choosing delegates to the presidential nominating convention is evidence of the fear which many centrist Democrats harbor about George Corley Wallace in 1976.

Conservative estimates are that Wallace will go into the '76 convention in Los Angeles or New York, perhaps with about 30 per cent of the delegates committed to his nomination.

While other potential nominees hem and haw about whether they choose to run, Wallace is expected to have his name placed on the ballot in every state primary election. Under the quota rules established by the Democrats in 1972, that ensures him some portion of the vote in every state where primaries are conducted.

Richard J. Daley

Depending on the degree to which his health will allow him to campaign, some observers say he could go into the convention with as much as 45 per cent of the vote, perilously close (in the eyes of his opponents) to walking off with the presidential prize.

With the wide array of possible candidates, Wallace, whether he has 25 or 45 per cent of the vote going in, seems certainly to be the man to beat.

It is difficult to conceive that he actually would carry off the nomination, and there is a nagging doubt that he really wants it. It is far easier to believe, however, that he wants a strong voice in naming both the presidential and vice-presidential nominees.

To many in the party, letting Wallace name the nominees would be as undesirable as nominating Wallace himself. The question then becomes: Who is going to do what about Wallace?

Barring an intra-party uprising similar to 1972, when he was deprived of his customary power-broker's role in the convention, the one man likely to be able to upset Wallace's plans is Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley. With approximately 5 per cent of the delegate strength, an Illinois delegation under Daley's control could be the key to halting the Wallace movement.

It is of course fanciful, but it is not difficult to imagine the inscrutable Daley holding off in usual fashion until the last possible moment while Wallace opponents sit and worry that Mayor Daley might really go for the Alabamian.

As the pressure mounts, they might become more and more willing to promise the mayor that they will take anybody he wants, except Wallace.

Many in the Democratic party believe that the difficulties of the Republicans will not have been repaired by 1976, and that the man who names the next Democratic nominee will be naming the next president.

For Richard J. Daley, it could be the means to closing out a fantastic political career in a blaze of glory.

It is tempting to think what the "Eastern establishment liberals" who have often denigrated him would find to say about Richard Daley if he became the man who "saved" the party from George Wallace.

Firearm 'facts'

Despite anti-gun propaganda about "alarming" numbers of gun accidents, with no actual figures given, there are authoritative indications that fatal firearms accidents continue to decrease.

Accidental firearms deaths in public places, mainly while hunting, declined during 1974, the National Safety Council reported earlier this year.

While statistics for the entire year were unavailable, a council spokesman confirmed that reports from 40 states for nine months of the year showed a decrease of 100 deaths in public places or 10 per cent fewer than the 1,000 deaths reported in 1973 from all 50 states.

On the same nine-month, 40-state basis, accidental firearms deaths in the home dropped from 1,600 in 1973 to 1,500 in 1974.

In order to put the "firearms" controversy in proper perspective, I strongly feel it is necessary to look at all the facts — not just those carefully selected so frequently by our "press."

The almanac

Today is Thursday, April 17, the 107th day of 1975 with 258 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Venus and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aries.

American financier J. P. Morgan was born April 17, 1837.

On this day in history:

• In 1521, Martin Luther was excommunicated from the Roman Catholic church after refusing to admit charges of heresy.

• In 1917, New York Sen. William Calder introduced a bill establishing Daylight Saving Time. It was defeated.

• In 1961, a force of anti-Castro Cuban rebels began what was to end as the ill-fated "Bay of Pigs" incident.

• In 1964, Mrs. Jerrie Mock of Columbus, Ohio, became the first woman to make solo flight around the world.

A thought for the day: American humorist Mark Twain said, "Work consists of whatever a body is obliged to do. Play consists of what a body is not obliged to do."

Education today

by Wanda Rice

College budgets do survive

Back in a simpler time — the 1960s — college students could be expected to strike and demonstrate to end wars, oppose the draft or insist on student control of a college or university.

College administrators at the time thought the demonstrations were the ultimate indignity their institutions could face.

Earlier this week, television news brought word of a student strike at an Ivy League college — and the purpose of the strike was to protest against budget cuts and tuition increases that the students felt would price them out of an education.

The event is one that points out the newest indignity being perpetrated against colleges by fate. Many schools, particularly private schools, are faced with rising costs at the same time enrollment has stopped increasing at the rapid rate of the 1960s.

THIS IS GIVING rise to a whole new subject for the gloomsayers on campuses. While once student disruption was the great threat to the continued success of higher education, the financial squeeze now holds that distinction.

Just as the gloomiest statements were proved false in the 1960s, I suspect that the harbingers of financial doom are going to end up overstating their case. The picture simply isn't as gloomy as some seem to believe.

In the first place, college officials and their supporters sometimes believe that they should be immune to the problems of the larger society. One of the reasons they were so offended with the antiwar movement was, in fact, a belief that somehow academia should remain aloof from such nasty business as the Vietnam War.

Now, I suspect, plenty of people are offended that a downturn in the economy is affecting the Ivory Tower. For them, it is easy to see disaster in what may be the relatively temporary problem of inflation disrupting a college budget.

Also, while enrollment is not increasing as rapidly as it did when the "baby-boom" babies were making their way through school, the supply of college students isn't exactly drying up. Community colleges around the country are seeing more and more students every year and some four-year schools still are seeing enrollment increases, even if they are smaller than in the boom years.

"THAT DOESN'T MEAN there aren't going to be problems in the coming years. Colleges are going to be faced with federal orders to hire more women and blacks on faculties at the same time teaching positions are becoming scarce. Just as some schools have already died in the crunch (an event which is always sad), there will be other schools that will close.

There probably will be other student demonstrations protesting budget cuts. And, just as some demonstrations of the 1960s were sensible and some were silly, so some of the new set of protests will be reasonable and others unreasonable.

But I doubt that the financial squeeze will destroy the entire system of higher education in this country, as some fear and others hope.

Major institutions have ways of surviving these blows.

Stocks reach 1975 high, notch 7th straight gain

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market staged a vigorous rally late Wednesday to register its seventh consecutive gain.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, off about 10 points early in the session, gained 0.53 points to reach a new 1975 high of 815.71. In gaining 72.83 points in the past seven sessions, the Dow has reached the highest level since it closed at 816.96 June 26, 1974.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index also reached a new 1975 high by climbing 0.30 to 86.60. The average price of an NYSE common share increased by 11 cents. Advances overtook declines, 739 to 648, among the 1,815 issues crossing the tape.

VOLUME TOTALED 22,970,000 shares, down from the 29,620,000 traded Tuesday, the ninth heaviest turnover in NYSE history. Trading was particularly heavy at the end. The NYSE transaction ticker was four minutes late at the closing bell.

G.D. Searle was among the most active issue, gaining 2 1/4 to 24-3/8 on 210,400 shares. Searle and General Foods are studying sales plans for a new sweetener Searle developed. General Foods gained 1/4.

Oil-service issues were particularly strong.

AT&T warrants led the Big Board activities, off 1/4 on 765,600 traded. The common stock lost 1/2 to 48-3/8. The warrants, exercisable when the common stock reaches $2, expire May 15.

MGIC Investment was the third most active issue, up 1 to 13-5/8 on 184,500 shares, including a block of 116,000 shares at 12 1/2. NL Industries was the fifth most active issue, up 1 1/4 to 15-7/8.

Prices closed mixed in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of a common share advanced four cents, but declining issues edged those advancing. Volume totaled 2,466,000 shares, compared with 3,247,000 traded Tuesday.

TRAVELING TEACHER. Sandra Schneider of Arlington Heights, has a special talent for helping people learn to read well. Shown tutoring Alfred McCoy, she and her student are two of about 18,000 people making use of the Evanston-based Learning Exchange, a referral service that matches the interests of students and teachers.

Learning Exchange

They share know-how

by ELEANOR RIVES

Tennis anyone?
Or volleyball, golf, badminton, soccer, spelunking, scuba diving, weight lifting or wrestling?

There's expert help available, perhaps almost in your own backyard.

Do you lean toward crafts? Quilling, trapunto, needlepoint, rug making, origami, china painting?

Are you more the intellectual type? Would you like to learn about Adlerian life style, Chakra philosophy, theosophy, Einstein's relativity theory?

On the other hand, something of immediate practical value might merit your time, such as television repair, auto mechanics, airbrush techniques, landscape design or photomicrography.

WHATEVER YOU wish to learn, there is in all likelihood someone who wishes to teach it. Conversely, should you have something to teach — and every person is a living storehouse of knowledge — there is surely someone who wants to learn.

That is the principle upon which the Learning Exchange was founded. The Exchange, a not-for-profit organization based in donated offices in St. Luke's Episcopal Church in Evanston, has been tremendously successful in the north suburban area and in Chicago. Now it is seeping into the northwest suburbs. And should it saturate the area, nothing but good can come of it.

Denis Detzel, former doctoral candidate in education at Northwestern University, and four other NU students founded the Learning Exchange in the spring of 1971, an off-campus shoebox operation, without financial support from the university. Now this bulging catalog of human knowledge and skills has the financial support of diverse organizations and an optional annual $15 dues from almost 1,200 of those who use the service.

HERE'S HOW it works:

You have skills and knowledge to share. The Learning Exchange places your name in the teacher file. You decide to learn something you have always wanted to learn. The Learning Exchange files your name with the learners and puts you in touch with the nearest teacher.

Or, having learned a skill or special knowledge, you wish to practice or extend it with someone interested in the same subject. The Exchange has a file for you too.

Learning is on a person-to-person or small group basis. Tutors may or may not charge a fee. About 50 per cent do, many on a sliding scale; the other half do not. Hours, places and fee are ironed out between teacher and learner. If each has an interest the other can teach, they may simply exchange their knowledge.

THE STEP THAT sets the whole business in motion is a telephone call to 864-4133 or 273-3383. You will be sent a registration form at no charge. From there on it's up to you.

To date, almost 18,000 people are using the service in one way or another, ranging in age from 14 to 90, although the Exchange boasts one little learner only 18 months old who is learning Hebrew. The catalog lists at least 2,000 more subjects.

"Languages are our largest single category," said George Hagenauer, program director and one of the original organizers. "We offer about 40 different tongues, from Spanish and French to Urdu and Swahili."

Learning to play a musical instrument is also in popular demand and the Exchange catalog lists about 35 of them. Guitar, piano, concertina, naturally. But would you believe dulcimer, bagpipes and zither?

LITTLE BY LITTLE, as northwest suburbanites are becoming aware of the Evanston operation, their names and skills are creeping into the files. Mrs. Esther Cullen of West Des Plaines is newly registered as an English teacher for foreign-born persons. A qualified teacher using Laubach materials, she earned her Literacy Tutoring Certificate at the Palatine Literacy School.

That is not the limit of help she offers or interests she can share. Her background includes experience as a remedial reading teacher in the Des Plaines school system, as a writer and newspaper columnist, seven years work with a neuropsychiatric clinic and recent involvement in the research department of Forest Hospital. She is familiar with bio-feedback and psychocyanetics.

HER SISTER, Mary Lester of Evanston, has been registered with the Exchange since January. A few years ago, she gave up her position as an investment analyst to devote more time to her writing. She has published educational material for children in magazines and newspapers, a newspaper column for children and crossword puzzles constructed around a wide variety of subjects, including foreign languages.

"The thing I know best is the marketing of material," she said. "That is the type of help I can give."

Since joining the Exchange, she has had four people referred to her for help in publishing their manuscripts, one of whom is Marcia Snider, a young Des Plaines woman who has written and illustrated a "charming little children's story." Miss Lester thinks she can place it.

MARCIA READ of the Learning Exchange last December in Chicago Guide about the same time she finished Northwestern Illinois University. She proceeded to list herself as a teacher of calligraphy and art, mentioning her interest in writing music and in creative writing.

For help in marketing her children's story, the Exchange referred her to Mary Lester. "She is a marvelous woman, a very nice friend," said Marcia. "Sharing an interest results in a special rare type of friendship that differs from your relationship with personal friends."

Marcia will soon be on the teaching end herself. A student who wishes to learn calligraphy has contacted her.

"It's a wonderful way of learning. It's not regimented — just people who want to share with other people," she said.

TO SHARE HIS experience leading discussion groups, Murray B. Woolley of Arlington Heights decided to start a Great Books group. He heard of the Learning Exchange on Radio Station WFMT and promptly joined. The Exchange put him in touch with a man whose interests matched his and together they rounded up four more people.

The first meeting of their Great Books group took place early this month in Woolley's loop office, with Woolley leading the discussion. The Chicago location is more convenient for the six members, all of whom work downtown, but Woolley would love to get a group started in the northwest suburbs.

"The problem is to match up people's interests," he said. "The Exchange is an excellent idea, a way to share your expertise and at the same time learn from others."

SANDRA SCHNEIDER of Arlington Heights discovered that she has an extraordinary knack of teaching people to read — illiterate adults, foreign-born persons, children with learning disabilities, retarded children and adults — anyone with a reading problem.

A former teacher in the Chicago school system, she added new students to her roster when she joined the Learning Exchange more than three years ago. Four of her present students were referred to her by the Exchange: a father reading at second grade level and his son, a fifth grader, learning how to sound out words; a fourth grade child reading at second grade level; and an adult, her only student from the northwest suburban area.

TUTORING on a one-to-one basis, Sandra travels long distances to her pupils. She thrills to their successes — the Polish woman who learned vowels and lost her accent in two months, the adult who can read signs for the first time, the Yugoslavian janitor who went on to become a draftsman and now plans to become an engineer.

Sandra learned to play tennis through the Exchange, now enjoys the sport with another former Exchange tennis student only five minutes away. Bridge and ethnic cooking are other interests she may someday pursue. But teaching people to read is her greatest gratification.

"I love what I am doing," she said. "It's thrilling to help people who really want to learn."

Balancing that factor on the part of the teacher with the joy of new educational exploration on the part of the learner, The Learning Exchange performs an innovative, humanistic people-to-people service.

Child abuse

by MONICA WILCH PERIN

Child abuse.

It's a repulsive thought which "decent" people shudder at and quickly put out of their minds.

But no matter how strong a stigma we attach to it, it won't go away. In fact, it is estimated to be on the rise — particularly among those very middle class Americans who so abhor the thought, but who are being driven to the brink by hard times.

For them and their children it could be worse than among the less privileged, because their pride may not let them face up to the fact that they are potential or actual child abusers, that they and their children need help.

BREAKING DOWN the barrier of shame and guilt is the first step undertaken by the volunteers who man the Parental Stress hotline. Parental Stress is a self-help organization for parents who need help coping with their emotions toward children. The organization recently expanded its work into the northwest suburbs.

Parental Stress, which was organized last November at the instigation of the Citizens Committee for Battered Children, has a four-fold program: a 24-hour hotline (463-0390), weekly meetings along the lines of Alcoholics Anonymous, a referral service for people needing or desiring specific professional help, and an outreach program with volunteer parents who are on call to personally visit a distressed parent and help him or her through a crisis.

ALL OF THESE services are now available to northwest suburban parents. A weekly meeting is held in Arlington Heights, but to protect the confidentiality and anonymity of those attending, parents who are interested must call the hotline number to find out the time and place of each meeting.

The director of Parental Stress is Margaret Morrison, who as a nurse in the children's emergency department of a Toronto hospital, became concerned that parents who brought their children in for treatment were themselves abused.

"People didn't realize they, too, had a problem. Everyone was so angry with them, there was no compassion. I think we did great damage not only to the parents but to the children because we denied them the opportunity to get help and this put the child in more danger."

SO MRS. MORRISON organized a parental stress program in Canada, which is now some 10 years old and has been so successful that some of the parents who originally called for help are now the mainstay volunteers within the organization.

And in Chicago Parental Stress has taken off just as rapidly. Almost immediately Mrs. Morrison had 80 volunteer parents to answer the telephones. In January alone the volunteers dealt with 137 new families.

"The volunteers are parents who can listen well, react well, who have experienced both pain and joy as children, some of whom had themselves been battered children, but people who can honestly relate to the feelings all parents have — who can say, 'Yes, I know that feeling.'"

"They let the parents know right away that they are not alone, and then help them deal constructively with their anger. But first, we must get them to not feel guilty."

THIS IS ALSO a strength of the weekly meetings, according to Mrs. Morrison. "It's so great to see a parent sigh with relief and say, 'Oh, you too.' Then they work with each other, they get support from other parents, and they learn to support their children."

From her hospital days in Canada, Mrs. Morrison firmly believes that most of the parents — particularly those who bring their children in for medical treatment — "really care about their children. They feel so badly. They are motivated to change but they have nothing to work from."

Mrs. Morrison sees Parental Stress as "an opportunity for people to try something without the threat of authority." She hopes that Parental Stress will be able to work closely in the future with the Department of Child and Family Services and the hospitals, some of which have already begun referring families to Parental Stress, she said. The department itself, to which suspected child abuse must be reported by physicians, has been "very supportive" of her group's efforts, she added.

BUT IF STRONG doses of understanding and realism are the prescription for parents under stress it is because those ingredients were — and are — sadly missing before people in our society become parents, Mrs. Morrison believes.

"Most of us are still sucked in by things we're traditionally taught — we don't recognize that parenting is a learned skill. We never talk about the pain involved, we are only shown joyous scenes of motherhood, so people go into it unprepared."

"If a young woman who is expecting her first child is saying over and over, 'I've got to be a good mother,' that's an explosive situation. Because when the child doesn't appear to love her back and respond by being 'good,' she will begin to have feelings of failure, then feelings of guilt and finally frustration with the child that can lead to abuse."

CRISES, HOWEVER, are not the only situations in which parents may seek help from Parental Stress. "Some people call in to talk about child management skills," Mrs. Morrison said. "We get a whole spectrum of situations, but about 70 per cent of our work is preventive."

The services of Parental Stress are free, and the organization is not affiliated with any other agency or authorities.

Nurse granted Cancer Society scholarship

The recent award of a $500 scholarship for enterostomal therapist training at Emory University in Atlanta, Ga., has been announced by Northwest Suburban Unit of the American Cancer Society, Palatine.

The scholarship was granted to Mrs. Barbara Schaefer, a nurse at Lutheran General Hospital, by Dr. Sherwin E. Warren, chairman of the Service and Rehabilitation Committee of the Illinois Division. Mrs. Schaefer has completed the course, which teaches practical and medical care of those persons who have had operations such as colostomy, ileostomy or urinary diversions.

The work of these enterostomal therapists is augmented by volunteers who have had similar operations, and who work with the patient on psychological, emotional and cosmetic aspects of their recovery.

Other nurses who have taken the course are Lillian Strezishar, Northwest Community Hospital, and Marilyn Tounsignant, Holy Family Hospital.

Nurses wishing to apply for scholarships may call Jane Ulrich or Linda MacFarlane at the Cancer Society, 359-3963.

CARE TO KNOW more about human aura research, lip reading, Irish harp or fire-eating? Those are only four of 2,000 subjects constantly being updated by Diane Kinishi, Learning Exchange assistant director; Bob Lewis, executive director; and George Hagenauer, program coordinator.

Vegetables dirt cheap? Grow your own

Food Day, 1975 — and the prospects of fresh vegetables, dirt cheap — if you grow your own!

Today a national effort focuses on the problems of high food prices, domestic and world hunger and food lacking in nutritional value through a series of activities in 50 major American cities, organized and coordinated by the Center for Science in the Public Interest.

"The farmers who supply our supermarkets continue to shower their crops with pesticides, contaminating both the land's harvest and those who do the harvesting with inherently toxic chemicals. The extravagant use of nitrate fertilizers maximizes crop yields, but also pollutes the groundwater and rivers.

"AMERICA'S food-producing complex must be changed so that it fulfills its primary justification for existing: feeding the people. Farmers need to be encouraged, perhaps by new kinds of educational and subsidy programs, to employ methods that respect the environment and maximize the nutritional value of food."

"Machine-oriented farming has not left the quality of food unaffected. Supermarkets overflow with bland poultry, hard tomatoes and tasteless corn. New breeds of livestock and plants are selected for high yield and compatibility with machines rather than good taste and nutritional value." — from "Feeding the People, Not Food Producers" by Dr. Michael Jacobson, the New York Times.

EVERYONE READING this can be a part of Food Day, even if they never leave the comfort of their own homes, by planning now to cultivate a vegetable patch this summer and grow their own good, wholesome food, inexpensively and with relatively little effort.

For $11.15 worth of seeds, Derek Fell calculates in his new book, "How to Plant a Vegetable Garden," that one can reap $263.91 worth of vegetables from a 12x25 foot plot. (Read his book to see what kinds of vegetables and a comparison of supermarket prices with cost of seeds.)

by Mary B. Good

After you deduct the cost of seeds from your saving, fertilizer, soil conditioners, etc. (another $15), the cost of having the plot rototilled ($15), the cost of buying some vegetable plants instead of seeds (brussels sprouts, cabbage, cauliflower, tomatoes, peppers $10), a savings of well over $200 is possible. (Labor can be written off as healthy exercise.)

OF COURSE, many people will not need a vegetable patch this large, and a variety of free vegetable seeds may be found in packages of bread and Post's Raisin Bran.

Recycling kitchen and yard wastes into nutrient-rich compost saves money on fertilizers, and mulching between the rows with spent hay, newspapers or grass clippings saves water and weeding effort.

The better flavored vegetables with higher nutritional value you grow at home beat anything you can buy in the store.

THIRTEEN VEGETABLES, enough to feed a family of four, are planted in a 12 x 15 foot garden plot, by using a fence for pole beans and cucumbers and staking tomatoes. Other vegetables include peppers, parsley, chives, lettuce, carrots, beets, onions, chard, endive and squash.

Try boric acid on roaches

Dear Dorothy: We moved into a rented home to find it infested with cockroaches. An exterminator sprayed, but within a week they reappeared in droves. The exterminator came back and sprayed everywhere. A week later I caught a cockroach with eggs, put it into a jar and within a couple of days there were 30 roaches in the jar! I'm ashamed to call the exterminator again and am wondering how long it is before one is rid of them after spraying. — Mrs. B.C.L.

Unfortunately, chemicals do not kill any eggs when they are lodged in cracks. Even with a good residual spray, it can take two weeks before one is completely rid of them. Let me recommend something that has worked for many readers. Dissolve a teaspoon of boric acid in hot water. Then put it into a saucer (or saucers), adding a piece of white bread to each saucer. Place them wherever the most roaches frequent. Just remember to keep the saucers well out of the way of pets or children.

Dear Dorothy: I put a new pair of yellow pillowcases with the white things in the wash. In the pile also was an old white nylon slip. Everything came out beautifully white but the nylon slip was as yellow as if I had deliberately dyed it. How do you account for this? — Emily Blucker.

Nylon, as well as many polyesters, is a color scavenger. You can be glad that a yellow slip is not too bad to include in one's wardrobe.

Tip to new homemakers: When making a molded fruit or vegetable salad, you should let the dissolved gelatin mixture chill until it is slightly thick before you add fruit or vegetables. This will keep them from floating on top.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 286, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Airless spray paint guns require caution

Homeowners preparing to do some painting this spring are warned by the Consumer Product Safety Commission to handle with care any airless type spray paint guns.

The Commission announced this week that it has investigated several incidents involving injuries caused by the paint guns. In three cases the injuries resulted in amputation of fingers.

The problem is that the paint is ejected at such a high speed and with such needle sharpness that it can puncture the skin, causing tissue injury or infection.

The guns, which are available in large capacity units for both professional and consumer use as well as smaller sizes, operate with a piston device that pressures the paint out. It is different from air compressor spray guns.

The spray guns have been on the market for several years. The Commission warned consumers to read instructions carefully before using the spray gun, and never to attempt unclogging the nozzle while the device is in use.

CONSUMERS WILL undoubtedly be all choked up to learn that the Mobil Oil Corp. has decided to support legislation creating a federal consumer protection agency.

The legislation, now known as the Agency for Consumer Advocacy bill, was initiated by Illinois Sen. Charles Percy and some other lawmakers six years ago and has been battling almost monolithic opposition from business and industry all the way. (Only a few firms, such as Marcor and Motorola, supported it.) After a very close miss last year, the legislation is once again on the brink of passage.

So now, Mobil decides to jump on the bandwagon. How touching! Even if the new agency surpasses the most optimistic expectations of effectiveness, it will still be insignificant compared to the national and international clout of the oil companies.

Landscape study

The landscape design study course sponsored by The Garden Club of Illinois will be held Wednesday, April 30, through Friday, May 2, at the Morton Arboretum, Lisle.

Subjects will include resume of landscape design, herbaceous material and maintenance, contemporary design, evaluation domestic design, subdivision and land development, planning and zoning, redesign of areas and evaluating public design.

Cost is $9 for one day, $16 for two days. The third day a $2 fee is charged for those taking the examination. Checks may be mailed to Mrs. John R. Wood, 616 E. Main St., Barrington, who is in charge of registration.

UNDERWRITERS Laboratories has added a new kind of safety testing to its standard battery, the company announced. UL has developed new sanitation requirements for household dishwashers, laundry equipment and waste disposers.

According to UL, a design fault in one of these appliances could affect the water supply or sewage system of the homeowner as well as his neighbors.

The testing will ensure that a food waste disposer grinds garbage into particles too small to cause blockage in the drainage system, and that it does not harbor wastes that could decay and produce a health hazard.

Requirements for washing machines and dishwashers will ensure that contaminated water is not sucked from the appliance into the water supply. These appliances are designed with a device to prevent such back-siphonage. UL will test the devices for effectiveness.

Mortgage payments behind? Don't fret

by LEA TONKIN

It could happen to any homeowner. The monthly mortgage payment comes due, and there's no money to pay the bills because of job loss and other problems. What will happen to the homeowner who skips mortgage payments may hinge on his willingness to sit down with the lender, explain the problem and work out an agreeable payment plan.

As an increasing number of homeowners in Illinois and throughout the nation fall behind in mortgage payments, they're coming face-to-face with delinquent loan policies used by lenders. Savings institutions say leniency rather than foreclosure is the best policy in most cases.

"Nobody benefits from a foreclosure. It's a bad deal all the way around," said Lee Shemroske, assistant vice president at the First Federal Savings and Loan Assn. of Schaumburg. "On the few foreclosures we've had, we've always lost money on them."

"People should call us if there's any problem in making a payment," Shemroske said. "Especially today, with problems in the economy, we try to work something out." For example a homeowner who lost his job may arrange to pay interest and escrow payments but defer the payment on the loan principal for a short period of time. If the borrower seeks advice from the lender who granted the loan, refinancing may be worked out, in some cases, to lower the monthly payments.

"WE HAVE A 20-day grace period on every payment, but people should let us know as soon as possible," he said of delinquent payments. A borrower's account is not seriously delinquent until payment is 90 days overdue. Then the account is turned over to a collection agency.

"If they can't collect the funds in another 60 to 90 days, we can start foreclosure," Shemroske said. The "very few" instances of foreclosure can be avoided if an agreement is worked out between the lender and the homeowner, he said.

"I think most creditors are more sympathetic if the customer comes in before the delinquency is a serious one," said Frank Kryda, vice president and manager of the Mount Prospect branch office of Central Federal Savings and Loan Assn. "If they come in and explain, it's a little easier. Generally, the further the loan is paid down, the greater the chance of working something out." The borrower who paid ahead on mortgage payments can skip one or more payments when a financial pinch occurs.

Kryda offered advice to home owners who may face a loan delinquency problem:

- Talk to lenders and credit-grantors as soon as you discover the bills are coming in faster than you can make the payments. This gives everyone concerned more time to work out a solution.
- Set priorities. Decide which payments can be deferred or extended, and which payments must be made immediately.

• Consider alternatives. Refinancing the home loan may be considered in some cases. The borrower may want to take out a second mortgage using the home equity as collateral, but Kryda advises caution on this arrangement. An extended-payments schedule may be worked out in some cases.

The borrower who has an edge has prepaid on one or more mortgage payments, Kryda said. Some forms of insurance may also offer relief to the borrower who's lost a job. Borrowers are less likely to encounter payment problems if their monthly payment is no larger than one-third of their take-home pay or one-fourth of gross pay.

"ONCE A payment falls a month or two behind, we send a reminder," Kryda said. A 90-day delinquency is considered serious. If the lender and the borrower cannot agree on a payments plan, Kryda said foreclosure proceedings may be started. The institution files suit against the borrower, and a court-supervised sale of the house or condominium unit may be conducted. In some cases, the owner sells the house.

"Foreclosures are generally a losing proposition," Kryda said. The foreclosure proceedings take approximately one year following the initial 90-day delinquency period.

Forebearance rather than foreclosure is the general policy used by lenders when a borrower's mortgage payments are overdue, said H. Thomas Dunck, president of the Illinois Savings and Loan League. He said a S&L may take reduced payments or carry the loan in a default status. This form of relief is appropriate when the delinquency is a small one and when it is reasonably certain it will be cured at a specific future time, either in a lump sum or in installments added to the regular payments during the period of default.

When the problem is more serious, an agreement may be put in writing. "This would include a reduction or suspension of regular mortgage payments for a specific forbearance period. The agreement may specify a new maturity date of the mortgage by reason of an extension of the period during which the payments were reduced or suspended," Dunck said.

DUNCK SAID THE end of January marked the fifth consecutive month of increased mortgage-loan delinquencies in Illinois. A loan is considered delinquent when payment is 60 days overdue. Delinquencies at the end of January were 1.66 per cent of the total loans outstanding, or $308,027,000.

Federal Home Loan Bank data indicates the number of delinquent mortgages held by Illinois savings and loan associations is 37.4 per cent higher than January 1974. S&L's in Illinois hold some $18.5 billion in mortgage loans.

A spokeswoman at the U. S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development office in Chicago, said volunteers are being trained to counsel homeowners who have fallen behind in loan payments. Legislative efforts and requests for HUD commitments that would result in more lenient policies toward delinquent bill payers will depend on the willingness by lenders to extend the policy, she said.

THE DATA indicates new industries with 10 or more employees, major plant expansions of 10,000 square feet or more, industry moves between Chicago and suburbs and expanded warehousing of at least 25,000 square feet in the Commonwealth Edison Co. service area. The period is 1970-1974.

Sign of new jobs?

Steady industrial growth seen near O'Hare Airport

The prospects are good for continued industrial development in the vicinity of O'Hare Airport and the biggest chunks of available land, further west and north, will push development outward in 1975, said Owen Pollard of Commonwealth Edison Co.

As director of area development for the utility, Pollard is optimistic about a "healthy sustaining demand" for area industrial space.

Pollard recently released the annual Industrial Development Report for 1974 that indicates a slight increase in the number of new companies with 10 or more employees in the utility's Northern Illinois service area, and the total square feet in area industrial development.

He said the inquiries from companies considering a move to the Chicago area or a plant expansion are an encouraging sign that there will be new plants and more jobs coming to the area during 1975.

TOTAL GROWTH AS reported for 1974 included 269 new industries, major expansion, and new or expanded warehousing facilities in the Northern Illinois service area. The firms reported an increase of 9,800 jobs added floor space amounted to 16,088,000 square feet. The 1973 figures included 236 new firms, with an employment growth of 11,500 and an added 15,190,000 square feet.

Pollard said two firms moved from the suburbs to the City of Chicago during 1974 with increased employment of 8 persons and an added 25,000 square feet of space. Twenty-four companies moved from Chicago to the suburbs, adding 355 jobs and 647,000 square feet of space.

Available industrial sites in the suburban and rural territory included 860 sites, with a total of 64,019 acres. The 1973 report showed 658 available sites with a total of 60,941 acres.

AVAILABLE VACANT industrial buildings in suburban and rural areas included 331 buildings with 20,422,000 square feet of space at the end of 1974. The comparable 1973 figures were 378 buildings with 17,821,000 square feet of space.

Speculative or inventory buildings available in the Chicago and northern Illinois area included 141 buildings with floor space totaling 10,434,000 square feet. There were 187 available buildings with 9,865,000 square feet of space at the end of 1973.

Allan Hamilton, a partner in the Trammell Crow Co. office in Des Plaines, said the outlook for northwest suburban industrial development for the remainder of 1975 is uncertain. His firm has plans for several area inventory, or speculative buildings. "We are in a position to go ahead very quickly with several buildings, when we lease major space," he said.

Hamilton cited the high cost of financing and uncertainty about the economy as factors that will influence industrial development, adding, "Chicago is one of the most stable and active markets in the country."

THE INCREASED amount of available industrial sites has caused rental rates to decline in some instances, Hamilton said. He said an annual typical rental rate is $1.75 a square foot for large warehouse space, plus such expenses as insurance and property tax.

Trammell Crow has projects planned in Elk Grove Village, Bensenville, South Harvey and other communities. "The moves to the suburbs will continue, and the O'Hare area will continue to experience rapid development as long as land is available," Hamilton said.

Attractive living conditions, available labor supply and proximity to transportation are attractions in the area, he said. Hamilton believes the diversity of industry in the Chicago area will buoy the market in an uncertain economic period.

THERE ARE indicators of increased industrial development later in 1975, echoed John Kehe, vice president of Smith-Pippenhagen, Inc. Realtors in Arlington Heights. Kehe said the availability of financing and the need to expanded production capacity should prompt companies to make their move this year.

A range of prices for the small industrial space is available, Kehe said. For a 1,500-square-foot area, the price may range from $2.40 to $3 a square foot. High construction costs are causing some developers to delay construction projects, he said.

There is a steady demand for industrial space in the Northwest suburbs, Kehe said. The direction of new development seems to be pushing toward Lake and McHenry counties, he said.

Average sales price of home up $2,000

The average sales price for existing homes increased more than $2,000 during the past year, said Kenneth Ruud, president of the MAP Multiple Listing Service.

In March the average sales price was $47,269 for homes sold by the 75 companies in the area listing service. The average price tag a year earlier was $45,244.

Ruud said March sales reported by MAP members included 633 transactions with a total value of $29,929,185. The number of sales is slightly lower than 640 sales in March 1974. Ruud said brokers "feel pretty good" that sales are fairly steady. A brisk market later in 1975 is forecast by Ruud, of Kenneth A. Ruud Inc., Arlington Heights.

Levitt eases relocation problems

A handle-with-care attitude to ease the unnerving experience of relocating has been adopted by Levitt Residential Communities, Inc. in its new transfer program.

"Many companies transferring employees have found it a difficult task for both concerned, especially in the field of housing," Joseph Napolitan, regional sales manager, commented. "To assist and make the transfer as smooth as possible, Levitt has introduced two new transfer programs."

Most transferred employees need a house for their families but do not have the time to look for future housing as well as immediate housing, Napolitan explained. If they purchase a home in any one of Levitt's eight subdivisions, Levitt will arrange for an apartment for the family until the house is available. When they are ready to move, Levitt will pay for the move from the apartment to the new house.

Executives being relocated suffer the same problems as the employee except their concerns about housing are not necessarily the same, Napolitan asserted. Employees usually want to be close to their work, executives need a location that is advantageous to the company's concern.

Executives are faced with the same time element of searching for housing as the average employee. Because of this Levitt meets with personnel managers to understand what their thinking is behind placement of an executive. If necessary, Levitt personnel will meet with the executive before he makes his move to the Chicago area.

Levitt is currently building five subdivisions in the northwest suburbs. They are Strathmore Grove in Buffalo Grove and Sheffield Estates, Sheffield Park, Sheffield Towne and Sheffield Manor all in Schaumburg.

'Money sense' the key to living well

One recurring question I hear after talks is, "How do some people live so well on so few dollars?"

Most families' incomes are poorly kept secrets. So, when one family with a known income travels more, lives in a better house, and enjoys more fun activities, outsiders with similar incomes may figure the first family is living high on credit — or drawing on a rich uncle's legacy. A family might be tapping income from a relative to live better — but living high on credit won't work for long.

More commonly, the difference in living standards results from a more highly developed "money sense."

SOME PEOPLE seem to come by "money sense" naturally. They enjoy a reputation as wily money managers. Others work and fret — yet spend too much on the wrong things at the worst times.

As I define "money sense," it involves management, knowing or learning about values, and making decisions according to some priority system. "Money sense" depends on skills and techniques that may have been unconsciously absorbed from money-wise parents. Or, a person may have deliberately learned and practiced similar skills.

Money management allies closely with "money sense." As I use the term, money management is "a system for getting the most in living values for a family or individual regardless of the level of resources available."

People with "money sense" may spend all of their money and get full value for it. Savers, tight with their spending and with savings accounts, may exhibit poor money sense. So, saving alone doesn't qualify as "money sense."

YOU CAN DEVELOP your "money sense." It is not inherited. Learning about money and how to spend it most effectively calls for an open mind and a willingness to change.

People with "money sense" look beyond the loose change in their pockets. They use a written plan or follow a well-conceived program in their mind. The housewife with "money sense" shops from a list planned ahead to take advantage of plentiful, low-cost foods advertised at special prices. No impulse buying for her! Further, she notes items to be bought at different places and includes those stops while on other errands. No special trips to the store for a quart of milk or loaf of bread!

Men with "money sense" will have noted the competitive locations for gasoline and tires. Rather than make a special trip, they plan ahead to stop when the tank is near empty. A man who passes one location regularly may change cars to drive the one needing a refill to pick up a saving of 10 percent or more.

SCHEDULING PURCHASES of long-life household goods, clothing, tires and appliances during traditional sale periods stretches spending power. When part of a plan, these purchases will be for cash — saved ahead for specific purposes. No time-payment penalties that rob one out of $6.50 or $8! Some stores still offer reduced prices for cash, and the dollar-wise shopper ferrets out these opportunities.

People with money sense look for top dollar value — not price alone. Dollar value may be expressed as minimum cost per unit — lowest cost per month for home heating, lowest cost per wearing for pantyhose, and so on.

But cost per wearing, whether for shirts, pantyhose, or shorts, represents only one important factor. Style, fit, comfort, color, and the cost of maintenance also affect value. A high-priced shirt may be a money-wise choice because value also includes fit and feel — plus a sense of well-being.

"Money sense" frequently involves a selection among alternatives at different prices. Lowest price seldom provides the best value because, near the bottom of the price scale, manufacturers take out value faster than price. A premium price seldom provides additional value to compensate for the added price. Thus, an in-between price frequently affords the best dollar values where goods are subject to wide ranges of prices and qualities.

Heritage Manor opens tomorrow

Heritage Manor in Palatine Township will have its grand opening beginning tomorrow and will display three model homes ranging in price from $28,990 to $32,490.

A bicentennial theme will be featured during the opening, with the model site decorated in bright red, white and blue colors to tie in with the overall Colonial design.

The Manor homes are four- and five-plexes — large homes that look like costly single-family dwellings but consisting of four or five condominium units. The three models on display include a two-bedroom one-bath Colonial with an optional half bath, a three-bedroom one-bath Colonial also with optional half bath, and a two-bedroom one-bath ranch home. Each of the models is furnished differently: Colonial, modern and contemporary.

Every home has central air conditioning, wall-to-wall carpeting and major appliances — refrigerator, oven-range, dishwasher and garbage disposal. Floor plans feature a large L-shaped living and dining room and fully equipped kitchen. Each home also has a garage.

The homes are on a 40-acre site north of Dundee Road (Rte. 68) between Rand Road (Rte. 12) and Expressway 53. A new extension of Baldwin Road from Dundee Road will serve Heritage Manor. Major shopping centers, including Woodfield Mall and Randhurst, are only minutes away.

Heritage Development Corporation, with offices in Oak Brook, is developer of the project. Negotiations in the sale and financing of the project were handled by a local mortgage banking organization, Callaghan and Ross Financial Corporation. David Berger, a resident of Palatine, is project manager of Heritage Manor.

Berger said construction is under way at the development site and 15 or 20 homes will be ready for immediate occupancy when Heritage Manor holds its grand opening. A recreational facility, complete with pool and cabanas, is planned for a July opening.

When the project is completed, according to Berger, there will be 452 homes. He said up to 95 per cent financing is available, which means a family can move into a Manor home for as little as $1,450 in cash.

Every family moving into Heritage Manor automatically becomes a member of the Heritage Manor association, which provides for all exterior painting, lawn care, snow shoveling and other maintenance for a nominal assessment. Membership in the association also provides for full use of recreational facilities.

THE BLAIR HOUSE is one of three models at Heritage Manor in Palatine Township. It is a stately two-story structure styled in the Colonial tradition. Two attached garages are on either side, giving each homeowner indoor parking and storage space. There are four homes in the structure, each with two bedrooms and bath and an optional half bath. Each home is centrally air conditioned and carpeted throughout, except for the kitchen and bath. Oven-range, refrigerator, dishwasher and disposal are included. Heritage homes are just north of Dundee Road between Rand Road and Expressway 53.

Lakeside Villas final phase opens

The final building phase at Lakeside Villas, a $10.3 million townhome community in Wheeling, officially opened recently with three newly designed models announced Albert Zale, president of Zale Construction Company, the developer.

Located on 25 landscaped acres surrounding a sparkling lake, Lakeside Villas currently features a recreation complex and 206 attractive townhomes, only 10 of which remain to be sold. The final phase includes 36 three-bedroom units, priced from $40,800 to $47,400, bringing the development to its full complement of 242 homes.

Purchasing at Lakeside Villas has been made even more attractive thanks to the availability of 30-year, 7 1/2 per cent mortgages. The down payment is as low as 10 per cent and, more important, the developer is absorbing all closing costs.

Lakeside Villas was designed with total family recreation in mind. In addition to the lake, the community includes a spacious but comfortable contemporary-designed clubhouse with resident lounge and card-playing area, a dramatic see-through brick wood-burning fireplace with stone hearth, an intimate conversation nook, fully-equipped kitchen for large parties, game room equipped for billiards and ping pong and men's and women's shower facilities. Outside, surrounded by an expansive deck, is the olympic-sized heated swimming pool and the children's spray pool. Adjacent is a small tot lot.

The final construction phase offers four basic townhome models, all with three bedrooms, one and a half baths and, excluding the garage and full basement which are standard, approximately 1,400 square feet of living space. Exteriors are striking in their California-contemporary design with rough-sawn wood siding and earthenware brick trim. The models include the Palisade, priced from $47,400, the Bayside, from $17,100; the Del Mar, from $46,700; and the Lakeview, from $46,600.

All prices include fully sodded and landscaped lawn areas, attached garage, full basement with laundry tub and sump pump, central air conditioning, wall-to-wall carpeting throughout, storms and screens, full-width, paved driveway, gutters and downspouts, underground utilities, solid 8" sound-control masonry walls between townhomes, wiring for television antenna hook-up and telephone outlets, gas forced-air heating and deluxe hardware and lighting fixtures.

Lakeside Villas' kitchens include ceiling lighting fixtures, an automatic-defrosting refrigerator/freezer in a choice of colors, built-in gas oven and range with exhaust fan and hood in a choice of colors, dishwasher, garbage disposer, Formica countertops in a choice of colors, walnut-tone solid wood cabinets, double stainless steel sink with additional light and single-action faucet control and sprayer, pantry closet, breakfast room and vinyl asbestos floor tiling.

Each Lakeside Villas' bath features an overhead globe light, super-sized mirror with additional make-up lighting, shell-shaped sink with cultured marble vanity top, walnut-tone solid wood vanity, medicine cabinet with louvered door, ceiling-high ceramic tile around bath and tub areas and vinyl asbestos floor tiling.

In addition, the Palisade features a gracious entrance foyer with guest closet and indoor entrance to the garage, powder room 12' by 10' living room, 9' by 10' dining room with insulated sliding-

Caruso: 'Business is good'

"Business is Good!" exclaims a prominent Chicago Real Estate Broker. Richard M. Caruso, president of Rich Port, Realtor, with twenty two offices in Cook, DuPage and Kane Counties, stressed the fact that "we are reporting facts and not making Pollyannaish predictions" in announcing that March is the seventh consecutive month of "strong sales activity and growing momentum."

Says Caruso of his firm's success under a cloud of dismal business headlines, "We feel that the key is not only to growth in today's real estate market, but to survival itself and the ability of both broker and salesperson to adjust to rapidly changing conditions and to fire away at targets of opportunity, no matter how unfamiliar, unappealing or obscure they might seem to an industry grown soft and fat through our years of runaway prosperity."

As an example of changing times, Caruso pointed out that "From July through September, tight money, high interest rates and staggering discount points virtually cut off some sources of mortgage money, so we shifted to creative financing. Today, in the same savings and loan institutions which were bare a few short months ago, there is money readily available now at attractive rates."

"Flexibility is the key" and "education the foundation for a successful sales record in this unpredictable market," says Caruso, who in addition to his corporate administrative duties is a senior instructor for the Realtors National Marketing Institute and lectures on real estate sales and management.

Our heaviest commitment at Rich Port, Realtor, has been and will continue to be training a sales force able to anticipate market changes, adapt to them and turn problems into opportunities. Those Realtors and salespeople willing to do the same will not only survive our nation's present economic crisis, but will also prosper because of their ability to solve their clients problems. Those unwilling to learn new methods and who cannot be flexible enough to adapt to constantly changing conditions, will continue to either suffer financial losses or be driven out of business.

"It's a harsh but unavoidable rule of both business and nature," Caruso comments, "that you either adapt or perish. We are bold enough to predict that the corner has been turned by our company and the same can be done by any firm with a bold, flexible game plan backed by a close, capable, concerned management, nourished by a sound educational program and, above all, staffed by sales personnel willing to work as hard and long as is needed to get the job done."

Caruso, for one, feels that his company has "got it all together" and looks for bigger and better things in the months ahead.

Garden apartments popular

"Rental garden apartments are a lifeline for many individuals who are not yet prepared to buy a home."

So observes Marshall C. Dennison, president and chief executive officer of Associated Mortgage Companies, Philadelphia-based national real estate financing and servicing organization.

Garden or mid-rise apartments are growing in popularity with young couples with children.

"Hard pressed by inflation and economic uncertainties, many are postponing home ownership and seeking rental dwellings," Dennison notes.

"Although these mini-neighborhoods particularly attract young people, their popularity is not in fact based on any single group."

Reasons vary for rarely seeing a vacancy sign posted at a garden apartment development, "but high on the list of explanations is sociability," he says.

Dennison adds that "low, clustered units automatically bring people closer together — a feeling of relating and neighborliness prevails. Making new friends becomes easier."

"Those who have previously lived in high-rise apartment houses, sometimes not even knowing the name of the occupant next door, enjoy the sense of community," he continues.

Many of the garden complexes boast amenities impossible to find in super-structured city buildings — winding footpaths, dog walking areas, and common recreational facilities.

"Another prime attraction of the cluster developments is their back-to-nature aspects. Landscaping and greenery — flower and even vegetable gardens — and patio living enchant the residents," Dennison points out.

The "ledge set," however, will always remain with us, he notes.

"Landlords report a never-constant demand for their high-rise apartments."

"Walking to work is often cited as a major reason for the choice of a sophisticated modern downtown building," he says.

"Whatever the style, rental dwellings virtually everywhere are gaining in popularity," Dennison concludes.

Jo Zanie named property manager

Roberta Prosek

Jo Zanie has been appointed property manager of Versailles-on-the-Lake luxury apartment developments in Oak Brook Terrace and Schaumburg. Formerly the resident manager of Versailles-on-the-Lake, Oak Brook Terrace, Miss Zanie will now supervise the rentals for both complexes.

Miss Zanie is a recipient of the National Association of Home Builders' Sales and Marketing Council Citation, admitting her to the SMC Million Dollar Circle. She received an award and trophy for "Outstanding Achievement in Resident Relations" in 1972, and is a member of the National Federation of Women's Clubs, Inc.

Originally from Creve Coeur, Mo., Miss Zanie was the resident manager of Charter Oaks, a luxury apartment development in the St. Louis area, where she supervised all phases of the community's operations and services.

The Versailles-on-the-Lake developments, both located near suburban shopping centers, feature a formal garden atmosphere and French Provincial architecture that blends with elaborate landscape detail surrounding quiet, picturesque lakes. Recreational facilities at the Versailles-on-the-Lake complexes rival those of many private country clubs. Apartment rentals range from $230 to $430 per month, with heating, air-conditioning, appliances and indoor, underground parking included. Models are open daily and Sunday.

Elderly population affects housing

"Recent increases in the elderly population are having a discernible impact on housing choice trends — both sales and rentals — nationwide."

So observes Marshall C. Dennison, president and chief executive officer of Associated Mortgage Companies, Inc., a Philadelphia-based national real estate and financing organization.

Dennison notes that the number of Americans 65 and over has increased by 186,000 in the past year.

"On a regional basis," he adds, "these increases were felt most dramatically in the South and West, regions now registering heavy real estate development."

According to Dennison, the growing adult market is causing many builders to concentrate on producing smaller residential units while maintaining a high-quality level of construction.

"Designing for the adult market," Dennison observes, "means giving the buyer or renter the best things he had before, but on a spatially restricted scale."

He sees a great challenge involved in fulfilling the needs of this market — builders and lenders must work to produce housing which provides leisure and living flexibility.

Some of the immediate concerns of the empty-nester include:

A minimal amount of maintenance work all-round. Not only should there be little lawn care and snow removal worries, but floors and cabinets should be easy to care for.

Maximal privacy and security are prime purchase and rental motivators. Patios and balconies are popular with this set.

Floor plans adhering to a one-bedroom plus convertible den theme are fast movers. Master bedrooms with dressing-bath facilities and ample walk-in closet space are sure to please as well.

Entertainment rooms — living-rooms and dining areas — should be large enough to accommodate all size furniture. Wall space is an important feature as well.

Step-saving kitchens are always popular. Seating space in the kitchen is an appealing dividend for this age group also.

"In general," Dennison concludes, "the empty-nester is seeking a chance to customize his own tastes, in less space than he may have once had."

"The 65-and-over group's interest in top quality housing — for purchase or rent purposes — is contributing to a nationwide rebounding of our industry."

Early detection, planning are keys to fire safety

An early fire warning detector by itself cannot protect your family and home. The next step is up to you. Plan with your family for a safe escape, says University of Illinois Extension safety specialist Ordle Hogsett.

According to Hogsett, panic and a decreased oxygen supply handicap your ability to think clearly in a fire emergency. And since 75 per cent of home fires occur between 9 p.m. and 6 a.m., the sudden awakening can add to the confusion, he adds.

In order to avoid tragic mistakes, Hogsett urges careful escape planning and rehearsing of that plan. He suggests that a rehearsed plan will help overcome the instinctive urge to blindly rush to the children's rooms the quickest way — through the bedroom door. This impulsive act could result in death for everyone.

Fire takes 10 to 15 minutes to burn through a wooden door. Smoke and toxic fumes are also held back by a closed door. Since halls and stairwells act as chimneys, keeping the bedroom doors closed at night can be an effective practice in preventing death from fire.

If you are awakened by a fire detector or the smell of smoke, place your hand high against the closed bedroom door. If it is hot, don't open it. The hall outside will be a deadly trap of hot air and gas. Use an alternate route to reach the children's room. If the door doesn't feel hot, brace your body against it and open it a crack. Shut it quickly if heat or heavy smoke seeps through the crack.

Hogsett lists these steps to help you plan a safe escape from fire:

Install an alarm system — preferably one or more of the sensitive and economical smoke detectors.

Rehearse escape plans with every member of the family. Assign family members to help young children and elderly members of the household.

Keep all bedroom doors closed at night. And teach children not to open the door if it is hot to touch.

Decide on a warning signal and make it known to every family member.

Locate a meeting place outside the house. Instruct family members to stay at the meeting place until all members can be accounted for — then call the fire department. Be sure everyone understands the rule, "once out, stay out."

Keep a ladder handy. Fire escape ladders are also available and can be easily stored in upstairs bedrooms. Practice using the ladder.

Practice crawling close to the floor where breathing is easier.

Stage a fire drill at least twice a year — and at least once at night.

RNMI offers sales course

Sales 101, flagship of the new RNMI Sales Series, will be presented in Joliet at the Sheraton Motor Inn, April 24-25.

Sales 101, "Sales Leadership Through Personal Growth" reaches out to study the core of human behavior as it relates to salesmanship by providing insight to develop the potential of the professional salesperson. Coordinated lecture, discussion, reading and class participation emphasize not only an understanding of behavior theory but the ability to apply these principles to the real buyers and sellers who confront the salesperson when he returns to the office.

Open to all Realtors and Realtor-Associates as well as other interested parties, successful completion of Sales 101 will be credited toward an eventual RNMI designation in the area of professional salesmanship. The tuition is: $60 for RNMI members, $75 for Realtors and Realtor-Associates, and $100 for others. Registration may be made through the RNMI Department of Logistics, 155 E. Superior St., Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Sales 101 is one of many educational opportunities offered by Realtors National Marketing Institute. With more than 33,000 members, RNMI is the largest professional organization affiliated with the National Association of Realtors and acts as its educational and marketing arm for Realtors and Realtor-Associates. In addition to courses, RNMI sponsors an on-going program of periodicals, texts, sales aids and audio-visual programs for Realtor-members and the public interested in real estate brokerage.

YOU'LL LOVE THE CONVENIENCE . . .

Walking distance to commuter train, shopping and schools.

There is an air of gracious formality in the carpeted living room created by wall fixtures and chandelier. You can view the well landscaped backyard thru the windows in the bright, modern dining room.

The three good sized bedrooms are grouped around a center hall for a most efficient traffic pattern. There is a vanity in the upstairs bath; a glass shower enclosure in the bath off the family room.

The kitchen with the "L" shaped cabinets and reversible doors is an eyecatcher. There are built-in appliances, a pantry, and provides a very nice dining area.

The completely paneled family room is a favorite spot for family fun and informal entertaining. Wash day is no problem in the bright utility room.

This home also offers central air conditioning, water softener, drapes, curtains, carpeting, humidifier. There is a 20'x15' patio in the backyard that overlooks a park.

A true approach to modern living, this brick & vinyl split-level home is in superb condition.

Let us show you the details that make this house such a value. You may have immediate possession.

'Very favorably impressed'

Open champ visits Medinah

What would you expect a pro golfer to say after shooting 15 pars and eight birdies on his first try at Medinah Country Club?

And since he's the present United States Open champion, what do you think his comments might be after firing a 68 over one of the nation's best courses even though he didn't even hit some warmup balls?

How about: "Medinah's okay, but Winged Foot was much tougher."

Or: "It's not bad for an old course, but Oak Brook's Butler National is much more challenging."

Hale Irwin said neither. Instead, he spoke in glowing terms for the 50-year-old emerald of the Midwest.

"I think it's a great golf course," said the 29-year-old budding star of the famed No. 3 course after his Tuesday round. "I was very favorably impressed."

"There are some fantastic holes. In general, the five pars are very good. The three pars can hold their own with any. I think there are some very severe, hard holes — 4, 12 and 16. But I just want to emphasize that it is in no way, shape or form what we'll see in June."

That last sentence helps explain Irwin's sparkling 68. The greens were soft, the giant trees that cover the course were without leaves, no fabled "U.S. Open rough" boarded the fairways, there was no Open pressure and he never needed his sand wedge.

"I hit the ball pretty good today," Hale said, displaying the humility that is often times lacking among highly paid pro athletes. "I hate to play without warming up. It's a good way to pull a muscle, but that's the way we had to play it today."

Paul Logan

Associate Sports Editor

Hale flew into Chicago Tuesday for a press conference. It's traditional for the U.S. Open champion to come to the hosting course about this time every year to help boost interest in the upcoming golf spectacular (June 19-22).

He came from the Masters Tournament where he capped a fine fourth-place finish with a fabulous 64 to tie a course record. So his 68 on the "Medinah Monster" wasn't too surprising.

But who really is this defending U.S. Open champion? Ask around your office or neighborhood: "Who's Hale Irwin?" The answer most of the time might be: "Give me some clues."

Those who follow golf will tell you this former national collegiate champion is destined to be more than a fluke Open winner like Orville Moody was back in 1969. He's building a reputation for playing his best on the most challenging courses.

Besides Winged Foot, his other two conquests in eight four years have come at super tough Harbour Town Golf Links, designed by Jack Nicklaus. He finished fourth at the last two Masters.

"I'd love to go right on winning and go unnoticed," said Hale, whose ranking among the all-time money winners is a very noticeable 30th or $630,000.

Those who follow the tour will tell you this all-around athlete (a two-time All-Big Eight safety for Colorado) has undergone a personality change since last June's Open title. He's more outgoing as this quip indicates:

"Jack's (Nicklaus) 14 major tournaments up on me... Three or four grand slams and I could catch him in five years."

He was referring to what he, Nicklaus and many others consider possible for Jack, but not probable — winning all four major championships in one year, namely the Masters, U.S. and British Opens and the PGA. Since Nicklaus already has the Masters title, the Open becomes all the more attractive as golf's Superduper Star makes his near impossible attempt.

Chances are Nicklaus will pass up the Western Open, which follows the U.S. Open. This PGA rarity — back-to-back tour events in the same area — could hurt the Western. Other big names like Trevino, Player, Palmer and Weiskopf might also take a vacation that week.

"I personally think it won't hurt," said Hale, who plans to play in both. "There is an advantage — players can come for two weeks."

The disadvantage that may outweigh Hale's optimism is the fact that his pair of killer courses might be too much for the pros' fragile egos.

"These people loved to watch us hacking around," he recalled from last year's Butler where the winning score was three-over-par. "They went in droves to see us hack and sloop it around over there."

"Par becomes such a meaningless thing nowadays. But for three weeks (last year three straight tournaments had over-par winning scores) par could have won all three. We get upset when we don't make birdies."

"I look at it as kind of a challenge. If you don't do well, go back."

Hale has an intensity that all champions have. His game has shown improvement every year he's played. This year "I've been knocking on the door," he said of his near misses. In 11 starts, he's finished in the top 10 six times.

"I'm probably a little ahead of the game," he added of his money winning pace ($152,529) last year.

The 1974 United States Open champ is also among the leaders in class.

Bulls take 2-1 series advantage

Bob Love scored 31 points and Tom Boerwinkle grabbed 24 rebounds Wednesday night to lead Chicago to a 93-90 win over the Kansas City-Omaha Kings, giving the Bulls a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven National Basketball Association playoff series.

The Kings led only five times, never by more than three points and never after the final seven seconds of the first period. But they didn't allow the Bulls to wrap it up until the final horn. Chicago's best lead in the first half was only six points. In the third period, the Bulls rolled in eight straight points for an 11-point lead, but the Kings countered with an eight-point spurt of their own to close in again.

In the fourth period, the Bulls scored 13 of the first 15 points to grab a 16-point advantage, but the Kings scored the last eight points of the game in the final 1:59 to come close to forcing an overtime.

Rebounding was a major factor in the Bulls' triumph as they grabbed 58, compared to 46 for the Kings. Norm Van Lier, though he scored only eight points, held Nate Archibald to 18 points and limited his assists as well to stymie the Kings' attack.

Archibald led the Kings in scoring, however, and Ollie Johnson netted 15 points for second-high honors for Kansas City-Omaha. Jerry Sloan scored 18 for the Bulls.

The fourth game of the series will be played in Kansas City Friday night, with the fifth contest scheduled on national television Sunday afternoon in Chicago.

Cubs slug Phillies, 9-3...

Manny Trillo belted a three-run homer to highlight a five-run first inning Wednesday night and the Chicago Cubs went on to defeat the Philadelphia Phillies 9-3 behind the six-hit pitching of Bill Bonham at Philadelphia. Bill Madlock and Rick Monday banded out three hits each to lead a 14-hit Cub attack against loser Steve Carlton and three Phils' relievers. Carlton, now 0-2, left with none out in the third inning.

Don Kessinger opened the game with a triple and, after Jose Cardenal grounded out, the Cubs put together five straight hits. Trillo capped the inning with his first major league home run, after singles by Madlock, Jerry Morales, George Mitterwald and Monday. Monday doubled home a run in the third and consecutive singles by Madlock, Morales, Mitterwald and Monday made it 8-0 in the fifth. The Cubs added an unearned run in the sixth when Cardenal doubled and crossed on a passed ball.

Philadelphia scored a pair of unearned runs off Bonham, 1-0, in the eighth. Alan Bannister was safe on an error by Trillo, Jim Essian walked, and Dave Cash was safe on Kessinger's error. Groundouts by Larry Bowa and Willie Montanez brought in the runs.

... Sox slugged by Rangers, 14-4

Rookie left-hander Jim Umberger, taking over from starter Jim Bibby with only one out in the first inning, shut out the Chicago White Sox on five hits in 7 2/3 innings to pitch the Texas Rangers to a 14-4 win at White Sox Park Wednesday.

The Sox climbed on Bibby for two walks, a single and an error and Carlos Mays' three-run triple for all their runs before Umberger was summoned from the bullpen. Jim Merritt hurled the last inning.

Jeff Burroughs rapped a two-run homer off loser (0-3) Wilbur Wood to start the Rangers to a five-run third inning which put them in front to stay. The Rangers added four more runs in the seventh.

3 MSC teams set girls' marks in track openers

Three Mid-Suburban Conference track and field records were established and another was broken during the first day's action in the 1975 season.

Competing in Tuesday's season openers, girls from Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Conant made their marks.

Although Conant lost its dual meet with hosting Forest View 70-60, the Cougars' shot putter — Mary Ann Johnson — smashed the MSC mark with a toss of 40-1 1/2. Johnson, who is the defending state champion, broke her old mark by 2 1/2 inches.

Schaumburg, which hosted a double dual meet, split with its two competitors — beating Prospect 79-53 and losing to Arlington 72-60. Schaumburg Saxon girls established marks in two new events — the two-mile run and the mile relay.

Leticia Rodriguez won the two mile in 13:12.4. She also captured the mile in 6:19.2.

Posting the best mile relay time among the 13 teams in action was the Saxon relay team of Debbie Reimer, Barb Kenly, Amy Taylor and Carla Seltzer in 4:38.8.

Despite losing to Arlington 83-49, Prospect's Cindi Devero nearly proved to be a one-woman team. Devero captured three individual events and was a member of the winning Knight relay team.

She took the 110-yard hurdles (16.1), the long jump (16-3), 50-yard dash (8.7) and joined three other teammates to take the 440-yard relay (53.5).

Hoffman Estates suffered a pair of dual meet losses — 89-37 to Wheeling and 70-54 to Buffalo Grove. However, Laura Buddenbaum posted the best time in the other new league event — the 110-yard hurdles — with a 16.0.

Hersey also dropped a pair of meets — 78-54 to Rolling Meadows and 70-62 to Palatine. Again, the losing Huskies had the most unusual happening — teammates having identical times in two events!

Hersey's Kathy Frankiewicz ran a 17.0 in the 110-yard hurdles to nip teammate Sheri Kostelny, who also had a 17.0. In the 80-yard hurdles, however, Kostelny took first as both had 12.3 clockings.

Other duels had Fremd over Elk Grove 109-21, Wheeling over Buffalo Grove 69-60 and Rolling Meadows over Palatine 76-56. No highlights were turned in on those meets.

Five teams will be hosting meets this afternoon, beginning at 4:30 — Schaumburg and Forest View at Palatine, Arlington and Conant at Hersey, Wheeling and Rolling Meadows at Fremd, Hoffman Estates at Prospect and Buffalo Grove at Elk Grove.

First indoor tennis practice facility now under construction

Construction is under way on the nation's first indoor tennis practice facility, adjacent to River Trails Tennis Center on Malmoe Drive just east of the United Air Lines Training Center on the south side of Mount Prospect.

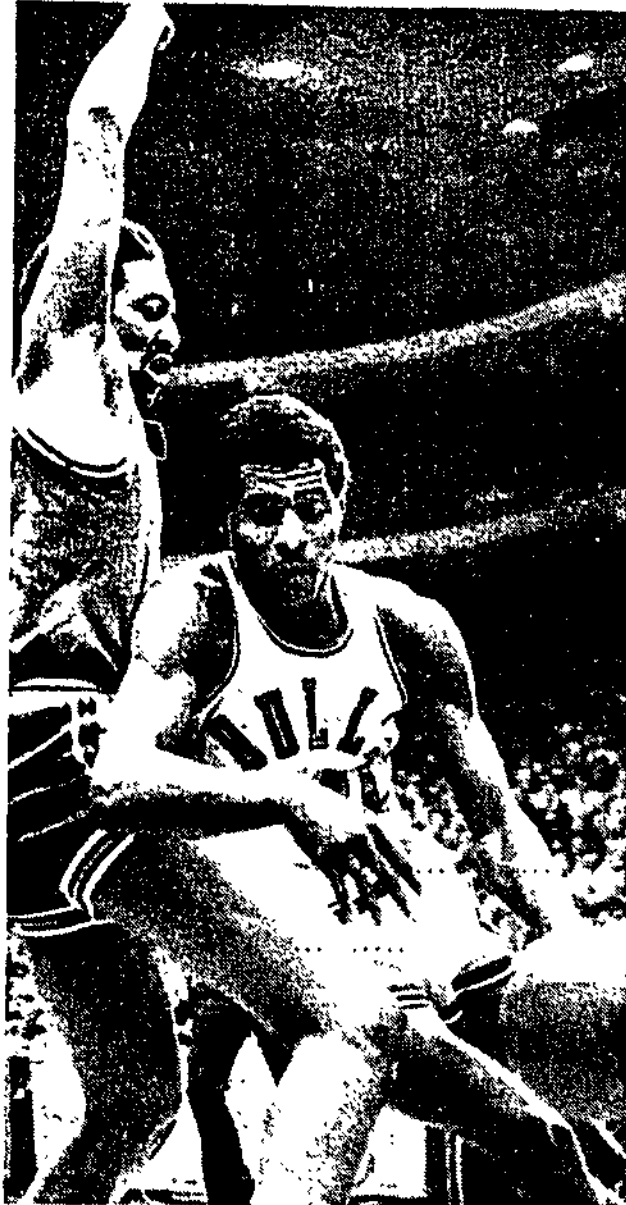

The practice facility will have eight 14-foot lanes, each the length of a tennis court. Ball machines will fire several hundred balls per hour, permitting players to practice all tennis strokes, including serves and serve returns.

Owner-operator is Ann K. Workman, current manager of River Trails Tennis Center, who will retain her position there. "This new facility will enable players of all levels to improve their strokes and also to 'warm up' before league or tournament matches and be ready to play their best game as soon as they step onto the court — without the normal warmup time needed," Mrs. Workman said.

The facility, open to the public, will feature the latest in lighting, full-length nets between courts and complete backdrops surrounding the courts. There also will be a lounge with seating, television and refreshments.

Tennis lessons, group and individual will be offered. Court time will be valuable on a permanent or "walk-on" basis.

BULL FORWARD BOB LOVE drives past KC-Omaha's Ron Bhaghen en route to two of his game-high 31 points. Chicago won.

Al Newman

Back-to-back home runs by Al Newman and Joe Ramirez highlighted a big sixth inning Wheeling rally that broke up Mitch Gullett's no-hitter and propelled the hosting Wildcats past Fremd 6-1.

Gullett breezed into the sixth nursing a 1-0 lead and had struck out seven while scattering a pair of walks. Steve Rymer triggered the 'Cat ambush by slamming a double off the fence to lead off the inning and then scoring when Bob Terberry's sacrifice bunt was misplayed.

That brought up Newman, who promptly parked one in the parking lot behind left field 350 feet way to put the hosts up 3-1. Ramirez followed suit with one over the right field wall, chasing Gullett to the showers.

Wheeling hurler Keith Pecca went the distance to pick up the winning decision in the season opener for both sides. Gullett scored the only run off him when he doubled to lead off the fifth, advanced on a ground out and then came on a fielder's choice off the bat of Matt Fox.

Pecca fanned seven and walked two. The only other hits off him were a one-out single by Fox in the second and a safety by Scott Orbin in the fourth.

Harper wins four over weekend

Harper swept a pair of doubleheaders from Kennedy-King and McHenry over the weekend to run their season record to 6-1.

The Hawks started the weekend Saturday with two against Kennedy-King and won a pair of 1-0 and 1-1.

Supported by 18 hits over the two games, Harper's Gary Gustafson and Tim Domek fashioned the easy wins as Kennedy-King's pitchers had severe control problems. In the first game alone, the Statesmen hurlers walked 24 Harper batters.

Sunday Harper finally played their conference opener against McHenry. Dave Patterson picked up an easy 12-1 decision as all but two Harper batters picked up hits. Pat Broderick led the attack with a 3-for-3 game that included two stolen bases.

Harper completed the weekend sweep as Kelth Abraham threw a three hitter for a 4-1 win. Dave Zaro and Joe Di-maggio each went 2-for-3 for the Hawks,

ANDERSON SHARP

Bill Anderson hurled a nifty two-hitter as Conant turned back Palatine, 4-2, in the baseball opener for both Mid-Suburban League teams.

Anderson, the veteran Cougar right-hander, overcame an early streak of wildness and a fielding lapse by his teammates to post the victory on Conant's home field. He fanned seven, walked three, and hit a batter.

Two of those walks came in the first inning when a Palatine double steal attempt resulted in two Conant errors and a pair of Pirate runs without the benefit of a base hit.

Palatine starting pitcher Bob Baues was sharp in the early innings, striking out the first two Cougars to face him. The Pirate lefty walked Mark Pellegrino with one out in the third, however, and after a single by Jimmy Cole and another walk to Jim Stump, Baues issued a base on balls to Jeff Johnson, forcing in a run.

More wildness cost Palatine the ball game in the fourth. Baues passed Dan Neswold and Anderson, who both scored a moment later on throwing errors after Joe Calomino put down a perfect sacrifice bunt. Pellegrino followed with a line double into left-center, driving in Calomino, but Pellegrino was out trying for third. Greg Meyer to Garth Chase to Jim Herbat.

Meanwhile, Anderson called along, getting the Pirates in order in the third and fourth. He didn't allow a hit until, with two out in the fifth, Lon Snyder punched a line-drive single to left. A moment later, with the tying runs at second and third, Anderson bore down and got Meyer on strikes.

The only other hit off Anderson was a leadoff single by Chris Burrus in the sixth. Burrus was then caught stealing. Marty Laquet paced the Cougar attack with two singles in four at-bats.

Art Stevenson pitched 2 2/3 innings of scoreless relief for Palatine.

Right mixture could bring Bison victories

by KEITH HEINHARD

A combination of old and new items is on the horizon for Buffalo Grove's baseball team this spring.

By mixing them together, coach Fred Van Ilen is optimistic over the Bison chances of a successful season in 1975.

The word "old" may be somewhat of a misnomer when speaking in terms of players, but Van Ilen welcomed virtually his entire team back into camp for the new year. It was the result of having a seniorless school last spring when the Bison embarked on their first varsity campaign.

While the team has a veteran tinge to it though, there is a lot of newness about: A new field to play on, a new division to compete in, and a brand new outlook . . . in a very upwardly direction.

"Up" is actually the only way Buffalo Grove can go. In 1974 they placed last in the South Division of the Mid-Suburban League with a 3-11 mark. They have moved to the North circuit now and after playing all games on the road last season will have a field to call their own this season.

And as for forecasts, Van Ilen pointed out, "Our win-loss record wasn't much to boast about last year but it really didn't tell the whole story either. We lost a lot of close games despite our inexperience and we improved noticeably as the season wore on."

"I'll be disappointed if we don't show a great deal of improvement this season," he added.

As Van Ilen and company prepare for a hectic week of competition (they were scheduled to open at Fremd Wednesday, have road games set for Arlington today and Rolling Meadows Saturday with a home opener against Conant sandwiched in Friday), the starting lineup is pretty well firm. Tony Spinnelle, the loop's top home run hitter last spring and a .300 batter, will be back at catcher and Dave Derrig, Mike Ledna and Ken Corchin are ready to pick right back up where they left off at second, short and third respectively.

Mark Dentler will patrol right field and John Arendall will be back in center.

For pitching the coach has his ace, Dave Smithern, back in the fold along with another veteran, Tim Tatge, and Rick Brinsmade, who was sidelined all of last season with a broken arm. Tatge is the only lefty on the staff.

"These three will probably share most of the pitching duties," the coach pointed out. "They all have excellent arms and their abilities are pretty comparable."

Smithern will be at first base when he isn't pitching. Otherwise that assignment will be given to another vet, Fred Leckie. Rounding out the roster are infielders Brian Brown, Pat Fleckie and Rich Wilhelm, outfielders Mike Kelley and Don Soulie, catcher Ron Riba and twirlers Tim Connolly and Scott Michaelson.

While this group can be considered an experienced team now, youth is more the rule than the exception. Only Arendall, Corchin, Kelley, Leckie, Michaelson, Smithern, Spinnelle and Tatge are seniors.

Ledna is only a sophomore, although he did gain varsity experience at the end of last season as a freshman, hitting .444 in three games.

Dentler, meanwhile, as a sophomore last year, played regularly all season and finished as a .244 hitter.

"We should be sound defensively and I'm confident that our pitching is strong and deep enough to hold up," Van Ilen summarized. "Hitting is the big question mark. We just haven't had any opportunity to work on it this spring because of some facility problems and the bad weather."

The coach himself will be out of action for a few days soon. He is going into the hospital for knee surgery this weekend and Bill Wurl will run the team in his absence.

Arlington, Prospect tune up at 5-0

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Tennis Editor

Arlington tuned up for their dual meet with Prospect today with a 5-0 whitewash of Wheeling Tuesday.

The Cardinals cut through the Wildcats without being forced to more than two sets in any match. Paul Wei led Arlington at No. 1 singles with a 6-0, 6-0 decision of Mike McMahon. John Wallner, at No. 3 singles, and Todd Van Gorp and Cary Howes a No. 2 doubles also won their matches by 6-0, 6-0 scores.

Prospect did some tuning up of their own with a 5-0 waltz past Lake Zurich. The Knights slashed through the Bears without being forced beyond two sets in any match, also. The No. 1 doubles team of Dave Hugheson and Gary Thomas won with a 6-0, 6-0 count.

St. Vitor received strong showings from their first two singles men and went on to beat St. Francis 4-1. Jeff Davenport, in the No. 1 singles spot, and Tom Wenzel right behind him, posted two set victories to push the Lions off in the right direction.

Junior Greg Zydak, who qualified for the state tournament as a freshman and sophomore and figures to be there again this year, turned back Palatine's Dana Morganroth 6-4, 6-0 to set up a 4-1 victory for Elmwood Park.

The Pirates' only point came at No. 2 doubles where Ken Kohl and Bob Day pushed aside Paul Solya and Phil Nilger 7-5, 6-0.

Orson Faynor and Bob Schuckles won single matches for Conant but that was all the Cougars could accomplish as they fell to Maine North 3-2 Tuesday.

Forest View took the three singles matches to clinch a 4-1 MSL victory over Rolling Meadows Tuesday. Bob Herman and Greg Ilan at No. 1 doubles captured the Mustangs' only point with a 6-2, 5-7, 7-6 win.

Evanston's Page soars in high jump

by ART MUGALIAN
Track and Field Editor

Nat Page came to Hersey High School Tuesday, quietly set some records, and returned to Evanston.

The talented and versatile Evanston Wildcat track star shattered or equalled three Hersey track records and tied an all-time Illinois mark in the high jump as Evanston dumped Hersey, 119-22, in a dual meet.

Page tied the track record in the 120-yard high hurdles with a :14.9, better than the state-qualifying time by one-tenth of a second. Then he popped a 44-6 in the triple jump, which was a Huskie course record, though still almost two feet under Page's best mark this season.

But Page saved his best effort for the high jump. The meet nearly came to a standstill as Page, after clearing 6-10½, prepared to make an attempt at 7 feet, one-half inch, which would have been the best ever in the state. He missed in his first and only attempt and decided to get ready for his leg of the mile relay.

Still, Page's 6-10½ jump, as measured, tied his own Illinois record established last year in the state meet and equalled by him earlier this season indoors.

Hersey's Jim DiLenge showed courage by competing in the long jump and the triple jump with his arm in a cast. DiLenge, who broke his arm in a hurdles mishap last week, turned in outstanding distances of 20-4 in the long jump and 41-6 in the triple.

SEVERAL EXCELLENT times were registered in the first track meet ever at Hoffman Estates High School Tuesday as Fremd won with 66 points, just edging Glenbard South (63) and Hoffman (49).

Pacing the victorious Vikings was Paul Kinyon, who raced to a superb double, winning the 800 in 2:01.1 and the mile in 4:28.7, the best mile time in the area this season. Kinyon beat Hoffman's Ed Elliott (2:10.6) and Sam Cox (4:30).

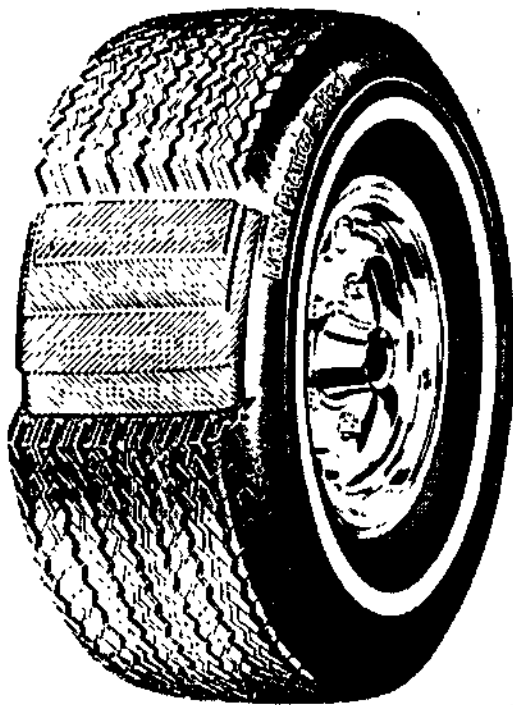

Wil Fieldhouse of Fremd clocked 9:36 in the two-mile, 10 seconds ahead of sophomore mate John Filosa. Another Vike, senior Dave Scott, was third in the mile in 4:34.

Another double winner for Fremd was weighman Rich Sharpe with a 54-4 shot-put effort and 121-2 in the discus. Other Fremd winners were Lawson England in the long jump (18-9) and the mile relay team (3:37).

Hoffman got a pair of wins from Bill DiPuma in the 100 (10.4) and the triple jump (39-10). He was also second in the 220 (23.0). Hawk Dave Lipko was second in both hurdles races (15.8 and 41.3).

CONANT BATTLED a strong Lake Park squad right down to the final few events, but lost, 75-64, Tuesday at Conant. Leading the Cougars was freshman sprinter Mike Walston, who clocked 153.0 in the 440 and 10:17 in the 100-yard dash to win both races.

Conant also got impressive wins from two-miler Mark Kaufman (10:04), discus-thrower Rich Hehringer (142-11), and the 410 and mile relay squads, which turned in times of 4:53.9 and 3:35.6.

Howard E. Crouch, founder and president of the Damien-Dutton Society for Leprosy Aid, will receive the 1975 Modern Samaritan Award from the Alexian Brothers.

The bronze medallion will be presented May 2 at the fifth annual dinner-dance sponsored by the Alexian Associates for Community Health for the building fund of the Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

The dinner-dance will be at the Itasca Country Club near Wood Dale. Tickets are available at $75 a couple and reservations, which are required, may be made by calling the public relations office at 437-5500 ext. 451.

Turkey in the spring

Finally it is spring and time for celebration. A golden-brown roast turkey can enhance the occasion. Add a simple garnish of bright green watercress and fresh lemon twists for a colorful, spring-like platter to grace your table. Turkey is a fine choice for a company meal as everyone likes it, it is rich in nutrition and a good buy this time of year. If you are calorie conscious a 3 1/2 ounce serving of white meat contains just 174 calories.

When buying the turkey, allow 1 1/2 pounds per person. This buying guide will give you generous servings and enough left for a second day dish.

By roasting the turkey unstuffed, you can save preparation time as well as roasting time. The total recommended roasting time may be reduced 1/2 hour to 1 hour. Since stuffing just goes with turkey you can bake the stuffing casserole or mold along with the turkey. Easier yet, cook it on top of the range. For a change try this rice stuffing containing chopped spinach, celery and hardcooked eggs.

A unique spring dessert for the occasion is Orange Meringue Pie. This is a new version of the favorite lemon meringue pie.

TO THAW.

Place turkey in original bag on tray in refrigerator. Allow 2 days for 8 to 12 pound bird, 2 to 3 days for 12 to 16 pound bird, 3 to 4 days for 16 to 24 pound bird. Refreezing is not recommended.

TO PREPARE:

1. Free legs and tail from tucked position, remove neck from body cavity and giblets from neck cavity.
2. Simmer giblets in salted water, about 1/2 hour for liver and 2 to 2 1/2 hours for neck, heart and gizzard. Chop and use in gravy or stuffing.
3. Rinse and drain turkey.
4. Return tail and legs to tucked position. Skewer neck skin to back.
5. Insert meat thermometer into center of thigh next to body not touching bone.
6. Place turkey, breast side up on cord lifter and bring ends up over legs and breast. Lift onto rack in shallow, open pan. Do not add water or cover. Use following time chart.

APPROXIMATE ROASTING TIME— UNCOVERED PAN

Weight as Purchased	325-degree Oven
8 to 12 pounds	3 to 3 1/2 hours
12 to 16 pounds	3 1/2 to 4 hours
16 to 20 pounds	4 to 4 1/2 hours
20 to 24 pounds	4 1/2 to 5 1/2 hours

(If turkey is stuffed, increase cooking time 1/2 to 1 hour.)

7. Brush skin with melted fat to prevent drying. No need to baste during cooking.
8. When light golden brown, shield breast and neck with lightweight aluminum foil to prevent overbrowning. During last hour of cooking, check for doneness.

TO TEST FOR DONENESS

1. Before removing from oven, check to be sure meat thermometer is in original position. Thigh temperature should be 180 to 185 degrees.
2. Protect fingers with paper. Press thigh and drumstick. Meat should feel soft.
3. Prick skin at thigh. Juices should no longer be pink.

Top of Range Rice Stuffing

- 1 1/2 cups converted long grain rice
- 3 1/2 cups water
- 4 chicken bouillon cubes
- 10 ounce package frozen chopped spinach
- 1 cup chopped celery
- 3 hard-cooked eggs

In a large saucepan, bring water, bouillon and spinach to a boil. Add rice, stir and simmer covered 20 minutes. Blend in celery and simmer an additional 5 minutes uncovered, until liquid is absorbed. Separate yolks and whites of eggs. Chop whites and add to rice mixture. Toss together and serve. (If desired, rice stuffing can be packed into a ring mold or bundt pan. Cover and place mold in a pan of hot water until serving time. Turn out onto warm platter.) Sieve remaining egg yolks. Sprinkle over casserole or mold. Yield: 10 servings.

Quick 'n Easy French Dressing

- 1 cup oil
- 1/2 cup vinegar or lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon paprika

Combine sugar, cornstarch, salt and grated orange peel in a saucepan. Gradually add, stirring constantly, orange juice, egg yolks and lemon juice. Blend until smooth. Bring to a boil over medium heat stirring constantly; boil 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Add butter and blend until melted. Add food coloring, if desired for orange color appearance. Let cool while preparing meringue. Pour into 9-inch baked pie shell. Top with meringue, sealing edges well. Bake at 350 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes or until golden brown. Cool on wire rack. Yield: 9-inch pie.

*Meringue

- 4 egg whites
- 1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
- 1/2 cup sugar

For best results have egg whites at room temperature. In a small mixer bowl, beat egg whites until frothy. Add cream of tartar and beat at high speed. Very gradually add sugar, and continue beating until egg whites are stiff, but not dry.

Cooking for 48 years

by LOIS SEILER

The pride of retired chef Peter Heitkotter is his Short Ribs of Beef Supreme. The Buffalo Grove resident has had 48 years of experience working in some of the finest kitchens in Germany and the United States. Short ribs are one of his favored recipes — tender and tasty with a savory gravy.

As a chef, Peter learned to take short cuts without sacrificing flavor. The recipe for short ribs has been reduced to family size portions that guarantee a perfect dish.

After browning, the ribs are simmered in leek soup with onion. Wine and horseradish are used to season the gravy, which is thickened with cornstarch.

"IF COOKED CORRECTLY, the bone should fall away from the meat when touched with a fork," Peter said. He recommends serving the short ribs with baked potatoes.

Peter began his training in Germany after World War II, serving, as he puts it, as a "funke" to a chef for three years. He then came to the United States and one of his first jobs in Chicago was assistant soup cook at the Drake Hotel. Progressing through the various departments, he learned to handle cold meats, make sauces and gravies, broil meat properly — at all times observing the French chefs and learning their secrets.

In 1926, Peter was able to send for his fiancée, Anna, in Germany, and they were married. They will be celebrating their 49th anniversary this year, and have two married sons.

"It takes about 10- to 12 years to become a real chef," Peter explained. After a long period of internship, he served as chef at such notable establishments as Maurice's, The Golden Ox, which serves authentic German dishes, and the Sherry Hotel. At the hotel, Peter regularly supervised banquets for 300 to 400 persons, also serving as wine steward. Before retiring five years ago, he was executive chef for the executive dining room at Abbott Laboratories.

ANOTHER OF PETER'S popular specialties is elegant Stuffed Breast of Chicken Rockefeller. This is made with boneless chicken breasts stuffed with a spinach filling, browned in the oven and baked in mushroom soup. A few ounces of vermouth improve the flavor of the mushroom gravy, and asparagus spears are served on the side.

A fresh spinach salad makes an excellent accompaniment. Peter combines bean sprouts, chopped egg and croutons with the spinach, tossing all with a tasty dressing. Crisp bacon bits are sprinkled on top. According to Peter, a good salad is one which is seasoned correctly, and he cautions against using too much salt. He keeps a jar of the dressing on hand for use on other greens, as well.

At 73 years of age, Peter has as strong an interest in food as ever. Although Anna does most of the cooking at home, Peter occasionally helps and they always enjoy trying new things. German, Hungarian and French recipes are among their favorites. One requisite that Peter insists on: good food must be served hot!

SHORT RIBS OF BEEF SUPREME
4 pounds lean short ribs
1 package (2 1/2 ounces) leek soup mix
1 large onion, thinly sliced
1/2 cup dry white wine
2 tablespoons prepared horseradish
1 tablespoon cornstarch

Brown ribs on all sides in a large heavy pan; remove meat from pan. Drain off excess fat.

Prepare soup in pan following package directions, using only two cups water. Return meat to pan; add onion. Cover and simmer about two hours, or until meat is tender.

Combine wine and horseradish; blend in cornstarch. Stir into skillet mixture. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Serves 6.

STUFFED BREAST OF CHICKEN

ROCKEFELLER
6 boneless breasts of chicken (8 to 12 ounces each)
1/2 pound frozen spinach, chopped and drained well
3 tablespoons melted butter
1 1/2 tablespoons flour
2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon finely-chopped onion
1 can (10 ounces) mushroom soup
2 ounces dry vermouth (optional)
Melt butter; blend in flour with a wire whisk until thick. Add egg yolks and seasoning, whisking until thick. Remove from heat. Combine with drained spinach and onion and place in refrigerator for ten minutes to make stuffing easier to handle.

Place chicken breasts skin-side down and fill with spinach mixture. Roll up and place breasts in a baking dish, skin side up. Bake in a little butter in a 350-degree oven for 30 minutes until browned. Add mushroom soup and bake an additional ten minutes, or until chicken is tender. Remove chicken from pan and blend vermouth into gravy. Serve with asparagus on the side. Serves 6.

FRESH SPINACH SALAD

1 pound fresh spinach, washed and drained
1 can (12 ounces) bean sprouts, drained.
8 slices bacon
4 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
1 cup whole wheat croutons
Cut spinach into bite-size pieces and chill. Chill bean sprouts.
Cut bacon in 1/4-inch pieces and saute until crisp. Drain on absorbent paper.

Prepare the following dressing:
1/2 cup vegetable oil
1/4 cup catsup
1/4 cup vinegar
1/4 cup sugar or honey
1 medium onion, grated
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon salt
Mix ingredients together in a small bowl or jar and refrigerate.

Just before serving, combine spinach, bean sprouts, eggs and croutons in a large salad bowl. Toss with dressing and sprinkle bacon bits on top. Serves 8 to 10.

Hamburger shrinkage

Stretch your hamburger by preventing shrinkage during cooking. All meat will shrink in size and weight during cooking. The amount of shrinkage depends upon: the meat's fat content, the temperature at which it is cooked and how long it is cooked.

Basically, the higher the cooking temperature, the greater the shrinkage. Overcooking draws out most juices and results in more shrinkage and a dry tasting hamburger. Ground beef should be cooked at moderate temperatures — 325 to 350 degrees.

Speaking of . . .

Making your protein pennies count

by KAY MARSH

They have almost three times as much protein as roast beef, but none of the fat. They have more calcium than milk and more iron than spinach, plus a wealth of amino acids and vitamins. They're virtually starch-free and low in calories.

Best of all, they're unbelievably low in cost compared to beef, eggs, cheese and other rich-in-protein foods.

They, of course, are soybeans. This magic little bean, though relatively new in this country, has been a staple food product in the Orient for more than 4,000 years. In fact, the Chinese considered it one of the "Five Sacred Grains" and at least some historians attribute the survival of China as a nation to its use of the soybean as a food.

THE SOYBEAN can also play a major role in the survival of your food budget, when it comes to saving money on protein. Figures from the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) show that you pay only about 8 cents for 20 grams of protein in soybeans, compared with about 54 cents for the same amount of protein in sirloin steak.

Other USDA figures showing approximately what you pay for 20 grams of protein, or one third of an adult's daily requirements, from a variety of different foods include:

Soybeans	8
Dried Milk	14
Peanut Butter	15
Dried Beans	17
White Enriched Bread	18
Eggs	20
Chicken (Whole)	21
Whole Milk	23
Beef Liver	23
Ground Beef	23
Tuna	26

Cheese (American Processed)	27
Ham (Whole)	29
Chuck Roast Beef (Bone In)	37
Ocean Perch (Frozen Fillets)	38
Frankfurters	40
Pork Loin Roast	41
Loin Lamb Chops	69
Veal Cutlets	74
Fresh Shrimp	98

IN ADDITION to its virtue of providing high-quality protein at low cost, the soybean is amazingly versatile. The Chinese have long used it not only as a source of complete protein but also as a flavoring (soy sauce) and as a kind of "cheese" in bean curd, which is similar to cottage cheese.

Soybeans are available here in several different forms, and you can find most of them in your supermarket or at a health food store. You can buy soybeans fresh, dried, canned and in sprouted form. You can buy soy flour and soy granules.

Fine you say. But how do you cook with soybeans?

You can find recipes in any number of books on cooking with health foods or natural foods. However, you might want to check your library or bookstore for "The Proteins-for-Pennies Cookbook" by John Woods, published in 1974 by Peter H. Wyden.

Billed as "the first book of gourmet soybean cookery," "The Proteins-for-Pennies Cookbook" includes more than 200 "delicious, super-nutritious recipes" based on the soybean. As you might expect, many of the recipes come from the Orient but others are from all over the world. There are Mexican Chili Beans, and Brittany Soybeans, Boston-baked Soybeans and a Spanish Omelet, even an East African Soybean Soup.

WOODS INCLUDES recipes for casseroles, soups, stews, yogurt, salads, breads, desserts . . . you name it. Some dishes are as simple as a loaf for the family; others are as elegant as Soybean Salad Nicoise or a Grand Marnier Cream Pie.

Though you may not be enthusiastic about every recipe in this "first complete cookbook based on the soybean," you're sure to find a few that will appeal to you. Valuable, too, are the details on such basic items as how to cook the dried beans, how to make tofu (or soybean curd) and how to sprout soybeans right in your own kitchen.

While few of us are apt to become quite as enthusiastic about this "Cinderella" bean as this author, it's certainly worth your while to experiment a bit with soybean cookery. When it comes to making your protein pennies count, the soybean has a truly fantastic lot to offer.

Soybeans make nutritious, low-cost family entrees

Take advantage of the low cost and high nutrition content of soybeans with these easy to prepare dishes suggested by the Homemakers Extension Service.

SOYBEAN-CORN-TOMATO CASSEIOLE

- 2 1/2 cups dry soybeans, cooked and drained
1 16-ounce can whole kernel corn, drained
1 16-ounce can tomatoes
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon garlic salt
1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
1/2 teaspoon basil leaves, crushed.
1 1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1/2 cup or 2 ounces process Cheddar cheese, shredded
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Arrange beans and corn in alternate layers in a 2-quart baking dish. Mash tomatoes with a fork; save 2 tablespoons tomato juice. Mix flour, sugar and seasonings. Stir into tomato juice. Stir flour mixture into tomatoes. Heat until mixture comes to a boil. Pour hot sauce over vegetables. Mix bread crumbs, cheese and fat; sprinkle over vegetables. Bake about 20 minutes until browned. Makes six servings.

SOYBEAN SHEPHERD'S PIE

- 1 16-ounce can onions, whole
1 10 1/2-ounce can beef bouillon, condensed
2 cups carrots, sliced
2 cups dry soybeans, cooked and drained
1/2 cup flour, unsifted
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon marjoram
1/8 teaspoon pepper

3 cups hot mashed potatoes, seasoned

Drain onions; save liquid. Cut onions in half if they are very large. Heat bouillon and onion liquid to boiling. Add carrots and beans. Cover and cook until carrots are tender, about 20 minutes. Drain; save liquid. Add water if needed to make 2 cups.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Place vegetables and onions in a 2-quart baking dish. Cook flour in fat until lightly browned. Add seasonings. Stir in 2 cups vegetable liquid. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Pour sauce over vegetables. Mix lightly. Spread mashed potatoes over vegetables. Bake 15 to 20 minutes until potatoes are lightly browned. Makes six servings.

CHEESE HAMBURGERS

- 2 tablespoons onion, chopped
1 1/2 cloves garlic
4 teaspoons fat or oil
1 1/2 cups green soybeans, canned and drained
1/2 pound ground beef
1 egg, beaten
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon chili powder
1 1/2 tablespoons catsup
1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
6 hamburger buns, toasted
6 slices process Cheddar cheese.
Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Cook onion and garlic in fat until onion is tender. Remove garlic. Gently mix onion, soybeans, beef, egg, salt, chili powder, catsup and Worcestershire sauce. Shape mixture into six patties and place in shallow baking dish. Bake 30 minutes or until well done. Reduce oven temperature to 300 degrees. Place patties on lower halves of toasted buns. Top each patty with a slice of cheese and cover with top of bun. Heat just until cheese melts. Makes six burgers.

Make Chicken Oriental in wok

Thanks to interesting new food combinations and foreign-inspired cookware, you can even select the nationality of the meal. The traditional Oriental wok, for instance, once available only in heavy utilitarian metal, has blossomed out in bright enamelware that can be brought right to your Sunday night table. And with packaged frozen rice and peas with mushrooms, your basic kitchen preparation is already done for Savory Chicken Oriental. The chicken can be diced cooked chicken or canned boneless chicken. Serve this entree with a mixed green salad and an Oriental tea. The entire meal can be prepared in about 30 minutes.

Such an easy and attractive menu is too good to be kept just for Sunday. Keep the makings in freezer and on shelf to make any weekday luncheon a little special.

SAVORY CHICKEN ORIENTAL

- 1 can (8 oz.) water chestnuts
1 package (7 oz.) frozen rice and peas with mushrooms
1 can (5 1/2 oz.) boneless chicken
1/2 cup water
2 tablespoons chopped celery
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon soy sauce
Drain water chestnuts, reserving liquid; slice. Combine with remaining ingredients and reserved liquid in medium saucepan. Cover and bring to a full boil over medium heat, stirring occasionally. Then reduce heat and simmer 8 minutes. Makes 3 1/2 cups or 3 servings.

Hors d'oeuvres add right touch to dinner parties

Having a party or guests for dinner? Here are suggestions for hors d'oeuvres that will get things off to a good start.

First is a water chestnut recipe suggested to me by Mrs. Robert E. Wagner of Danville. Drain 2 small cups of water chestnuts and cut each in half. Wrap with 1/2 slice of bacon and secure with a heavy toothpick. Place in pans and bake 35 minutes in a 350-degree oven.

Meantime make a sauce by combining a 14-ounce bottle of catsup, 8 tablespoons sugar and a small jar of baby food strained peaches. When chestnuts have cooked the 35 minutes, pour off fat drippings. Dip each chestnut into the sauce, avoiding soaking the exposed toothpick. Bake 30 minutes more at 350 degrees and serve immediately, if desired. These can be frozen in advance for a party. If frozen, heat in a 350-degree oven for 30 minutes before serving.

A GOOD DIP is always welcome. For this one combine 2 cups cottage cheese

Orange equivalents

To help you plan the number of oranges you will need in recipes calling for fresh oranges, these approximate equivalents, from the Cooperative Extension Service, will help.

- Three to four medium-size oranges yield one (8 oz.) cup of juice.
- Two medium-size oranges yield one (8 oz.) cup of bite-size pieces.
- One medium-size orange yields four teaspoons of grated peel.
- One medium-size orange yields 2/3 to 3/4 of (8 oz.) cup of puree.
- One orange yields 10 to 11 sections.

Mostly for men

by Charles Flynn

(small curd), an 8-ounce package of cream cheese, 1/4 cup dairy sour cream, 1 tablespoon grated onion, and 1/4 teaspoon garlic salt. Beat until well blended. Add 1/2 cup chopped ripe olives and stir. Chill before serving with crackers, potato or corn chips. Makes 4 cups.

Bacon and rye balls can be prepared in advance. Fry 1 pound bacon until crisp. Drain and crumble. Combine the bacon pieces with an 8-ounce package cream cheese, 1/2 cup light cream, 1 cup fine rye bread crumbs, 1 teaspoon finely chopped onion, and 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Chill for 2 hours.

Remove mixture from refrigerator and shape into balls about 1 inch in diameter. Put 1/2 cup chopped fresh parsley into a flat pan and coat the bacon-rye balls. Serve on picks.

Recipe will make 20 balls, or you can use the mixture as a spread, mixing in the parsley after mixture has been chilled. Makes 1 1/2 cups.

Expect veal to be more plentiful this year

Now may be the time to fulfill that yearning for a tender, juicy veal. Seventy per cent more veal will be coming to market this year compared with 1974. The American Meat Institute attributes the big increase to livestock producers who are marketing younger animals instead of placing them on high-priced feed.

Meat prices as a whole promise to be more reasonable and a lean veal roast or Veal Divine, made with veal round steak goes a long way in serving a family or guests.

ROAST VEAL WITH PEANUT BUTTER SAUCE
1 boneless veal roast, about 4 pounds
Salt, pepper, crumbled marjoram
6 bacon strips
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1 small onion, chopped celery
1 tablespoon flour
1 can (1 pound) stewed tomatoes
1/2 cup peanut butter
Rub veal with salt, pepper and marjoram. Place roast on a rack in a shallow pan. Cover with bacon strips. Roast at 325 degrees for 1 1/2 to 2 hours or until tender and well cooked. Melt butter and saute onion and celery until tender. Stir in flour. Gradually stir in tomatoes, chopping tomatoes into small pieces with a spoon. Stir in peanut butter. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until sauce bubbles and thickens. Slice veal and spoon sauce over slices. Makes six servings.

VEAL DIVINE
1 1/2 to 2 pounds veal round steak, cut 1/2-inch thick
1 egg, beaten
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2/3 cup bread crumbs
3 tablespoons lard or drippings
1 can (10 1/2 ounces) condensed mushroom soup
1/2 cup water
3 slices "balled" ham
1/2 cup grated sharp

cheddar cheese
Paprika
Pound steaks on both sides. Cut steaks into six servings. Mix together egg, salt, and pepper. Dip veal in egg mixture and then in crumbs. Brown in lard or drippings. Add water to mushroom soup and mix well. Pour soup over veal. Cover tightly and cook slowly on top of range or bake in slow, 325-degree oven 30 minutes.

Cut ham slices in half. Place 1/2 ham slice over each veal serving. Cover and continue cooking 15 minutes or until veal is tender. Sprinkle cheese over ham. Cover and continue cooking until cheese is melted, about 10 minutes. Sprinkle with paprika. Makes six servings.

Meal Planning For The Older Person

Remember the Old adage: "You are what you eat." The basis of good health at any age is to eat a wide variety of foods so that each of the necessary vitamins, minerals and protein are included in the whole diet. The United States Department of Agriculture recommends that a well-balanced diet for the older person should include the following each day:

- 2 or more servings of milk and milk products, a serving constitutes 8 oz. of fluid milk, yogurt of 1-1/2 cups cottage cheese, 2" cube cheddar-type or 3 scoops of ice cream.
- 4 or more servings of fruits and vegetables, a serving equals 1/2 cup of any fruit or vegetable (raw or cooked), or a normal portion such as one medium apple, banana, or potato. A serving of food rich in Vitamin C is essential.
- 2 or more servings of meat and meat alternates, one serving is 3 to 4 oz. of meat, fish or poultry, 2 eggs or 4 tablespoons of peanut butter. Nuts, dried peas or dried beans may be substituted for meat, fish, poultry or eggs.
- 4 or more servings of cereals, breads and pasta, one serving equals 3/4 cup oatmeal, 1 cup enriched cereal, 1 slice enriched bread or 3/4 cup enriched macaroni.

If you find the suggested portions of foods too ample for you, reduce the size of each serving. DO NOT ENTIRELY ELIMINATE ANY OF THE FOOD GROUPS.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it: AXYDLBAAXR is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Voter rebellion flares—and incumbents topple

A Herald staff report

Village elections in the Northwest suburbs Tuesday appeared to confirm widespread speculation of recent years about a latent spirit of rebellion among voters.

In five of eight suburban towns, insurgent candidates claimed nearly a clean sweep against the officeholders in power; in a sixth, Rolling Meadows, the incumbent mayor and one alderman survived election threats with razor-thin margins and another alderman was unseated.

"You've got an 'anti' vote here," said Mrs. Carolyn Krause, who share defeat with four other village trustee candidates of the incumbent United Citizens Party in Mount Prospect.

"It was demonstrated throughout the Northwest suburbs that it was not a year for 'the state,'" said ousted Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Gary Armstrong, whose Best Government Party also lost three seats on the village board.

IN WHEELING, four "reform" candidates of the Wheeling Improvement Party swept the village board election in what the incumbents acknowledged was public reaction to zoning and bribery scandals in the village within the past year.

Three incumbent aldermen were deposed from the Des Plaines City Council, while one survived.

In Palatine, independent village Trustee Fred H. Zajonc not only survived a concentrated effort to defeat him by the Palatine Republican organization — which claimed a clean sweep in village elections two years ago — but led the ticket. Two Republican incumbents were successful over independent challengers, however.

There were exceptions to the "anti" vote in Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg. In Schaumburg, the incumbent Schaumburg United Party swept the offices of village president, village clerk, and four seats on the village board. Hoffman Estates elected three candidates of the ruling Republican Party, including one incumbent, over a single independent challenger.

GENERALLY, THE election results conformed to the opinion expressed by

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert, who supported the losing United Citizens Party. "Whatever happened in this campaign, it was the time for the independent — whatever that phrase means," Teichert said.

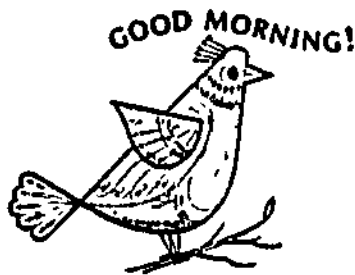

Poll workers of the United Citizens Party expressed surprise at the number of ballots marked for a straight independent vote. Defeated Trustee O. T. Gustus, a UCP candidate, said he detected the voter attitude toward incumbents when he became aware that Mount Prospect residents had no interest in questioning him about village affairs.

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer said he was not surprised by his narrow margin over challenger William Misaska, his predecessor as mayor. Meyer claimed a victory with 79 votes out of a total of 3,536. "In any election, it's easier to run against an incumbent," said Meyer. One of Meyer's running mates, Ald. John T. Rock, won by only seven votes over challenger Charles W. Zeller.

Republicans who failed to unseat Zajonc in Palatine interpreted his victory to his "watchdog appeal" to the voters in the village with a 6-to-1 GOP majority on the board.

"The people were saying they don't want a rubber stamp board — not that that's what we have," said Village Pres. Wendell Jones. "They want someone on the board who is critical and independent."

Superblock financing gains OK

by STEVE BROWN

The $14 million Superblock project, the controversial first step in downtown revitalization, has received its long-awaited financing, Jerome R. Gottlieb, president of Des Plaines Mall Corp., said Wednesday.

The move represents a major step forward for the often-delayed, controversial project that plans to bring a three-story shopping mall and 12-floor office building to Lee and Prairie streets.

Some city officials, including Mayor Herbert H. Behrel had been hinting for the past two weeks that a major development concerning Superblock was in the works.

BEHREL HAD SAID Tuesday that he could not discuss the project because of the status of negotiations concerning the financing.

The depressed economic situation has delayed the project for nearly a year. Gottlieb and his representatives have been negotiating with a number of major financial institutions and insurance companies in an effort to secure financing.

Gottlieb said he has about 99 per cent completed final arrangements for the money.

He declined to identify the source of the financing and indicated a formal announcement would be made when all contracts are signed.

"The financial people have always had confidence in the project, but the money was not available," Gottlieb said.

He described the past year as the worst he has ever seen for obtaining mortgage money.

SEVERAL RELIABLE sources said that commitments had been obtained some time ago for the office tower, a portion of which will be leased by First National Bank of Des Plaines, but that final arrangements for the shopping mall were delayed while a feasibility study was conducted.

Spietler's Department Store plans to obtain a large portion of the shopping mall. An informal survey taken by The Herald in January indicated some uncertainty on the part of local merchants in leasing space in the mall.

However local officials indicate they have informal arrangements made to lease about 30 to 40 per cent of the space.

The announcement about the financing could cut short further city council debate on the special ordinance which allows construction of the project. The city had extended the deadline for obtaining financing for the project to July 1.

Some aldermen have said that if the project is not off the ground by then they might push for some revisions in the project.

Major food chains in price war

by KAREN THOMPSON

Grocery prices were on the downswing Wednesday as clerks at food stores restamped cans and wrappers in what is developing as a price fight among major food chains.

Jewel Food Stores and Dominick's Finer Foods have announced cuts of 10 to 20 per cent on name-brand and house-brand canned goods, frozen foods, butter, eggs, margarine, cheese and many non-food items.

Dominick's spokesmen said between 8,000 and 10,000 items will be reduced in price. Jewel plans markdowns on more than 3,000 of the 8,000 to 12,000 items carried in its stores.

THE TUSSELE for the buck began Monday when Dominick's purchased substantially more than its usual amount of newspaper advertising space to announce the birth of "Total Savings Policy" and the demise of its discount-stamp program.

"Buying groceries has become so complicated and confusing to the shopper — what with coupons, small print, limits, etc. — that we have decided to simplify the whole thing and go back to the basics of offering the lowest everyday prices possible," said Dominick's president, Dominick Di Matteo Jr. He said the company would continue to honor nationally distributed stamps.

Both firms said they expected sales volume increases and improved operational practices to help offset the price reductions and both denied there had been an increase in food inventories recently because of consumer resistance.

IN A SURVEY Wednesday of four representative grocery stores in the Northwest suburbs, prices appeared to be moving downward because of the battle between the chains.

Stockboys were cluttering up the aisles, stamping down costs, some of which will be changing throughout next week. Jewel expected to have most of the markdowns completed by today. Dominick's will be changing prices until next week. A&P Stores and National spokesmen said they have been steadily reducing prices since the first of the year.

Charge of robbing gas station dropped

An armed robbery charge against Gregory Duff, 18, of 466 N. Fifth Ave., Des Plaines, was dropped Wednesday in the Mount Prospect branch of Circuit Court.

The charge against Duff, accused of taking $150 from an attendant Dec. 11 at Marion's Texaco service station, Algonquin Road and Dempster Street, Mount Prospect, may be reinstated. Police said the charge was withdrawn apparently because it was believed the evidence against Duff was not strong enough.

Election aftermath: Can new council find harmony?

by STEVE BROWN
A news analysis

He who rings the most doorbells gets the most votes. That simple axiom seems to be the rule of the winners in the aftermath of the Des Plaines aldermanic elections.

Three of four incumbent aldermen were beaten in the election and most observers are noting that the candidates who worked the hardest in the precincts got elected.

Robert Sullivan, victor in the 2nd Ward, assembled an organization numbering more than 50 persons to beat Ald. Kenneth Kehe.

ROBERT KRAVES did nearly the same thing in the 6th Ward to upset Ald. Ewald Swanson, a 12-year veteran and frequent floor leader for the city council backers of Mayor Herbert H. Behrel.

John Leer's successful comeback race against Ald. Spencer Chase, 3rd, also was helped by a lot of grassroots efforts.

Newcomer Patrick Brannigan also appeared to put in more effort than Clifford Scherer in order to capture the 4th Ward aldermanic seat.

There are no clear trends across the city. The election did not prove to be a solid referendum on downtown redevelopment. One incumbent who opposed the plan, Chase, was beaten and two others who strongly supported the proposal, Kehe and Swanson, also lost.

WHAT REMAINS is to see if the 16-member city council can work effectively.

One remaining question is who Behrel will pick to fill the vacancies on the city council committees.

While no alderman likes to be labeled anti-Behrel, the mayor certainly has put more authority in the hands of some aldermen than others.

With the retirement of Ald. Robert Hinde, 4th, and the losses of Kehe and Swanson, Behrel may have difficulty finding politically reliable aldermen to fill the more powerful city council committees.

SEVERAL ALDERMEN agreed privately Wednesday that Behrel may be more receptive to a consolidation of the 16-committee system.

Regardless of the number, the aldermen began moving in earnest Wednesday to push for more prestigious committee posts.

Some have suggested that Ald. Joseph Szabo, 1st, who won his fourth term on the council, could take over as chairman of the powerful municipal development committee.

would be created on the building, grounds and parking lots committee.

That panel faces several important decisions. The city must make some decision on parking facilities for the new Civic Center and final action on a parking garage for the proposed Superblock project.

Both matters have caused controversy, the Civic Center parking lot because it is hinged to plans to preserve the old city hall building. A number of aldermen have raised some objections about plans for the Ellinwood Street parking deck which will serve the Superblock development.

Plan for prairie patch in danger

Firm denies pathway for new park

Wieboldt Stores Inc. has refused to allow a 100-foot pedestrian path across its Des Plaines warehouse property, jeopardizing creation of a 30-acre prairie land park.

Wieboldt officials Wednesday informed Robert Kunkel, director of parks and recreation for the Des Plaines Park District, that the company will not allow construction of the crossing because of security problems.

The park district has asked for permission to use part of the warehouse property, 300 Wieboldt Dr., as a walkway for access from Seeger Road to the prairie patch site south of Northwest Highway and north of North Avenue.

THE PRAIRIE LAND is owned by the Chicago and North Western Ry., which has agreed to lease the property to the park district for $1 a year if the park district agrees to install an eight-foot chain-link fence and lockable gate around the 30-acre site.

The park district has taken no action on the proposed lease agreement offered by the railroad and Kunkel said he does not know how the Wieboldt reaction will affect a decision on the lease agreement.

At a park district meeting Tuesday, David Wolf, chairman of the Bicentennial Commission, proposed the park district consider planting rosebushes around the site rather than place fencing around the area.

The park district has estimated the cost of the fence at $33,100 with an additional $5,000 to clean up the area for park use.

The board took no action on the lease proposal Tuesday, directing Kunkel to speak to railroad and Wieboldt officials about the floral-fencing proposal and the pedestrian-crossing proposal.

Park district officials also want to discuss further the 30-day cancellation clause in the lease proposed by the railroad and the railroad's stipulation that any taxes on the property be paid by the park district.

Kunkel said the property is not being taxed.

Whatever the mayor decides about the committees it appears the council will be in for livelier times in the coming months.

Fight looms on lights at Rand Park?

Officials of the Des Plaines Park District will meet Sunday with homeowners who oppose the park district's plan to light a second baseball diamond at Rand Park, 2025 Miner St.

Robert Kunkel, park district director, said the board probably will agree to move the field farther from the homes, near Busse Highway and Park View Lane, so residents will not be disturbed by the lights at night.

Thirteen homeowners presented a petition containing 60 signatures opposing the lighting plans to the board Tuesday. The board approved a $32,039.06 expenditure to Scout Electric Co. of Des Plaines for the lighting work, at the same time agreeing to negotiate shifting the field's location.

KUNKEL SAID the homeowners also will be asked to comment on a request from David Wolf, Bicentennial Commission chairman, that Rand Park be used for a three-day Indian powwow in late August.

Wolf made the suggestion after the Mascoutin Indian Society, sponsors of the ceremonial dance, rejected an offer to hold the powwow at Maine West High School.

Kunkel said he doubted the board would agree to the request because the park is not big enough for the number of participants, which could be as many as 1,000.

He said that activities such as baseball still will be under way in August.

IN OTHER ACTION at Tuesday's meeting, the board approved a request for a $1 fee for summer swimming lessons. Previously the summer learn-to-swim program, consisting of 15 lessons, was free. The cost of operating the pool and other expenses has necessitated a fee, Kunkel said.

A $2 fee for the fall, winter and spring learn-to-swim programs also is being considered.

The board will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday to review the proposed 1975-76 budget. The budget has not yet been made public because salary items are still being negotiated.

District financial woes have Dist. 26 teachers 'shocked'

by LINDA PUNCH

River Trails Dist. 26 teachers are "shocked and dismayed at the rather sudden disclosure of financial difficulties" in the district, said Nancy Miller, president of the teachers' union.

"Prior to two weeks ago there was no indication a problem of such magnitude existed. In light of the number of increased programs and staff in the last few years, it is obvious there has been a lack of foresight and planning," she said Wednesday.

The school board earlier this month said the district will have to reduce teaching staff and cut back some educational programs to avoid a deficit budget in 1975-76. The administration has presented several staffing plans which would save the district money by increasing class sizes, reducing the staff by up to 15 teachers and eliminating several programs.

MISS MILLER SAID teachers are concerned that the education of children will be harmed by the changes.

"We are concerned about the current trend toward displacing certified teachers with aides. This tends to dilute quality education and we oppose this unequivocally," she said.

Teachers also are concerned about the fluctuations in class size under one of the proposals. Miss Miller said one school would have two teachers and an aide for

Voter certification asked

A River Trails Dist. 26 resident has asked the board of education to verify that all voters in Saturday's school board election were registered.

Mary Stenbridge said she asked for verification because the election "was so close. I think everybody would rest more comfortably if we knew that everyone who voted was a registered voter."

Edward Pugliese won the election by a two-vote margin over Peggy Golden. Pugliese received 310 votes and Mrs. Golden, 308. Mrs. Golden said she would not ask for a recount.

Mrs. Stenbridge said that if "the election is that close, let's check the results. Then we can put these rumors to rest."

"There may have been some confusion among voters. Some may have in good faith thought they could vote without being registered," she said.

Mrs. Stenbridge wrote a letter to the board asking for verified results. "If the school board doesn't want to do it, then I'll do it. All I need is a copy of the affidavits," she said.

Mrs. Golden said she has no comment on Mrs. Stenbridge's request. "I myself am not pursuing it," she said.

The board referred the letter to Supt. John Fridlund. Fridlund Wednesday refused to comment on Mrs. Stenbridge's letter.

60 third grade students while a neighboring school would have two teachers for 32 third graders.

"If cuts need to be made, they must be equitable throughout the district," she said, adding that teachers at most of the schools had no say in the staff cuts.

"There's no way to avoid a number of the cuts but we want to have as few as possible," she said. Fifteen first-year teachers — about 8 per cent of the teaching staff — have been notified they may not be rehired next fall.

Residents also questioned the effects of the proposed staffing plans at Tuesday night's board meeting. Members of the audience said they feared proposed program cutbacks could lower the quality of education in the district.

Several parents said they opposed the possible elimination of the junior high CORE program — a teaching method where a group of students share the same teachers — and the French program. Three Hersey High School teachers sent a letter to the board asking it to save "one of the best junior high foreign language programs" in the district.

Supt. John Fridlund Tuesday said the proposed staffing plans "are not to be considered the last word. If there's an increase in enrollment or any educational concern, we could ask for additional personnel."

Sheyker retains top spot on school board

Michael Sheyker was reelected president of the River Trails Dist. 26 Board of Education.

A member of the board since 1972, Sheyker has served as board president for a year. The president of Metropolitan Key Punch Service, Inc., he has a bachelor's degree in accounting.

Leora Rosen, a board member since 1971, was elected secretary.

Custodians seek recognition of IEA affiliation

The East Maine Dist. 63 custodians' maintenance union has affiliated with the Illinois Education Assn.

Walter Maziarz, president of the East Maine Custodial Maintenance Assn., asked board of education members Wednesday to recognize the group as the collective-bargaining agent for the district's custodians.

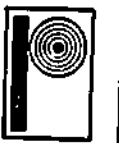

The board will reply to the request at its May 6 meeting.

The Dist. 63 custodians' union is the second nonteachers group in Maine Township to join the IEA, a statewide teachers' union. Maziarz said 37 of the district's 44 custodians have joined the IEA.

The union president said Dist. 63 custodians have never negotiated a contract with the board. He said he believes the relationship with the board "will really be improved through the process of collective bargaining."

Custodians in Des Plaines Dist. 62 last summer became the first custodians to affiliate with the IEA.

Voter rebellion flares—and incumbents topple

A Herald staff report

Village elections in the Northwest suburbs Tuesday appeared to confirm widespread speculation of recent years about a latent spirit of rebellion among voters. In five of eight suburban towns, insurgent candidates claimed nearly a clean sweep against the officeholders in power; in a sixth, Rolling Meadows, the incumbent mayor and one alderman survived election threats with razor-thin margins and another alderman was unseated.

"You've got an 'anti' vote here," said Mrs. Carolyn Krause, who shared defeat with four other village trustee candidates of the incumbent United Citizens Party in Mount Prospect.

"It was demonstrated throughout the Northwest suburbs that it was not a year for 'the state,'" said ousted Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Gary Armstrong, whose Best Government Party also lost three seats on the village board.

IN WHEELING, four "reform" candidates of the Wheeling Improvement Party swept the village board election in what the incumbents acknowledged was public reaction to zoning and bribery scandals in the village within the past year.

Three incumbent aldermen were deposed from the Des Plaines City Council, while one survived.

In Palatine, independent village Trustee Fred H. Zajonc not only survived a concentrated effort to defeat him by the Palatine Republican organization — which claimed a clean sweep in village elections two years ago — but led the ticket. Two Republican incumbents were successful over independent challengers, however.

There were exceptions to the "anti" vote in Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg. In Schaumburg, the incumbent Schaumburg United Party swept the offices of village president, village clerk, and four seats on the village board. Hoffman Estates elected three candidates of the ruling Republican Party, including one incumbent, over a single independent challenger.

GENERALLY, THE election results conformed to the opinion expressed by

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Telchert, who supported the losing United Citizens Party. "Whatever happened in this campaign, it was the time for the independent — whatever that phrase means," Telchert said.

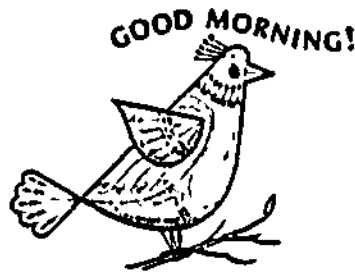

Poll workers of the United Citizens Party expressed surprise at the number of ballots marked for a straight independent vote. Defeated Trustee O. T. Gustus, a UCP candidate, said he detected the voter attitude toward incumbents when he became aware that Mount Prospect residents had no interest in questioning him about village affairs.

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer said he was not surprised by his narrow margin over challenger William Miseska, his predecessor as mayor. Meyer claimed a victory with 79 votes out of a total of 356. "In any election, it's easier to run against an incumbent," said Meyer. One of Meyer's running mates, Ald. John T. Rock, won by only seven votes over challenger Charles W. Zeller.

Republicans who failed to unseat Zajonc in Palatine interpreted his victory to his "watchdog appeal" to the voters in the village with a 6-to-1 GOP majority on the board.

"The people were saying they don't want a rubber stamp board — not that that's what we have," said Village Pres. Wendell Jones. "They want someone on the board who is critical and independent."

Employees feel their jobs safe

by JOE FRANZ

Wheeling village employees do not expect to be swept out the door when the newly elected majority of the village board begins a promised housecleaning of local government.

Employees interviewed by The Herald following an overwhelming victory of four trustee positions by the Wheeling Improvement Party Tuesday said they think the election will have little effect on the average employee.

WIIP candidates Charles M. Kerr, Gilbert J. Monson, John C. Cole and Otis L. Hedlund, running on a reform platform, captured four seats on the village board. The victories will give WIIP a majority on the village board for the first time ever.

The newly elected WIIP trustees have called for an end to nepotism and patronage in hiring but deny there will be mass firings. They said they will evaluate the performances of all employees and that employees who are doing their jobs have nothing to fear.

"I DON'T THINK the election will have any effect on me or my job because I was hired to serve the community," said Lorraine Lark, a senior clerk for the village. "That is what I have done and what I will continue to do."

"I assume I was hired for my qualifications and I think they have only been enhanced by my employment with the village," Mrs. Lark said.

Village Mgr. George Passolt, a frequent target of WIIP criticism during the election campaign, said he is unsure what to expect because he has not talked in detail with the new village board members.

"I'll give them a fair shake and hopefully they'll do the same," Passolt said. "I just hope we can work well together because our goals I think are the same — the good of the village."

VILLAGE CLERK Evelyn Diens said none of her employees has expressed any fear because of the change in power in Wheeling and that she does not think it will put many jobs in jeopardy.

"I can't see the four candidates that were elected coming in with a contest of rolling heads," Mrs. Diens said. "If people are doing the job they were hired for and giving a day's work for a day's pay there's no reason for them to fear."

The clerk said all the employees under her are doing a good job and said she foresees no problems with the new village board.

"I think if they fire anyone, they'll have a valid reason," Mrs. Diens said.

ROBERTA KRAUSE, deputy village clerk, also said she thinks the new village board will have little effect on her or her job and that she expects to "get a fair shake."

"I feel that I do my job and that I am qualified," Mrs. Krause said. "If I felt I didn't do my job then I'd be afraid."

Major food chains in price war

by KAREN THOMPSON

Grocery prices were on the downswing Wednesday as clerks at food stores restamped cans and wrappers in what is developing as a price fight among major food chains.

Jewel Food Stores and Dominick's Finer Foods have announced cuts of 10 to 25 per cent on name-brand and house-brand canned goods, frozen foods, butter, eggs, margarine, cheese and many non-food items.

Dominick's spokesmen said between 8,000 and 10,000 items will be reduced in price. Jewel plans mark-downs on more than 3,000 of the 8,000 to 12,000 items carried in its stores.

THE TUSSELE for the buck began Monday when Dominick's purchased substantially more than its usual amount of newspaper advertising space to announce the birth of 'Total Savings Policy' and the demise of its discount-stamp program.

"Buying groceries has become so complicated and confusing to the shopper — what with coupons, small print, limits, etc. — that we have decided to simplify the whole thing and go back to the basics of offering the lowest everyday prices possible," said Dominick's president, Dominick Di Matteo Jr. He said the company would continue to honor nationally distributed stamps.

Both firms said they expected sales volume increases and improved operational practices to help offset the price reductions and both denied there had been an increase in food inventories recently because of consumer resistance.

IN A SURVEY Wednesday of four representative grocery stores in the Northwest suburbs, prices appeared to be moving downward because of the battle between the chains.

Stockboys were cluttering up the aisles, stamping down costs, some of which will be changing throughout next week. Jewel expected to have most of the mark-downs completed by today. Dominick's will be changing prices until next week. A&P Stores and National spokesmen said they have been steadily reducing prices since the first of the year.

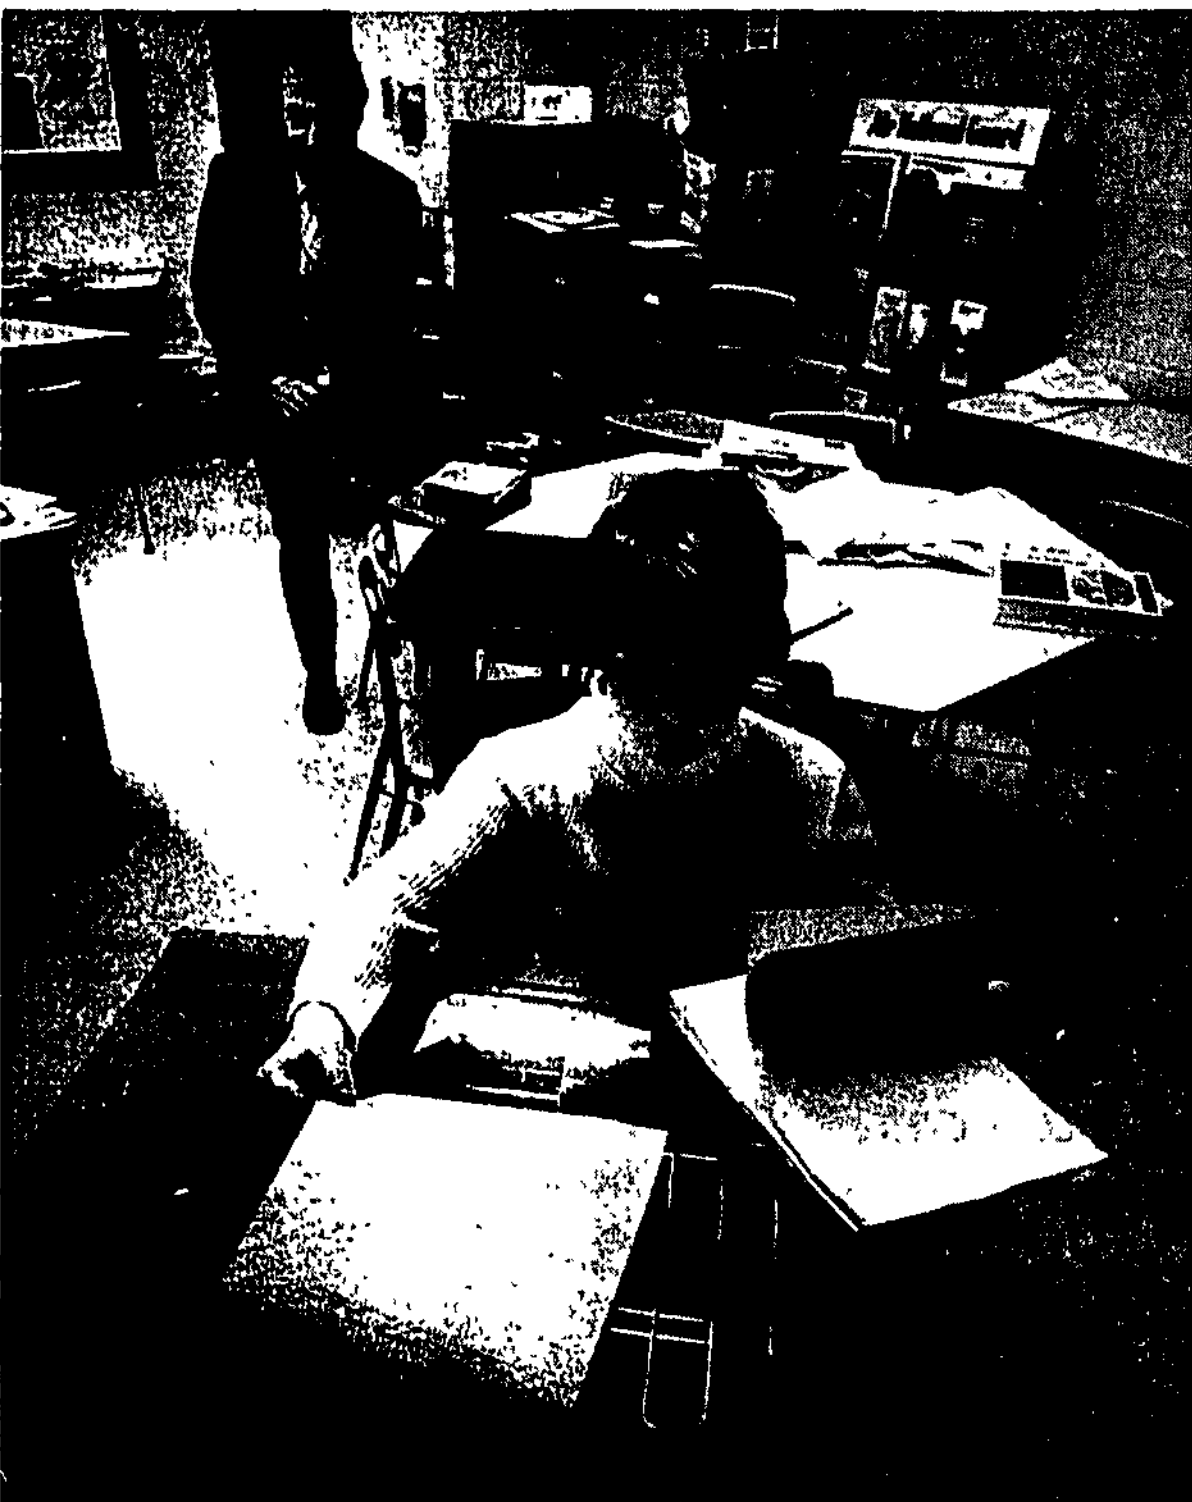

Wood, plywood stolen at construction site

Two teen-agers reportedly stole an undetermined amount of wood and plywood from a construction site in the area of Tahoe Circle and Chippewa drives, Wheeling police said Wednesday.

The youths, 16 to 19 years old, were seen by a resident as they loaded the materials into a 1962 or 1963 blue Pontiac just after 7 p.m. Tuesday, police said. The youths and car were gone when police arrived.

STUDENTS DECIDING on a career in High School Dist. 214 don't always page through catalogs anymore. These have been replaced by a computer terminal that lists career, college and scholarship information. Freshman

Chris Edstrom at Elk Grove High School gets a "read-out" of career interests as guidance counselor William Jackson looks on. The program also is starting at two other district schools.

New 'guidance counselor'—a high school computer

by BOB GALLAS
The futures of many High School Dist. 214 students are "computerized" now, thanks to a new program aimed at helping students choose a career based on their interests and abilities.
The program allows students to "talk" to a computer in addition to a counselor, to get information on careers and colleges to prepare for a career.
The system has been in operation since last January at Elk Grove High School and is in the process of being installed at Hersey and Arlington high schools. Though it's operating only on an experimental basis, Elk Grove High School officials report tremendous interest.
"IN FEBRUARY, 400 students used the computer here," said William Jackson, career guidance consultant at Elk Grove. "In March, 800 students used it. The computer now runs constantly."
Students with a career interest can get information ranging from salary to job requirements. Those who haven't chosen a field start by taking a series of tests to determine their interests and abilities.

The computer also is programmed to list schools that offer courses necessary for a particular career and gives scholarship information Jackson said the computer also can give jobs suitable for physically handicapped students. The information is fed into the computer which then comes out with the suggestions.
"It allows counseling at a much higher level," Jackson said. The students get more data than ever before and when they do come in to see their counselor, the session is more beneficial," he added.
JACKSON estimated that the computer program, if approved by the board of education when evaluated in May, would probably cost about $4,000 a year per school. "That may sound like a lot but it works out to be about $1.25 per student," Jackson said. "It's expensive, but you can better service the students."

The schools are tied by phone line into the computer bank which is now at a Niles high school. Data is fed into the computer and returned to the school by a teletype terminal which the students operate.
"The kids use computers in many classes and are used to them, so the operation of the computer hasn't been a problem," Jackson said.
Jackson's initial fear that the system, which is available for use by any district student, would go unnoticed, was quickly eased when the rush of students started as soon as the computer was installed and word got around.
"It (the computer) sells itself," he said. "I sure haven't had to advertise."

Boy, 7, hurt when struck by truck

A 7-year-old Wheeling boy was hospitalized after being struck by a truck on Palatine Frontage Road Tuesday night, between Wolf Road and Milwaukee Avenue in Wheeling Township.
In two accidents in Wheeling, a woman escaped injury Wednesday after her car went under a truck on Milwaukee Avenue and two persons received minor injuries in an accident Tuesday night on Old McHenry Road.
A spokesman at Holy Family Hospital said Steve Grossmuck, 740 Piper Ln., Wheeling, was in satisfactory condition Wednesday. Sheriff's police said the youth ran in front of a truck at 7:07 p.m. Tuesday.
The truck driver, Jerry Neumann, 42, of 1000 Sunnyside Blvd., Streamwood, was charged with failure to yield the right of way. Neumann will appear May 26 in the Niles branch of Circuit Court.
Wheeling fire officials said Holly Brandlin, 20, of 232 N. Milwaukee Ave., escaped injuries at 10:35 a.m. Wednesday when she apparently drove her car under the side of a large semi-trailer truck near her home. Further details on the accident, including the cause and the truck driver's identity, were unavailable from Wheeling police.
The third accident occurred in front of 905 Old McHenry Rd. at 8:08 p.m. Tuesday night. Taken to Holy Family Hospital for treatment of facial cuts were Carol Freyer, 36, of 162 Hillside, Grayslake, and Ray Nopier, 23, of 905 Old McHenry Rd., Wheeling. Information on this accident also was unavailable from Wheeling police.

Leland Gibbs

Can you win an election with 4 votes? Ask Gibbs

by MARILYN McDONALD
They say you can't get something for nothing in politics, but Leland Gibbs, 4248 Wilson Ave., Rolling Meadows, broke the rule Tuesday. He won a six-year term on the Plum Grove Countryside Park District by collecting only four write-in votes.
Plum Grove Countryside district, serving a small western corner of Rolling Meadows, had only three declared candidates for four board vacancies. Gibbs, 51, said he intended to file petitions of candidacy before the deadline of Jan. 27, but time just slipped away, he said.
"When I voted, I saw that there was an opening for a six-year term," Gibbs said. "I knew the board would have to appoint someone to fill the vacancy for a year, so I decided to write in my name." Gibbs said he had also told a couple of friends and neighbors to do the same.
Gibbs' four write-in votes entitle him to the full six-year term, said newly reelected Board Pres. Ernest Martin.
"I HAVE A CALL in to our attorney, but if an individual indicates he is a valid candidate and is interested in the job for which he is a write-in candidate, he is legally entitled to the term," Martin said.

Biggs is a Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 board member.
Martin polled 228 votes, incumbent Beverly Hansen drew 206 votes, and recently appointed board member Pamela Dahl drew 199 votes. Mrs. Dahl and Mrs. Hansen both protested Gibbs' election in a statement issued Wednesday.
"We cannot ethically comment on Mr. Gibbs' election," they said. "We feel that the residents of the park district were given ample time to seek election to the park board or at least show some interest by attending one or more of the monthly meetings without having to be a write-in candidate at the last minute."

Village employees doubt they'll lose their jobs

tified, said he does not think the new village board will have any effect on employees.

"No, everybody has to play by the rules," he said. "They do too. It's just one machine for another. They're all the same."

Fire Chief Bernhard O. Koepfen said he does not have any fear of being removed from his post because of the new board. "For the past 22 years I have been doing my job and doing it well, I think," he said.

Koepfen, Mrs. Diens and several other employees said they have worked under several village boards and do not think the latest change will be any different from the others.

ROBERT KAMINSKI, acting building director, said he does not know what to expect from the new village board.

"I have no control over what they do," he said. "I've always tried to do what is best for the village and if I've dissatisfied anyone, I'm sorry."

Administrative Assistant M. O. Horcher, an employee of the village for 20 years, said some village workers are apprehensive.

"I don't know if firings will ever become a reality because of this, but a lot of employees have this fear," Horcher said. "They are apprehensive every two years when there's an election."

"I can be a little freer around here because I have a lot of time with the village," he said. "But a lot of employees aren't."

HORCHER SAID the creation of an employee appeal board and provisions for salary negotiations with employees have been positive steps by the village, but that employees will not have total job security until a civil service system is started in Wheeling.

"I think after a probationary period in which a person shows that he can do a job, the employee should get some assurances," Horcher said. "I feel they should get some assurances that their job isn't in jeopardy every two years."

Administrative Assistant Thomas Markus said he "definitely" will try to work with the new village board, but said he does not know what to expect.

"I imagine they'll analyze the village from their standpoint and make changes like any new administration would," Markus said. "But I don't know what they'll do."

Donna Nystrom, secretary to the fire chief, said she had not given any thought to the new village board, but thinks "it's the responsibility of the press to see employees aren't held as ransom."

No aid from GOP, WHIP insists

by JOE FRANZ

Wheeling Improvement Party (WHIP) candidates, who swept four village board seats Tuesday, said Wednesday their success was due to "a lot of grassroots support."

At the same time, WHIP candidates denied that they received backing or help from the Wheeling Township Regular Republican Organization.

In a landslide victory, WHIP candidates Gilbert J. Monoson, Charles M. Kerr, John C. Cole and Otis L. Hedlund, running on a reform ticket, beat candidates from the Wheeling Representative Party and the incumbent Wheeling Community Party (COM-PAR).

"I don't think we knocked down the machine," Monoson said. "I think the people of the village knocked it down. I think WHIP was elected because it has been advocating open, honest government that will represent the average guy."

ALL THE WHIP CANDIDATES said they think the overwhelming victory was a mandate from residents to bring about changes.

"I just think basically it was the people of Wheeling saying they're as good as anyone else," Hedlund said. "I think they came out and voted for WHIP because they wanted a change."

Kerr attributed the WHIP victory to several factors. "I think WHIP kept its vote and the other parties split each other," he said. "I also think our platform and certainly the exposure of corruption and extortion helped us win."

Hedlund said a strong party organization played a key role in WHIP's victory.

"This was our third election and, let's face it, there's a good core of us," Hedlund said. "We know how to run an election. We know who the voters are and how to get them out."

HEDLUND, AN AREA chairman for the Republican Party, denied charges by some members of the opposition that WHIP received backing from the regular party organization.

"The Republican Party in Wheeling Township has never supported anyone in a local election," Hedlund said.

Cole said the WHIP membership consists of Republicans, Democrats and independents and denies there is an affiliation with any political party.

Monoson, a Republican precinct captain, said now that he has been elected to the village board, he will resign the Republican Party post.

"HEALTH WEEK" at Wheeling High School offers more than 50 health-related courses and workshops. Instructor Donald Haid helps Wheeling student Karin Lindstrom learn how the electrocardiogram works. The week-long project was started by the school's health board to make students more aware of their health.

50 'Health Week' courses at Wheeling High School

Wheeling High School students may not be the healthiest in High School Dist. 211, but after this week, they'll know it.

The school is observing its own "Health Week" this week — an ambitious project featuring 50 courses and workshops aimed at informing students on health and health-related careers.

"We expect about three-fourths of the student body to participate by taking at least one session," said science teacher Joanne Biberger who along with school nurse Rita Owens coordinated the program. "We expect some students to take as many as 12 sessions."

Students are allowed to miss two of any classes during the week to attend the sessions and also can attend the programs instead of going to study hall.

CERTAIN AREAS of health are featured each day, including smoking and breathing, drugs and alcohol, mental health, physical fitness, weight control, venereal disease, and vision and hearing.

The guest speakers are all volunteers and offer students a chance to see how electrocardiograms are taken, determine which of their eyes is strongest, find out their blood type or learn how to take blood pressure.

Paramedics from the Wheeling Fire Dept. will be training students all week in cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

Courses also will be offered to help in dealing with diseases of others. Sessions such as how to understand and live with a drug user, family counseling, and how to cope with alcoholism in the family will be offered throughout the week.

Homeowners ask to join suit against developer

The Highland Glenn Homeowners' Assn. has asked to join the Village of Wheeling in the lawsuit against the subdivision developer over completion of three streets.

The homeowners said Monday night the association recently passed a resolution calling for a class action suit against Preference Homes and developer George Harhen, if the village agrees to participate in financing the cost of the suit over the $2,000 retainer fee.

The village board has referred the association's request to the judiciary and purchasing committee for study and a recommendation.

VILLAGE ATTY. Paul Hamer Tuesday said he would like to see the homeowners join the lawsuit, which is pending in Circuit Court.

"We would not object to the homeowners joining the suit," he said. "It would make the village's case in court a little stronger."

The attorney said, however, it is up to the village board to decide if it wants to give the homeowners financial assistance to enable them to join the suit.

The village's suit against the developer seeks $25,000 to complete paving of Berkshire Drive, Holly Court and Mockingbird Lane. The suit charges the developer did not complete the streets as specified in an agreement with the village.

The road base was installed several years ago, but the developer has never put the final surface on the streets. As a result, the road bed has deteriorated and large chuckholes have developed. The residents and the village charge that the streets are an inconvenience as well as hazardous.

Voter rebellion flares—and incumbents topple

A Herald staff report

Village elections in the Northwest suburbs Tuesday appeared to confirm widespread speculation of recent years about a latent spirit of rebellion among voters.

In five of eight suburban towns, insurgent candidates claimed nearly a clean sweep against the officeholders in power; in a sixth, Rolling Meadows, the incumbent mayor and one alderman survived election threats with razor-thin margins and another alderman was unseated.

"You've got an 'anti' vote here," said Mrs. Carolyn Krause, who share defeat with four other village trustee candidates of the incumbent United Citizens Party in Mount Prospect.

"It was demonstrated throughout the Northwest suburbs that it was not a year for 'the state,'" said ousted Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Gary Armstrong, whose Best Government Party also lost three seats on the village board.

IN WHEELING, four "reform" candidates of the Wheeling Improvement Party swept the village board election in what the incumbents acknowledged was public reaction to zoning and bribery scandals in the village within the past year.

Three incumbent aldermen were deposed from the Des Plaines City Council, while one survived.

In Palatine, independent village Trustee Fred H. Zajonc not only survived a concentrated effort to defeat him by the Palatine Republican organization — which claimed a clean sweep in village elections two years ago — but led the ticket. Two Republican incumbents were successful over independent challengers, however.

There were exceptions to the "anti" vote in Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg. In Schaumburg, the incumbent Schaumburg United Party swept the offices of village president, village clerk, and four seats on the village board. Hoffman Estates elected three candidates of the ruling Republican Party, including one incumbent, over a single independent challenger.

GENERALLY, THE election results conformed to the opinion expressed by

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert, who supported the losing United Citizens Party. "Whatever happened in this campaign, it was the time for the independent — whatever that phrase means," Teichert said.

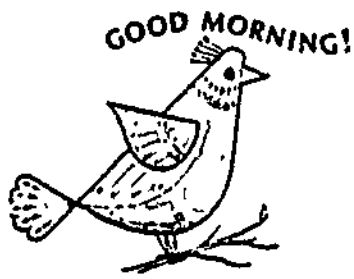

Poll workers of the United Citizens Party expressed surprise at the number of ballots marked for a straight independent vote. Defeated Trustee O. T. Gustus, a UCP candidate, said he detected the voter attitude toward incumbents when he became aware that Mount Prospect residents had no interest in questioning him about village affairs.

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer said he was not surprised by his narrow margin over challenger William Miseska, his predecessor as mayor. Meyer claimed a victory with 79 votes out of a total of 3,556. "In any election, it's easier to run against an incumbent," said Meyer. One of Meyer's running mates, Ald. John T. Rock, won by only seven votes over challenger Charles W. Zeller.

Republicans who failed to unseat Zajonc in Palatine interpreted his victory to his "watchdog appeal" to the voters in the village with a 6-to-1 GOP majority on the board.

"The people were saying they don't want a rubber stamp board — not that that's what we have," said Village Pres. Wendell Jones. "They want someone on the board who is critical and independent."

Town center to suit village needs: official

by BETTY LEE

The proposed Buffalo Grove town center will be a reflection of the community, not just another suburban shopping center, consultant William L. Haralson said Wednesday.

Haralson, of Economics Research Associates, Oak Brook, hired by the village to conduct a feasibility study, told The Herald the town center will be tailored to suit the needs of the village. Most importantly, the center will be a focal point of resident interest, he said.

"We're trying to get the thing that will serve the people and have a beneficial effect," Haralson said.

THE FIRST PHASE of the study is finished and will be revealed in a village board meeting May 5, Haralson said. Details will not be spelled out in the first-phase plans, Haralson said, but he said a concept of the town center might include shopping and office space.

The center also could house a public library, post office, municipal offices, recreation and other facilities the community lacks, Haralson said.

The services will reflect the population makeup of the community, Haralson said.

"Buffalo Grove is a community of mostly young, established families," he said.

Other characteristics Haralson cited include:

- A population of adults mostly in their 30s or 40s with children primarily in grade school, with some in junior high schools

- White-collar wage earners making high middle incomes.
- A strong middle-class population with leisure time for recreation.

"We do realize as years go by the community will change and will become more heterogeneous," Haralson said. "But I don't see it happening for a while."

"The biggest mistake would be to use thumbnail standards," he said. "We know from our work that different age groups and occupations have different requirements."

"For example, another community with blue-collar workers will be more interested in bowling alleys than tennis courts," Haralson said.

HARALSON EMPHASIZED that the concepts suggested are mainly "a shopping list of ideas."

"I'm not saying that Buffalo Grove should do everything we suggest," he said. "There is a mix of things to be considered. We would like to get some public reaction to blend into the project. It's not consultants from the outside saying, 'this is what we have to do.'"

The town center is not intended to compete with the shopping centers, Haralson said. "I think it would be a mistake to compete with the sweeping shopping centers like Randhurst or Woodfield because they are large and already established," he said.

"The community will be much better

Grocery prices were on the downswing Wednesday as clerks at food stores restamped cans and wrappers in what is developing as a price fight among major food chains.

Jewel Food Stores and Dominick's Finer Foods have announced cuts of 10 to 28 per cent on name-brand and house-brand canned goods, frozen foods, butter, eggs, margarine, cheese and many non-food items.

Dominick's spokesmen said between 8,000 and 10,000 items will be reduced in price. Jewel plans mark-downs on more than 3,000 of the 8,000 to 12,000 items carried in its stores.

THE TUSSELE for the buck began Monday when Dominick's purchased substantially more than its usual amount of newspaper advertising space to announce the birth of "Total Savings Policy" and the demise of its discount-stamp program.

"Buying groceries has become so complicated and confusing to the shopper — what with coupons, small print, limits, etc. — that we have decided to simplify the whole thing and go back to the basics of offering the lowest everyday prices possible," said Dominick's president, Dominick Di Matteo Jr. He said the company would continue to honor nationally distributed stamps.

Both firms said they expected sales volume increases and improved operational practices to help offset the price reductions and both denied there had been an increase in food inventories recently because of consumer resistance.

IN A SURVEY Wednesday of four representative grocery stores in the Northwest suburbs, prices appeared to be moving downward because of the battle between the chains.

Stockboys were cluttering up the aisles, stamping down costs, some of which will be changing throughout next week. Jewel expected to have most of the mark-downs completed by today. Dominick's will be changing prices until next week. A&P Stores and National spokesmen said they have been steadily reducing prices since the first of the year.

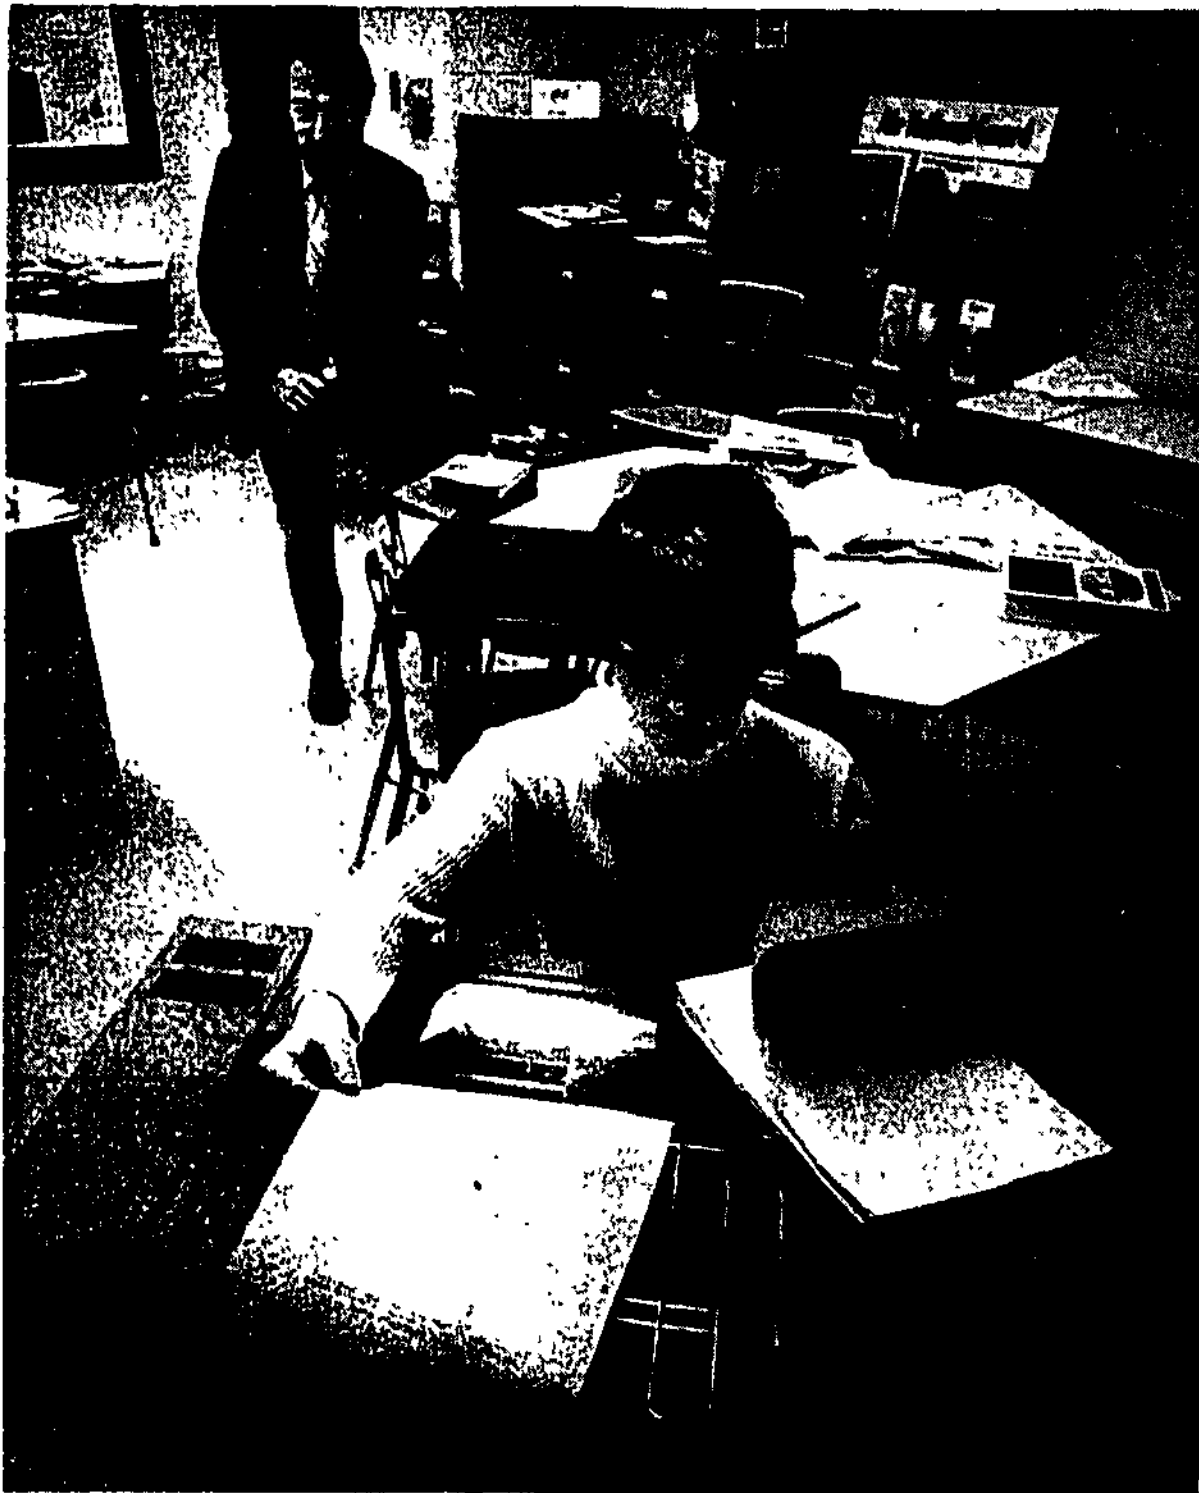

Wood, plywood stolen at construction site

Two teen-agers reportedly stole an undetermined amount of wood and plywood from a construction site in the area of Tahoe Circle and Chippewa drives, Wheeling police said Wednesday.

The youths, 16 to 19 years old, were seen by a resident as they loaded the materials into a 1962 or 1963 blue Pontiac just after 7 p.m. Tuesday, police said. The youths and car were gone when police arrived.

STUDENTS DECIDING on a career in High School Dist. 214 don't always page through catalogs anymore. These have been replaced by a computer terminal that lists career, college and scholarship information. Freshman

Chris Edstrom at Elk Grove High School gets a "read-out" of career interests as guidance counselor William Jackson looks on. The program also is starting at two other district schools.

New 'guidance counselor'—a high school computer

by DOB GALLAS

The futures of many High School Dist. 214 students are "computerized" now, thanks to a new program aimed at helping students choose a career based on their interests and abilities.

The program allows students to "talk" to a computer in addition to a counselor, to get information on careers and colleges to prepare for a career.

The system has been in operation since last January at Elk Grove High School and is in the process of being installed at Hersey and Arlington high schools. Though it's operating only on an experimental basis, Elk Grove High School officials report tremendous interest.

"IN FEBRUARY, 400 students used the computer here," said William Jackson, career guidance consultant at Elk Grove. "In March, 800 students used it. The computer now runs constantly."

requirements. Those who haven't chosen a field start by taking a series of tests to determine their interests and abilities.

The computer also is programmed to list schools that offer courses necessary for a particular career and gives scholarship information Jackson said the computer also can give jobs suitable for physically handicapped students. The information is fed into the computer which then comes out with the suggestions.

"It allows counseling at a much higher level," Jackson said. The students get more data than ever before and when they do come in to see their counselor, the session is more beneficial," he added.

JACKSON estimated that the computer program, if approved by the board of education when evaluated in May, would probably cost about $4,000 a year per school. "That may sound like a lot but it works out to be about $1.25 per student," Jackson said. "It's expensive, but you can better service the students."

The schools are tied by phone line into the computer bank which is now at a Niles high school. Data is fed into the computer and returned to the school by a teletype terminal which the students operate.

"The kids use computers in many classes and are used to them, so the operation of the computer hasn't been a problem," Jackson said.

Jackson's initial fear that the system, which is available for use by any district student, would go unnoticed, was quickly eased when the rush of students started as soon as the computer was installed and word got around.

"It (the computer) sells itself," he said. "I sure haven't had to advertise."

Boy, 7, hurt when struck by truck

A 7-year-old Wheeling boy was hospitalized after being struck by a truck on Palatine Frontage Road Tuesday night, between Wolf Road and Milwaukee Avenue in Wheeling Township.

In two accidents in Wheeling, a woman escaped injury Wednesday after her car went under a truck on Milwaukee Avenue and two persons received minor injuries in an accident Tuesday night on Old McHenry Road.

A spokesman at Holy Family Hospital said Steve Grassmuck, 740 Piper Ln., Wheeling, was in satisfactory condition Wednesday. Sheriff's police said the youth ran in front of a truck at 7:07 p.m. Tuesday.

The truck driver, Jerry Neumann, 42, of 1000 Sunnyside Blvd., Streamwood, was charged with failure to yield the right of way. Neumann will appear May 26 in the Niles branch of Circuit Court.

Wheeling fire officials said Holly Brandin, 20, of 232 N. Milwaukee Ave., escaped injuries at 10:35 a.m. Wednesday when she apparently drove her car under the side of a large semi-trailer truck near her home. Further details on the accident, including the cause and the truck driver's identity, were unavailable from Wheeling police.

The third accident occurred in front of 905 Old McHenry Rd. at 8:08 p.m. Tuesday night. Taken to Holy Family Hospital for treatment of facial cuts were Carol Freymuth, 36, of 162 Hillside, Grayslake, and Ray Napier, 23, of 905 Old McHenry Rd., Wheeling. Information on this accident also was unavailable from Wheeling police.

Builder sues to overturn Bugner farm zone ruling

Chesterfield Development Corp. has filed suit in Lake County Circuit Court seeking to overturn a recent County Board decision that denied rezoning on a piece of the Bugner farm near Buffalo Grove for a townhouse development.

Murray Conzelman, a Waukegan attorney, said the suit, filed on behalf of the builder and Margaret Bugner, owner of the 45-acre farm asks the County Board be made to approve the project that was denied in a 21-to-1 vote last month.

Chesterfield is seeking to build 464 townhouses on the property, Weiland Road, south of Busch Road.

THE DEERFIELD development firm was seeking the zoning change on about half the property to allow for the townhouses.

County commissioners said the project was denied because the firm failed to reach an agreement with Aptakale-Tripp Dist. 102 over donations to the district.

But Conzelman said the provision was the only one of 21 conditions in the firm's zoning application that the firm failed to comply with. He said the suit contends there is no legal authority for requiring school donations based on a recent Illinois Appellate Court ruling.

"The action of the County Board was arbitrary and based on an invalid condition," he said.

The school district has a donation policy patterned after a 1972 Buffalo Grove ordinance detailing guidelines for developer contributions to local school and park districts based on additional student loads new residential developments would generate.

Conzelman said the firm offered the district a $40,000 contribution but district officials wanted $140,000. Buffalo Grove officials, who last year registered a formal objection to the proposal, asked the County Board not to consider the project unless the developer met village standards which included the donation to the school district.

JACKIE DeMARCO, president of the Dist. 102 Board of Education said, "The school board a few months back adopted the Buffalo Grove ordinance and that is what we are going to stick to when we deal with developers."

Chesterfield officials had gone before the Lake County Plan Commission telling them the two sides had "informally" agreed on a contribution of some $34,000 but no such accord was ever reached, Mrs. DeMarco said.

She said the district needs about $140,000 for its schools to accommodate additional student loads the development would generate and said "we'll stick to our guns," unless Chesterfield revises its plans and lowers the project density.

Village officials also raised objections to the project's 10 units per acre density and said recreation facilities and storm water retention were unsatisfactory.

Armstrong searches for explanation

Independent 'magic word' that brings sweet victory

by JOHN MAES

Opposition to slate politics and high-density housing projects were among the reasons given Wednesday for the decisive defeat of Village Pres. Gary Armstrong's Best Government Party slate in Tuesday's election.

In the upset victory, independent Edward Fabish unseated Armstrong as village president while John Marienthal, Dorothy Berth and Robert Bogart won the three village trustee posts up for election.

Defeated Best Government Party trustee hopefuls James Shirley, Gary Ikens and Ralph Swanson. The only ticket candidate to survive the independent onslaught was Verna Clayton, who breezed unopposed to another term as village clerk.

LOCALLY, it was a rough night for incumbents as it was throughout many Northwest suburbs. "It's just a bad year for the ticket," Fabish said. "It's just the mentality of the voters right now, I think. The ticket smacked of a totally rigged board and if that's not the way it is, it would hit people that way."

Armstrong, ousted from the village presidency with 677 votes to Fabish's 1,361, agreed "It was demonstrated throughout the Northwest suburbs that it was not a good year for the slate," adding that this year, he term independent was a "magic word" to many voters.

He said he "agreed totally" that national and local-level political scandals generated negative attitudes against the incumbent and slate candidate.

"I think the voters told us something," said Ralph Swanson, one of the unsuccessful BGP trustee candidates. "They told us that party politics is not something they want in Buffalo Grove at this point in time."

Swanson said he believes ballots were cast negatively and "anti-party" rather than in favor of independent candidates. Swanson, with 665 votes, finished last in a field of six candidates for trustee.

JAMES SHIRLEY, an incumbent who ran for trustee on the slate said the "people have what they think they want" with the independent sweep but said the shared beliefs of the independents may actually form them into a sort of slate.

"I'll wager that four years from now, somebody will be saying the same thing about this group as they were saying about us," Shirley said.

Like Swanson, Shirley also said most of the votes cast were anti-slate rather than pro-independent. "There were 7,000 registered voters and my experience has shown me that seldom if ever do you hear from the guy who's content. You only hear from the guy who's got an ax to grind."

BUT DESPITE the outcome, Shirley, Swanson and Armstrong all said they probably would not have fared much better had they run as independents. "It's all guess work, I'm not going to condemn the ticket for pulling me down," Swanson said.

"Had I gone it alone, it's hard to say but I'm sure those people who were concerned about a rubber stamp board may well have supported me," said Armstrong. "But there were a number of reasons why they didn't vote for me."

Marienthal and Fabish said other reasons for their victory were that independents addressed themselves more to the issues than did the BGP candidates. "A big issue was density," said Fabish. "It's been my bag for years. The feedback I got was that the village has grown so fast that we didn't have a chance to realize what was going on."

"HEALTH WEEK" at Wheeling High School offers more than 50 health-related courses and workshops. Instructor Donald Heid helps Wheeling student Karin Lindstrom learn how the electrocardiogram works. The week-long project was started by the school's health board to make students more aware of their health.

50 'Health Week' courses at Wheeling High School

Wheeling High School students may not be the healthiest in High School Dist. 214, but after this week, they'll know it.

The school is observing its own "Health Week" this week — an ambitious project featuring 50 courses and workshops aimed at informing students on health and health-related careers.

"We expect about three-fourths of the student body to participate by taking at least one session," said science teacher Joanne Bibergall who along with school nurse Rita Owens coordinated the program. "We expect some students to take as many as 12 sessions."

Students are allowed to miss two of any classes during the week to attend the sessions and also can attend the programs instead of going to study hall.

CERTAIN AREAS of health are foloured each day, including smoking and breathing, drugs and alcohol, mental health, physical fitness, weight control, venereal disease, and vision and hearing.

The guest speakers are all volunteers and offer students a chance to see how electrocardiograms are taken, determine which of their eyes is strongest, find out their blood type or learn how to take blood pressure.

Paramedics from the Wheeling Fire Dept. will be training students all week in cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

Courses also will be offered to help in dealing with diseases of others. Sessions such as how to understand and live with a drug user, family counseling, and how to cope with alcoholism in the family will be offered throughout the week.

off by tailoring the center to its needs, give it identity and integrate the different uses into a main village theme," Haralson said.

He said one of the most critical features of suburban shopping centers is the lack of identity which could be remedied by signs and graphics or unique architecture.

AFTER THE first-phase plans are revealed, the consultants will gather reactions to suggestions by officials and residents and probe for other alternatives.

"We simply want to show what alternatives there are to the direction the town center might go," Haralson said.

Consultants made the plans available to Village Mgr. Daniel Larson several weeks ago and also met with landowners of the 80-acre site north of Lake Cook Road between Buffalo Grove Road and Ill. Rte. 83.

LARSON SAID only five major property owners would be significantly affected by the town center. The five own about 85 per cent of the site.

The owners might be surprised to find their property values enhanced once the center is built, Larson said.

Scouting news

Lane Burgess of Buffalo Grove recently was named the winner of the Scout-O-Rama by manning a booth featuring paper airplanes and kits.

The pack will participate in the annual Cub Scout Pack 39 Pinewood Derby.

Later this month the pack will sponsor a father-son cake-baking contest. After judging the best cake, all cakes will be auctioned to raise funds for scouting activities next year.

Voter rebellion flares—and incumbents topple

A Herald staff report

Village elections in the Northwest suburbs Tuesday appeared to confirm widespread speculation of recent years about a latent spirit of rebellion among voters.

In five of eight suburban towns, insurgent candidates claimed nearly a clean sweep against the officeholders in power: In a sixth, Rolling Meadows, the incumbent mayor and one alderman survived election threats with razor-thin margins and another alderman was unseated.

"You've got an 'anti' vote here," said Mrs. Carolyn Krause, who shared defeat with four other village trustee candidates of the incumbent United Citizens Party in Mount Prospect.

"It was demonstrated throughout the Northwest suburbs that it was not a year for 'the state,'" said ousted Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Gary Armstrong, whose Best Government Party also lost three seats on the village board.

IN WHEELING, four "reform" candidates of the Wheeling Improvement Party swept the village board election in what the incumbents acknowledged was public reaction to zoning and bribery scandals in the village within the past year.

Three incumbent aldermen were deposed from the Des Plaines City Council, while one survived.

In Palatine, independent village Trustee Fred H. Zajonc not only survived a concentrated effort to defeat him by the Palatine Republican organization — which claimed a clean sweep in village elections two years ago — but led the ticket. Two Republican incumbents were successful over independent challengers, however.

There were exceptions to the "anti" vote in Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg. In Schaumburg, the incumbent Schaumburg United Party swept the offices of village president, village clerk, and four seats on the village board. Hoffman Estates elected three candidates of the ruling Republican Party, including one incumbent, over a single independent challenger.

GENERALLY, THE election results conformed to the opinion expressed by

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert, who supported the losing United Citizens Party. "Whatever happened in this campaign, it was the time for the independent — whatever that phrase means," Teichert said.

Poll workers of the United Citizens Party expressed surprise at the number of ballots marked for a straight independent vote. Defeated Trustee O. T. Gustus, a UCP candidate, said he detected the voter attitude toward incumbents when he became aware that Mount Prospect residents had no interest in questioning him about village affairs.

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer said he was not surprised by his narrow margin over challenger William Miseska, his predecessor as mayor. Meyer claimed a victory with 73 votes out of a total of 3,550. "In any election, it's easier to run against an incumbent," said Meyer. One of Meyer's running mates, Ald. John T. Rock, won by only seven votes over challenger Charles W. Zeller.

Republicans who failed to unseat Zajonc in Palatine interpreted his victory to his "watchdog appeal" to the voters in the village with a 6-to-1 GOP majority on the board.

"The people were saying they don't want a rubber stamp board — not that that's what we have," said Village Pres. Wendell Jones. "They want someone on the board who is critical and independent."

Kessell plans to try to lure more industry

by PAT GERLACH

Raymond Kessell, Schaumburg village president-elect, said Wednesday he will continue many of the policies of Robert O. Atcher and make a personal effort to continue attracting commerce and industry to the village.

"We will be doing some reevaluating, such as studying our development guidelines that will remain an ongoing activity," Kessell said. "I will really stress and personally put forth more effort to actively seek commerce and industry for the village."

Kessell, along with five other Schaumburg United Party candidates, swept to victory Tuesday in the largest voter turnout in village history. The 12-year trustee captured 3,143 of the 4,089 votes cast.

KESSELL SAID he believes the transition from Atcher's 10-year administration already has taken place, largely through the efforts of Administrator John Coste, who will assume the $27,450 job of village manager May 1.

"I plan no staff changes," said Kessell, explaining he had received an early Wednesday morning telephone call from Village Atty. Jack J. Siegel. "I assured Jack and all others presently employed by the village that their continued service is a necessity," he said.

During the next two weeks, Kessell said he will be gearing up for the change from trustee to village president by doing "a lot of catching up and study." He will be sworn in May 1.

But Kessell said he and Atcher had not discussed which, if any, role the former president will play in future village government. He said Atcher "alluded" Tuesday to going back into the entertainment as a country and western performer.

HOWEVER, KESSELL doesn't see the opposing Schaumburg Citizens for Planned Progress participating in local government in his administration, though he said the new party "did a good job and displayed conviction" in the campaign.

"SCOPP people would have to really change their thinking to become part of things and I just don't feel they fully understand the workings of the village," he said. SCOPP was formed and campaigned mainly on the issue of opposition to high-density apartment developments.

Kessell said he doubts that the job of collector would be performed by anyone other than incumbent Clerk Sandy Carlesso during her third term of office. By ordinance in Schaumburg, the village clerk also performs the collector's duties and receives a salary of nearly $12,000 for the combined job.

Club to hear Luehbbers

Reinhardt Luehbbers, president of Schaumburg Historical Society, will be the guest speaker at the April 24 meeting of Spring Valley Nature Club.

Luehbbers is a long-time resident of Schaumburg. He will present a slide presentation depicting the history of the village.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. at Meineke Community Center, 220 E. Weathersfield Way. The public may attend.

Major food chains in price war

by KAREN THOMPSON

Grocery prices were on the downswing Wednesday as clerks at food stores restamped cans and wrappers in what is developing as a price fight among major food chains.

Jewel Food Stores and Dominick's Fine Foods have announced cuts of 10 to 25 per cent on name-brand and house-brand canned goods, frozen foods, butter, eggs, margarine, cheese and many non-food items.

Dominick's spokesmen said between 8,000 and 10,000 items will be reduced in price. Jewel plans mark-downs on more than 3,000 of the 8,000 to 12,000 items carried in its stores.

THE TUSSELE for the buck began Monday when Dominick's purchased substantially more than its usual amount of newspaper advertising space to announce the birth of "Total Savings Policy" and the demise of its discount-stamp program.

"Buying groceries has become so complicated and confusing to the shopper — what with coupons, small print, limits, etc. — that we have decided to simplify the whole thing and go back to the basics of offering the lowest everyday prices possible," said Dominick's president, Dominick Di Matteo Jr. He said the company would continue to honor nationally distributed stamps.

Both firms said they expected sales volume increases and improved operational practices to help offset the price reductions and both denied there had been an increase in food inventories recently because of consumer resistance.

IN A SURVEY Wednesday of four representative grocery stores in the Northwest suburbs, prices appeared to be moving downward because of the battle between the chains.

Stockboys were cluttering up the aisles, stamping down costs, some of which will be changing throughout next week. Jewel expected to have most of the mark-downs completed by today. Dominick's will be changing prices until next week. A&P Stores and National spokesmen said they have been steadily reducing prices since the first of the year.

Volunteers sought for 17-mile march

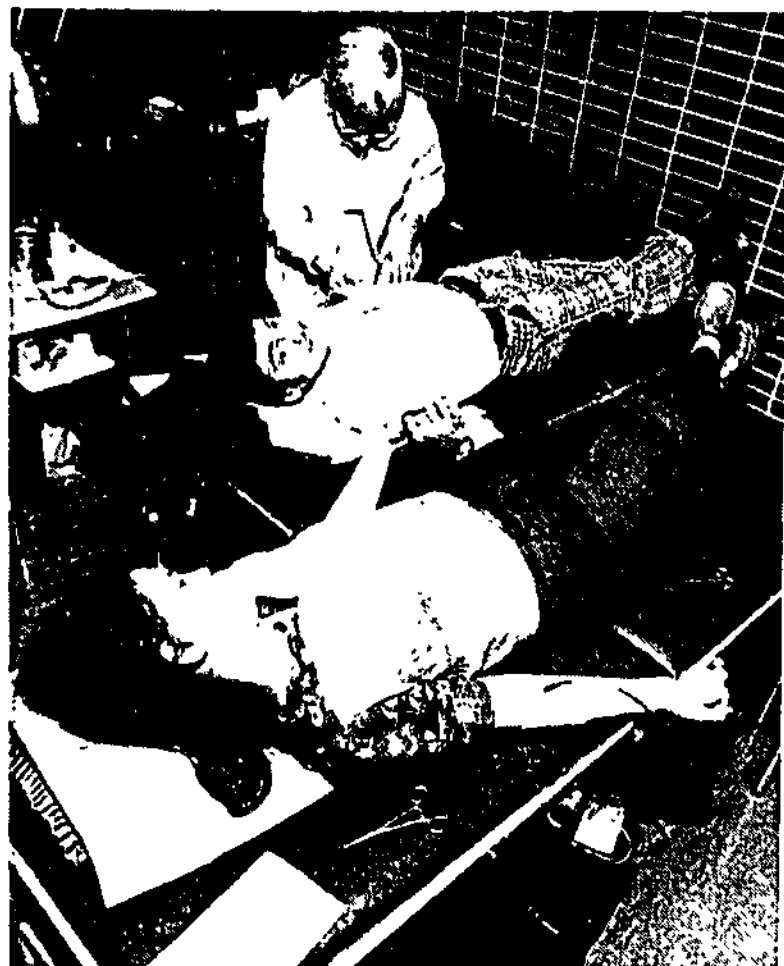

Hoffman Estates' first annual March of Dimes will be held April 27, Frank Alexa, youth commission chairman, said. Alexa called for volunteers for a 17-mile walk he said would begin at 9 a.m. at Conant High School, 700 E. Cougar Tr., and end at Hoffman Estates High School, 1100 W. Higgins Rd.

Persons wishing to march are asked to contact Alexa at 882-9100, to register. Registration deadline is April 15.

'It's like getting pinched'—donating blood, that is

by KATHERINE BOYCE

"I just figured it was a good thing to do," said David Boesch as he sat up and squeezed the big yellow spot on his arm.

David and 54 other Conant High School students decided to do a "good thing" last week when they used their free period at school to donate a pint of blood to the North Suburban Blood Center.

More and more high school students have been getting involved in blood donation projects this year after Illinois law was changed, lowering the minimum age of blood donors from 18 to 17.

At Schaumburg High School, the senior class will donate blood today to the American Red Cross as its senior class gift this year. Students at Palatine High School have been donating to the Palatine Blood Assurance Program.

THE PROGRAM at Conant was arranged by the school's medical careers club and the student council. Students who gave blood were given blood assurance for their families for one year and their donation will be credited to the blood community drives in Hoffman Estates and Elk Grove Village, the two villages in Conant's attendance area.

The student game room at Conant, which usually is a scene of high-speed air hockey and fierce ping-pong matches, was transformed into a donation center. Students wandered into the room, presented their signed donation card and received a blood-pressure check and a test for blood type.

Most of the tables were filled and students waited patiently for their turn to donate. At the end of the line orange juice and cookies stood waiting and the students who already had donated sat on the air hockey table and chatted about the "ordeal" they had just been through.

FOUR YEARS AGO Russ Schadd, 17, was in the hospital for a kidney operation. "I figure I took more than my share then and it's time to pay it back," he said. It didn't hurt at all, said Russ. "It's like getting pinched. I didn't feel a thing," Russ does admit, though, "I had morale help — my old girlfriend was holding my hand."

Ray Cody, 17, said he was glad he was able to give blood this year and wishes all the students at Conant could donate. "I don't see why some 14 or 15-year-olds couldn't give blood" as long as they meet the weight requirement, he said.

STUDENT CHERYL Noah was a volunteer helper instead of a donor Friday because she did not meet the minimum 110-pound weight requirement. Cheryl was in Mexico on a trip with the school band last week and during her stay she lost seven pounds because she didn't like the food.

School nurse Betty Kontney said several students came to her asking for permission to waive some of the requirements so they could give blood. One student turned 17 the day after the blood drive at Conant, she said, and he begged to be admitted. Students who did not meet the requirements will be given the chance to donate in the village blood drive this summer, she said.

Giving blood does not seem to bother students, said Mrs. Kontney. There's "less reaction in these young people than adults. They're less inhibited." Some of the students on adjoining tables even raced each other to see who could give their pint of blood in the least amount of time, she said.

The blood drive at Conant is a first for the school. Mrs. Kontney said she hopes it will become an annual project and more students will donate next year.

Homeowners could face repairs

Village to study buying sewers in subdivisions

Schaumburg's engineering and public works committee has been asked to study the feasibility of the village assuming ownership of privately owned main sewers in condominium apartments and townhouses in Levitt's Sheffield Towne and Manor subdivisions.

The project was proposed by Raymond Kessell, village president-elect, who said potential problems in paying for costly repairs have been brought to his attention by homeowners' association representatives from both areas.

Kessell said association representatives have expressed concern that their groups will not have sufficient money to pay for extensive repairs to sewer and water mains that may eventually be needed.

"These people have certain privileges under the lifestyle they have chosen and are paying for those things in their monthly dues, but everything is increasing in cost and association leaders fear they may not be setting aside enough money to take care of major repairs should they be needed," Kessell said.

Kessell said the residents are paying sewer and water bills to the village and at the same time being taxed by their association for sewer maintenance. "What I'm suggesting is that we look at the idea that they should receive the same benefits as their neighbors in detached home areas, where we own the main lines," he said.

Mental health board still has 2 vacancies

Phyllis Seaver, 340 Hassell Ct., Hoffman Estates, has been reappointed to the Schaumburg Township Mental Health Board after serving three years on the board.

Adrianne Rovin, 1990 Oxford Ln., Hoffman Estates, was appointed to fill a vacancy on the board. Two openings remain.

Board terms for Carol Johnson, 334 Hazel Dr., Schaumburg, and Connie Schoeld, 674 Parkview Ln., Hoffman Estates, have expired, but the two will remain as associate members, said Jerry Warwak, board chairman.

Mrs. Warwak said she will submit a proposal to the township board to get permission for the mental health board to screen federal revenue-sharing requests in connection with health-related concerns.

Currently, groups go before the township revenue-sharing committee to submit their requests. Mrs. Warwak said the proposed system would be less time consuming and that more consideration could be given to funding proposals.

City election poses many questions by NANCY COWGER The aftermath of Rolling Meadows' municipal election Tuesday was littered with questions, ranging from the outcome in at least one ward to the future of city employees and appointees who allegedly participated in campaigns. A recount appears probable in the 3rd Ward aldermanic race, and remotely possible in the mayoral contest. Charles Zeller, independent 3rd Ward aldermanic candidate, appeared to have lost by seven votes in unofficial totals. The returns showed incumbent John T. Rock polling 417 votes to Zeller's 406. Zeller said Wednesday he would not decide whether to ask for a recount until the election canvass is reported by the council Tuesday. He said he will review reports of inaccurate voter registration lists placing voters in wrong precincts before taking steps for a discovery recount. 'It depends on what we uncover,' he said. WILLIAM J. MISESKA, independent mayoral candidate, also was considering a recount, although he said he would consult his campaign workers. 'If they decide it was clean, we'll just drop the question and concede,' he said. Under state law, a candidate can request a recount of up to 25 per cent of precincts, but must pay $10 for each precinct to be retalled. If the partial check indicates possible irregularities which might change the outcome of the election, the candidate may file suit in Circuit Court. But Miseska said he was more concerned about 'whether or not (Mayor Roland J.) Meyer starts purging departments.' Meyer won the mayoral race by 79 votes, according to unofficial returns, and Tuesday night demanded immediate resignations from a plan commissioner and zoning board member. He also pledged to fire city employees if an investigation he has ordered substantiates reports of employees participating in campaigns. MEYER SAID a provision in city ordinances setting personnel policy prohibits employees from electioneering, although officials in the city manager's office could not find the ordinance Wednesday. 'In some cases people will be fired,' Meyer said. 'In other cases I will take whatever action is available to me. If I find the reports are not substantiated, I will take no action.' Under state law only the city's police and fire commis-by KAREN THOMPSON Grocery prices were on the downswing Wednesday as clerks at food stores restamped cans and wrappers in what is developing as a price fight among major food chains. Jewel Food Stores and Dominick's Finer Foods have announced cuts of 10 to 25 per cent on name-brand and house-brand canned goods, frozen foods, butter, eggs, margarine, cheese and many non-food items. Dominick's spokesmen said between 8,000 and 10,000 items will be reduced in price. Jewel plans markdowns on more than 3,000 of the 8,000 to 12,000 items carried in its stores. THE TUSSELE for the buck began Monday when Dominick's purchased substantially more than its usual amount of newspaper advertising space to announce the birth of 'Total Savings Policy' and the demise of its discount-stamp program. 'Buying groceries has become so complicated and confusing to the shopper — what with coupons, small print, limits, etc. — that we have decided to simplify the whole thing and go back to the basics of offering the lowest everyday prices possible,' said Dominick's president, Dominick Di Matteo Jr. He said the company would continue to honor nationally distributed stamps. Both firms said they expected sales volume increases and improved operational practices to help offset the price reductions and both denied there had been an increase in food inventories recently because of consumer resistance. IN A SURVEY Wednesday of four representative grocery stores in the Northwest suburbs, prices appeared to be moving downward because of the battle between the chains. Stockboys were cluttering up the aisles, stamping down costs, some of which will be changing throughout next week. Jewel expected to have most of the markdowns completed by today. Dominick's will be changing prices until next week. A&P Stores and National spokesmen said they have been steadily reducing prices since the first of the year.

Chris Edstrom at Elk Grove High School gets a "read-out" of career interests as guidance counselor William Jackson looks on. The program also is starting at two other district schools.

New 'guidance counselor'—a high school computer

by BOB GALLAS

The futures of many High School Dist. 214 students are "computerized" now, thanks to a new program aimed at helping students choose a career based on their interests and abilities.

The program allows students to "talk" to a computer in addition to a counselor, to get information on careers and colleges to prepare for a career.

The system has been in operation since last January at Elk Grove High School and is in the process of being installed at Hersey and Arlington high schools. Though it's operating only on an experimental basis, Elk Grove High School officials report tremendous interest.

"IN FEBRUARY, 400 students used the computer here," said William Jackson, career guidance consultant at Elk Grove. "In March, 800 students used it. The computer now runs constantly."

Students with a career interest can get information ranging from salary to job requirements. Those who haven't chosen a field start by taking a series of tests to determine their interests and abilities.

The computer also is programmed to list schools that offer courses necessary for a particular career and gives scholarship information Jackson said the computer also can give jobs suitable for physically handicapped students. The information is fed into the computer which then comes out with the suggestions.

"It allows counseling at a much higher level," Jackson said. The students get more data than ever before and when they do come in to see their counselor, the session is more beneficial," he added.

JACKSON estimated that the computer program, if approved by the board of education when evaluated in May, would probably cost about $4,000 a year per school. "That may sound like a lot but it works out to be about $1.25 per student," Jackson said. "It's expensive, but you can better service the students."

The schools are tied by phone line into the computer bank which is now at a

Niles high school. Data is fed into the computer and returned to the school by a teletype terminal which the students operate.

"The kids use computers in many classes and are used to them, so the operation of the computer hasn't been a problem," Jackson said.

Jackson's initial fear that the system, which is available for use by any district student, would go unnoticed, was quickly eased when the rush of students started as soon as the computer was installed and word got around.

"It (the computer) sells itself," he said. "I sure haven't had to advertise."

sion can fire employees in those departments.

Meyer refused to say who would conduct his investigation, but said he expects to receive it Monday.

MEYER TUESDAY night demanded the resignations of Richard Kornatz, zoning board member and Elchard Schar, plan commissioner, but had not received them by Wednesday afternoon.

If he does not receive them before the next council meeting, he will withdraw their appointments, he said. Although the initial appointments required city council ratification, Meyer said the council cannot rule on the withdrawals, unless it attempts to overrule him. With his veto power, seven of the 10 council members would be required to overturn his action, Meyer said.

Meyer said Kornatz and Schar had every right to campaign for Miseska, but he retains the right to withdraw his appointments. They are not covered by the city ordinance because they are not employees, he said, after Kornatz noted the ordinance was not enforced either four or eight years ago. In both those elections, Kornatz said he campaigned for Meyer.

Kornatz said he would not resign unless he believed he was jeopardizing the workings of the zoning board. He said his appointment does not expire until April 30, 1977. Kornatz said he switched from supporting Meyer to working for Miseska because "I thought I would be working for a better man this time. After seeing this (political retribution) I'm more than satisfied I made the right choice."

Schar could not be reached for comment, but Miseska said Schar did not work in his campaign.

MEYER ALSO expressed dissatisfaction Wednesday with the conduct of the election, calling it "the worst-run election" in the eight years since he ran for mayor. It was "total chaos," he said, and he blamed retiring clerk Eileen Kornatz, wife of the zoning board member, for "dumping her responsibilities on the deputy clerk." Mrs. Kornatz "did not see that things were done properly," Meyer said. Mrs. Kornatz could not be reached for comment.

Mrs. Kornatz and Deputy Clerk Elizabeth Houldsworth removed improperly placed voter registration cards from some precincts and transferred them to the appropriate ones. Mrs. Houldsworth agreed there were numerous errors, but said she "didn't have any help" preparing for the election and the errors were inadvertent. The redistricting of the city this winter contributed to problems, she said.

In a confrontation Tuesday night, Meyer told Ald. Stephen J. Eberhard, 3rd, a Miseska backer, he was tired of Eberhard's behavior over the past eight years and that "now the gloves are off. Kornatz and Miseska said, Meyer did not deny making the remark Wednesday, but refused to discuss it further.

City ordered not to interfere in sewage main

The City of Rolling Meadows has been ordered by a Circuit Court judge not to interfere with installation of a sewer main along Rohlfing Road.

City Electrical Inspector Robert Lindquist placed a stop work order Monday on the installation being done by Mole Construction Co., citing the firm for using allegedly unsafe generating equipment.

City Atty. Donald M. Rose said the alleged violations of city codes included use of wiring that is not encased in steel tubing and use of a generator that does not have an oil pressure regulator. Rose said the equipment presented a safety hazard.

Mole sought the injunction Tuesday in a hearing before Circuit Court Judge L. Sheldon Brown, at the Civic Center in Chicago.

Brown granted the temporary restraining order which bars the city from enforcing its stop work order, Rose said. Mole presented testimony at the hearing indicating a stop in construction would present a risk of freezing in equipment already installed, Rose said.

But Rose noted the restraining order carried a requirement that Mole post a $10,000 bond in order to proceed with the work.

Another hearing in the dispute is scheduled for 2 p.m. April 24 before Brown in the Chicago Civic Center.

Sundling reelected school board head

Walter Sundling, president of the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education for 10 years, was reelected president Wednesday night in a 4-to-3 board vote.

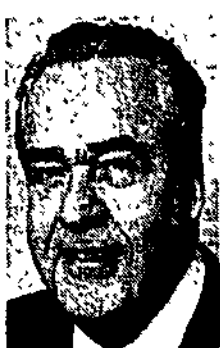

Sundling, 61, of 2073 S. Linden Ln., Palatine, defeated board member Joel Meyer to retain the board presidency.

Walter Kendall, who was elected to the board Saturday, suggested that the position of president be rotated among board members each year and nominated Meyer as president. Meyer received three votes to Sundling's four.

Kendall's main platform in his campaign for election was that the board needs to be more deliberative and open in its procedures, and he promised to bring a new voice to the board.

Kendall said Wednesday his suggestion for rotating the presidency is "an extension" of that platform. The powers of the board president in forming committees and presiding over meetings should be passed on to a new board member each year, he said.

Sundling is serving his eighth term on the Dist. 15 board.

He is employed by John Nuveen Co., a Chicago investment firm.

Can you win an election with 4 votes? Ask Gibbs

by MARILYN McDONALD

They say you can't get something for nothing in politics, but Leland Gibbs, 4248 Wilson Ave., Rolling Meadows, broke the rule Tuesday. He won a six-year term on the Plum Grove Countryside Park District by collecting only four write-in votes.

Plum Grove Countryside district, serving a small western corner of Rolling Meadows, had only three declared candidates for four board vacancies. Gibbs, 51, said he intended to file petitions of candidacy before the deadline of Jan. 27, but time just slipped away, he said.

"When I voted, I saw that there was an opening for a six-year term," Gibbs said. "I knew the board would have to appoint someone to fill the vacancy for a year, so I decided to write in my name." Gibbs said he had also told a couple of friends and neighbors to do the same.

Gibbs' four write-in votes "titled him to the full six-year term, said newly reelected Board Pres. Ernest Martin.

"I HAVE A CALL in to our attorney, but if an individual indicates he is a valid candidate and is interested in the job for which he is a write-in candidate, he is legally entitled to the term," Martin said.

Leland Gibbs

Gibbs is a Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 board member.

Martin polled 220 votes, incumbent Beverly Hansen drew 206 votes, and recently appointed board member Pamela Dahl drew 199 votes. Mrs. Dahl and Mrs. Hansen both protested Gibbs' election in a statement issued Wednesday.

"We cannot ethically comment on Mr. Gibbs' election," they said. "We feel that the residents of the park district were given ample time to seek election to the park board or at least show some interest by attending one or more of the monthly meetings without having to be a write-in candidate at the last minute."

Artemenko heads high school board

Gene Artemenko has been elected president of the High School Dist. 214 Board of Education.

Artemenko, 431 Millers Rd., Des Plaines, has served on the board since 1971, including a term as president in 1973-74.

Artemenko succeeds Jack Costello, who served as president for the 1974-75 term.

In Saturday's school board election, Artemenko led all candidates with 2,474 votes en route to reelection to his second full term in office. He was appointed to fill a one-year vacancy in 1971.

Voter rebellion flares—and incumbents topple

A Herald staff report

Village elections in the Northwest suburbs Tuesday appeared to confirm widespread speculation of recent years about a latent spirit of rebellion among voters.

In five of eight suburban towns, insurgent candidates claimed nearly a clean sweep against the officeholders in power; in a sixth, Rolling Meadows, the incumbent mayor and one alderman survived election threats with razor-thin margins and another alderman was unseated.

"You've got an 'anti' vote here," said Mrs. Carolyn Krause, who shared defeat with four other village trustee candidates of the incumbent United Citizens Party in Mount Prospect.

"It was demonstrated throughout the Northwest suburbs that it was not a year for 'the slate,'" said ousted Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Gary Armstrong, whose Best Government Party also lost three seats on the village board.

IN WHEELING, four "reform" candidates of the Wheeling Improvement Party swept the village board election in what the incumbents acknowledged was public reaction to zoning and bribery scandals in the village within the past year.

Three incumbent aldermen were deposed from the Des Plaines City Council, while one survived.

In Palatine, independent village Trustee Fred H. Zajonc not only survived a concentrated effort to defeat him by the Palatine Republican organization — which claimed a clean sweep in village elections two years ago — but led the ticket. Two Republican incumbents were successful over independent challengers, however.

There were exceptions to the "anti" vote in Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg. In Schaumburg, the incumbent Schaumburg United Party swept the offices of village president, village clerk, and four seats on the village board. Hoffman Estates elected three candidates of the ruling Republican Party, including one incumbent, over a single independent challenger.

GENERALLY, THE election results conformed to the opinion expressed by

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert, who supported the losing United Citizens Party. "Whatever happened in this campaign, it was the time for the independent — whatever that phrase means," Teichert said.

Poll workers of the United Citizens Party expressed surprise at the number of ballots marked for a straight independent vote. Defeated Trustee O. T. Gustus, a UCP candidate, said he detected the voter attitude toward incumbents when he became aware that Mount Prospect residents had no interest in questioning him about village affairs.

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer said he was not surprised by his narrow margin over challenger William Miseska, his predecessor as mayor. Meyer claimed a victory with 79 votes out of a total of 3,556. "In any election, it's easier to run against an incumbent," said Meyer. One of Meyer's running mates, Ald. John T. Rock, won by only seven votes over challenger Charles W. Zeller.

Republicans who failed to unseat Zajonc in Palatine interpreted his victory to his "watchdog appeal" to the voters in the village with a 6-to-1 GOP majority on the board.

"The people were saying they don't want a rubber stamp board — not that that's what we have," said Village Pres. Wendell Jones. "They want someone on the board who is critical and independent."

Dual-issue referendum under study

Palatine residents may be asked this year to approve a tax-increase referendum for flood control or fire department expansion.

The village board has budgeted $4,000 in 1975-76 to cover the cost of a referendum, which would be needed to authorize issuance of bonds for flood-control measures or fire department expansion.

"We've budgeted the expense should the board decide to go that route. There is a good possibility that we could have a referendum this year that could deal with more than one issue," said Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones.

JONES SAID that the $4,000 budgeted for a village referendum would probably cover only the cost of a single referendum, although the board could include questions on flood control, fire department expansion or other issues in the same referendum.

Jones said it is unlikely the village would hold a referendum regarding the possible annexation of subdivisions north of Palatine because residents in those areas could approach the board with petitions for annexation instead.

"If we were to have a referendum on anything, I would think it would be on flood control or fire. We are having studies done in all these areas, and it will depend on when we get the results back from these studies," Jones said.

Jones said there may be alternatives to the referendum. He said minority Trustee Fred Zajonc's strong showing at the polls Tuesday suggested that the village might consider expanding its volunteer-firemen service rather than proposing the complete expansion of the full-time fire department in a referendum. Zajonc supported the expansion of the volunteer-firemen service in his campaign platform.

A FLOOD-CONTROL referendum could pose the question of expanding sewer capacity or separating combined sewer and water system, Jones said.

The village board has ruled out the need to issue tax-anticipation warrants this year.

The warrants were considered by village officials in December if enough funds were not available early in fiscal 1975-76 to cover the village's expenses. However, Village Mgr. Anton Harwig said increased business license fees, sales tax revenue and taxes levied under a new fire district agreement will help generate enough funds.

Trustees also have been given a memo from Harwig listing the projects that have been cut from the village's proposed public works department budget. Harwig's recommended budget cuts include a $300,000 project to replace defective sanitary sewers, $15,720 for tree replacement and $8,300 for sidewalk construction.

The village board is reviewing the proposed $7,072,993 budget for 1975-76 and will review the public works department's proposed budget at 8 p.m. Monday at the Slade Street fire station, 117 W. Slade St.

Grocery prices were on the downswing Wednesday as clerks at food stores restamped cans and wrappers in what is developing as a price fight among major food chains.

Jewel Food Stores and Dominick's Finer Foods have announced cuts of 10 to 25 per cent on name-brand and house-brand canned goods, frozen foods, butter, eggs, margarine, cheese and many non-food items.

Dominick's spokesmen said between 8,000 and 10,000 items will be reduced in price. Jewel plans markdowns on more than 3,000 of the 8,000 to 12,000 items carried in its stores.

THE TUSSELE for the buck began Monday when Dominick's purchased substantially more than its usual amount of newspaper advertising space to announce the birth of "Total Savings Policy" and the demise of its discount-stamp program.

"Buying groceries has become so complicated and confusing to the shopper — what with coupons, small print, limits, etc. — that we have decided to simplify the whole thing and go back to the basics of offering the lowest everyday prices possible," said Dominick's president, Dominick Di Matteo Jr. He said the company would continue to honor nationally distributed stamps.

Both firms said they expected sales volume increases and improved operational practices to help offset the price reductions and both denied there had been an increase in food inventories recently because of consumer resistance.

IN A SURVEY Wednesday of four representative grocery stores in the Northwest suburbs, prices appeared to be moving downward because of the battle between the chains.

Stockboys were cluttering up the aisles, stamping down costs, some of which will be changing throughout next week. Jewel expected to have most of the markdowns completed by today. Dominick's will be changing prices until next week. A&P Stores and National spokesmen said they have been steadily reducing prices since the first of the year.

Advisory board plans beauty projects

The Palatine Advisory Board will begin a series of community beautification projects this summer with the installation of lighting and landscaping at People's Park in the downtown area April 26.

Ralph Deger, chairman of the board's beautification committee, said the work will be paid by local banks, which have funded the park project from the start. The Palatine Jaycees will provide the manpower under the direction of the Palatine Advisory Board. The small park was developed by the Jaycees last year at Brockway and Slade streets.

The board is working to encourage other civic groups and homeowners' associations to participate in the cleanup and landscaping projects planned for the village this summer.

The board has planned a major cleanup of Northwest Highway May 17. The Illinois Dept. of Transportation, which is responsible for the maintenance of Northwest Highway, will donate the use of highway vehicles and equipment for the project. Deger is hoping that area students will participate in the cleanup. THE PALATINE Advisory Board also is trying to interest garden club members and planting enthusiasts to landscape a public site in the village, receiving half of the necessary funding from the Palatine Advisory Board.

Deger said the areas across the street from the Palatine Township Hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd., and the land just north of the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks on Northwest Highway, as possible landscape sites.

A project in late August will include improving areas on each side of the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks at both ends of the village. Deger is hoping to begin another beautification project in late summer that will focus on landscaping a major entranceway into the village at Northwest Highway and Palatine Road, north Hicks Road and south Plum Grove Road.

The Palatine Advisory Board's beautification committee will be making more specific plans for each of the clean up projects as the summer progresses, Deger said.

"THE MAIN THING we are trying to do now is to get civic groups and even individuals interested in helping with these projects and even starting landscaping projects of their own. The whole key to this is community participation," Deger said.

The beautification committee also is attempting to organize a community "beautification supply day" May 3 when top soil, landfill and wood shavings could be made available free by the village and other government agencies to residents for their own home-improvement projects.

Most of the beautification projects probably will be partially subsidized by the Palatine Advisory Board, Deger said. The board has submitted a $1,440 budget to the village board for consideration. The board may also be eligible to use a proposed $5,800 federal revenue-sharing allocation from the village for the beautification projects.

'Mr. Z' and his watchdog image too much for the GOP

by JOANN VAN WYE
A news analysis

Like in David and Goliath, Fred H. Zajonc hit the Palatine Village Republican Party right between the eyes Tuesday and the party still is reeling from the blow.

Zajonc not only held his seat on the Palatine Village Board but was the high vote getter against strong Republican opposition.

Four months ago the Republicans knew they were up against a tough opponent and began a head-on attack on the actions of the "Zajonc-VIP administration" of two years ago, "inconsistencies" in Zajonc's voting record and issues he had supported.

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones and other Republicans thought the campaign strategy had worked and were predicting a repeat of 1973 and sweep of the election for the Republicans. But it was clear with the first returns that Zajonc would lead the field of six candidates for three seats on the village board.

WHAT HAPPENED is still unclear. But a few things were obvious:

- Eight years on the village board and membership in several civic and community organizations had given Zajonc the name recognition he needed.

- After 13 years of residency in the Winston Park subdivision he had the solid support of Palatine's largest block of voters, carrying the subdivision by a 5-to-3 margin.

- Zajonc appealed to a large number of residents who were not awayed by the slick campaign the Republicans conducted.

Still, the Republicans knew all this four months ago and remained confident they could beat Zajonc. And they believed it.

The watchdog appeal of Zajonc is what the Republicans think beat them. Zajonc appealed to the voters to elect him to a third term as an independent so he could be a watchdog for the Republican 6-1 majority on the board.

"The people were saying they don't want a rubber stamp board, not that that's what we have," Jones said. "They want someone on the board who is critical and independent."

"THE WATCHDOG is the only way you can explain it (the returns)," said Trustee Bryan P. Coughlin Jr., who won reelection as a Republican.

Trustee Philip E. Stern, also elected on the GOP ticket, agreed the watchdog concept must have made the difference because Zajonc had not issued a platform until the week before the election and based most of his campaign on personalities, not issues.

"The other message I get is the people are satisfied with the way things are going," Jones said. "They are telling us they don't care what the label is, that they will vote for the people who can perform."

Jones said he does not know if the vote is a repudiation of the Republican label at the local level because Zajonc is a lifelong Republican who was first elected to the board on the Republican ticket in 1967. Four years later he was reelected by the Republicans but ran on the Village Independent Party ticket after two fellow Republican trustees were not slated.

ZAJONC, 60, originally planned to retire from the village board this year but changed his mind when the Republicans began a personal attack on him.

Zajonc was as surprised as anyone with the results. He thought he would be reelected, but did not expect to be the top vote getter.

"I was hoping I would get in so I could stay in there and be a watchdog. However, it's now obvious the people want a careful scrutiny of the board's action," Zajonc said.

Zajonc said general apathy among the voters and the support of several independent Republicans, who refused to cast a straight Republican ticket, probably made the difference.

COUGHLIN AGREED that the apathy killed the GOP chances for a sweep.

The Republican strongholds in the downtown area, Northview, Palanols Park and Orchard Hills subdivisions, were carried by the Republicans but not by a big enough margin to overcome the GOP setbacks in Winston Park subdivision.

Zajonc said his campaign cost him about $700 to $800, with most of it going for the printing of 7,000 pieces of campaign literature. He said he had about 80 workers manning each precinct.

REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN expenditures were not available Wednesday, but Jones estimates $4,000 was spent on extensive mailings, bumper stickers and signs.

Jones said he will have a post-election message for the board Monday. Jones said he contacted Zajonc Tuesday to congratulate him and say the board would listen to the ideas he had brought forth in his campaign and debate them on their merits.

Jones added that Zajonc's election made it obvious that residents were no longer as concerned about taxes and fees as long as the board provides services and gets the job done. Zajonc's proposal to hold more board meetings or committee-of-the-whole meetings also received a favorable response from Jones.

Sundling again school board head

Walter Sundling, president of the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education for 19 years, was reelected president Wednesday night in a 4-to-3 board vote.

Sundling, 61, of 2073 S. Linden Ln., Palatine, defeated board member Joel Meyer to retain the board presidency.

Walter Kendall, who was elected to the board Saturday, suggested that the position of president be rotated among board members each year and nominated Meyer as president. Meyer received three votes to Sundling's four.

Kendall's main platform in his campaign for election was that the board needs to be more deliberative and open in its procedures, and he promised to bring a new voice to the board.

Kendall said Wednesday his suggestion for rotating the presidency is "an extension" of that platform. The powers of the board president in forming committees and presiding over meetings should be passed on to a new board member each year, he said.

Sundling is serving his eighth term on the Dist. 15 board.

He is employed by John Nuveen Co., a Chicago investment firm.

Can you win an election with 4 votes? Ask Gibbs

by MARILYN McDONALD

They say you can't get something for nothing in politics, but Leland Gibbs, 4248 Wilson Ave., Rolling Meadows, broke the rule Tuesday. He won a six-year term on the Plum Grove Countryside Park District by collecting only four write-in votes.

Plum Grove Countryside district, serving a small western corner of Rolling Meadows, had only three declared candidates for four board vacancies. Gibbs, 51, said he intended to file petitions of candidacy before the deadline of Jan. 27, but time just slipped away, he said.

"When I voted, I saw that there was an opening for a six-year term," Gibbs said. "I knew the board would have to appoint someone to fill the vacancy for a year, so I decided to write in my name." Gibbs said he had also told a couple of friends and neighbors to do the same.

Gibbs' four write-in votes entitled him to the full six-year term, said newly reelected Board Pres Ernest Martin.

"I HAVE A CALL in to our attorney, but if an individual indicates he is a valid candidate and is interested in the job for which he is a write-in candidate, he is legally entitled to the term," Martin said.

Gibbs is a Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 board member.

Martin polled 228 votes, incumbent Beverly Hansen drew 206 votes, and recently appointed board member Pamela Dahl drew 199 votes. Mrs. Dahl and Mrs. Hansen both protested Gibbs' election in a statement issued Wednesday.

"We cannot ethically comment on Mr. Gibbs' election," they said. "We feel that the residents of the park district were given ample time to seek election to the park board or at least show some interest by attending one or more of the monthly meetings without having to be a write-in candidate at the last minute."

Voter rebellion flares—and incumbents topple

A Herald staff report

Village elections in the Northwest suburbs Tuesday appeared to confirm widespread speculation of recent years about a latent spirit of rebellion among voters.

In five of eight suburban towns, insurgent candidates claimed nearly a clean sweep against the officeholders in power. In a sixth, Rolling Meadows, the incumbent mayor and one alderman survived election threats with razor-thin margins and another alderman was unseated.

"You've got an 'anti' vote here," said Mrs. Carolyn Krause, who share defeat with four other village trustee candidates of the incumbent United Citizens Party in Mount Prospect.

"It was demonstrated throughout the Northwest suburbs that it was not a year for 'the slate,'" said ousted Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Gary Armstrong, whose Best Government Party also lost three seats on the village board.

IN WHEELING, four "reform" candidates of the Wheeling Improvement Party swept the village board election in what the incumbents acknowledged was public reaction to zoning and bribery scandals in the village within the past year.

Three incumbent aldermen were deposed from the Des Plaines City Council, while one survived.

In Palatine, independent village Trustee Fred H. Zajonc not only survived a concentrated effort to defeat him by the Palatine Republican organization — which claimed a clean sweep in village elections two years ago — but led the ticket. Two Republican incumbents were successful over independent challengers, however.

There were exceptions to the "anti" vote in Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg. In Schaumburg, the incumbent Schaumburg United Party swept the offices of village president, village clerk, and four seats on the village board. Hoffman Estates elected three candidates of the ruling Republican Party, including one incumbent, over a single independent challenger.

GENERALLY, THE election results conformed to the opinion expressed by

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Telchert, who supported the losing United Citizens Party. "Whatever happened in this campaign, it was the time for the independent — whatever that phrase means," Telchert said.

Poll workers of the United Citizens Party expressed surprise at the number of ballots marked for a straight independent vote. Defeated Trustee O. T. Gustus, a UCP candidate, said he detected the voter attitude toward incumbents when he became aware that Mount Prospect residents had no interest in questioning him about village affairs.

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer said he was not surprised by his narrow margin over challenger William Miseska, his predecessor as mayor. Meyer claimed a victory with 79 votes out of a total of 3,550. "In any election, it's easier to run against an incumbent," said Meyer. One of Meyer's running mates, Ald. John T. Rock, won by only seven votes over challenger Charles W. Zeller.

Republicans who failed to unseat Zajonc in Palatine interpreted his victory to his "watchdog appeal" to the voters in the village with a 6-to-1 GOP majority on the board.

"The people were saying they don't want a rubber stamp board — not that that's what we have," said Village Pres. Wendell Jones. "They want someone on the board who is critical and independent."

Library issue led to defeat, Gustus says

by LYNN ASINOF

Several of the incumbent United Citizens Party candidates soundly defeated in Tuesday's Mount Prospect village election attributed their loss to the public-library issue.

"We apparently lost on the issue of the library," said Trustee O. T. Gustus, who lost his bid for election in a sweep by the independent candidates.

The new library, which is scheduled for groundbreaking Saturday, became an issue when the board approved the project without a referendum. The library is being financed with bonds issued through home-rule powers, and thus no public vote was required.

THE INDEPENDENTS took varying stands in opposing the board's approval of the new $3.2 million library. Some argued against the construction of a new library because of present economic conditions while others merely disagreed with the manner in which the library was approved.

Trustee George B. Anderson, also defeated in his bid for reelection, said the library was his only explanation for the landslide which put five independents on the village board. "The only thing that comes to mind is the library issue," he said.

Mayor Robert D. Telchert said the voters signed his board's "report card" with the overwhelmingly negative vote Tuesday. He said, however, he was not sure exactly what the "report card" was on. "Those who were motivated to vote turned in their report card saying they opposed some policies of the village board. It is very difficult to say what those are," he said, noting that some people have mentioned the library while others note the near approval of a 2,350-apartment project on the Rob Roy Golf Course.

WHEN ASKED if the vote would cause him to do any soul searching, Telchert said it would not. "I can't vote any differently," he said. "Whether the other members of the board do or not, that is up to them to determine."

Zoning board chairman Carolyn H. Krause, also defeated in Tuesday's sweep, said she was unsure exactly what caused the "anti-vote."

"I really have a problem putting my finger on one thing," Mrs. Krause said. "But it's an indication that there is some problem out there."

Several of the independents said the problem is the present board's unresponsiveness, and said the library issue was just an illustration of that attitude.

"All those things, Rob Roy and the library, were just symptoms of the lack of responsiveness in our government," said Edwin B. Rhea Jr., who was elected to a two-year board term. "It had been run as a closed little society. The people have indicated they want some voice in their government and they didn't feel they had it."

THEODORE J. Wattenberg, elected to a four-year term, said the election showed "the necessity for public officials to pay close attention to the wishes of the Interested parents also are urged to attend the meeting and may participate in a parent-boosters program to be formed.

The Explorers is directed by James Bronson, Wheeling.

Major food chains in price war

by KAREN THOMPSON

Grocery prices were on the downswing Wednesday as clerks at food stores restocked cans and wrappers in what is developing as a price fight among major food chains.

Jewel Food Stores and Dominick's Finer Foods have announced cuts of 10 to 28 per cent on name-brand and house-brand canned goods, frozen foods, butter, eggs, margarine, cheese and many non-food items.

Dominick's spokesmen said between 8,000 and 10,000 items will be reduced in price. Jewel plans mark-downs on more than 3,000 of the 8,000 to 12,000 items carried in its stores.

THE TUSSELE for the buck began Monday when Dominick's purchased substantially more than its usual amount of newspaper advertising space to announce the birth of "Total Savings Policy" and the demise of its discount-stamp program.

"Buying groceries has become so complicated and confusing to the shopper — what with coupons, small print, limits, etc. — that we have decided to simplify the whole thing and go back to the basics of offering the lowest everyday prices possible," said Dominick's president, Dominick Di Matteo Jr. He said the company would continue to honor nationally distributed stamps.

Both firms said they expected sales volume increases and improved operational practices to help offset the price reductions and both denied there had been an increase in food inventories recently because of consumer resistance.

IN A SURVEY Wednesday of four representative grocery stores in the Northwest suburbs, prices appeared to be moving downward because of the battle between the chains.

Stockboys were cluttering up the aisles, stamping down costs, some of which will be changing throughout next week. Jewel expected to have most of the mark-downs completed by today. Dominick's will be changing prices until next week. A&P Stores and National spokesmen said they have been steadily reducing prices since the first of the year.

Financial woes 'shock' teachers

by LINDA PUNCH

River Trails Dist. 26 teachers are "shocked and dismayed at the rather sudden disclosure of financial difficulties" in the district, said Nancy Miller, president of the teachers' union.

"Prior to two weeks ago there was no indication a problem of such magnitude existed. In light of the number of increased programs and staff in the last few years, it is obvious there has been a lack of foresight and planning," she said Wednesday.

The school board earlier this month said the district will have to reduce teaching staff and cut back some educational programs to avoid a deficit budget in 1975-76. The administration has presented several staffing plans which would save the district money by increasing class sizes, reducing the staff by up to 15 teachers and eliminating several programs.

MISS MILLER SAID teachers are concerned that the education of children will be harmed by the changes.

"We are concerned about the current trend toward displacing certified teachers with aides. This tends to dilute quality education and we oppose this unequivocally," she said.

Teachers also are concerned about the

Voter certification asked

A River Trails Dist. 26 resident has asked the board of education to verify that all voters in Saturday's school board election were registered.

Mary Stenbridge said she asked for verification because the election "was so close. I think everybody would rest more comfortably if we know that everyone who voted was a registered voter."

Edward Pugliese won the election by a two-vote margin over Peggy Golden. Pugliese received 310 votes and Mrs. Golden, 308. Mrs. Golden said she would not ask for a recount.

Mrs. Stenbridge said that if "the election is that close, let's check the results. Then we can put these rumors to rest."

"There may have been some confusion among voters. Some may have in good faith thought they could vote without being registered," she said.

Mrs. Stenbridge wrote a letter to the board asking for verified results. "If the school board doesn't want to do it, then I'll do it. All I need is a copy of the affidavits," she said.

Mrs. Golden said she has no comment on Mrs. Stenbridge's request.

"I myself am not pursuing it," she said.

The board referred the letter to Supt. John Fridlund. Fridlund Wednesday refused to comment on Mrs. Stenbridge's letter.

Michael Sheyker

Sheyker retains top spot on school board

Michael Sheyker was reelected president of the River Trails Dist. 26 Board of Education.

A member of the board since 1972, Sheyker has served as board president for a year. The president of Metropolitan Keypunch Service, Inc., he has a bachelor's degree in accounting.

Leora Rosen, a board member since 1971, was elected secretary.

A HECTIC FIRST DAY does not stop Marie Bowler and Gwendolyn Grigsby from enjoying their new duties as telephone receptionists at Mount Prospect Village Hall. Both were hired under Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley's new policy of hiring senior citizens for part-time village jobs wherever possible.

THE TEACHERS' association plans to contact the board and "make our feelings known," Miss Miller said.

"There's no way to avoid a number of the cuts but we want to have as few as possible," she said. Fifteen first-year teachers — about 9 per cent of the teaching staff — have been notified they may not be rehired next fall.

Residents also questioned the effects of the proposed staffing plans at Tuesday night's board meeting. Members of the audience said they feared proposed program cutbacks could lower the quality of education in the district.

Several parents said they opposed the possible elimination of the junior high CORE program — a teaching method where a group of students share the same teachers — and the French program. Three Hersey High School teachers sent a letter to the board asking it to save "one of the best junior high foreign language programs" in the district.

Supt. John Fridlund Tuesday said the proposed staffing plans "are not to be considered the last word. If there's an increase in enrollment or any educational concern, we could ask for additional personnel."

citizens." He said the library was probably the biggest issue along with the handling of the Rob Roy project.

Most of the United Citizens candidates said they were stunned by their overwhelming defeat. They said they had no indication of the mood of the voters.

Gustus, however, said he got an inkling of the problem a few days before the election. "I got a sneaking feeling a few days ago," he said. "There were too many people who did not ask me questions when I was out walking."

Skobel subject of new book

Mount Prospect's Sammy Skobel is to be the subject of a book, "Blind Triumph," being written by Frank W. Martin of Time-Life Publications. Skobel is an innovator of skiing as a sport for the blind and is a former world champion in roller skating.

Skobel recently was honored by the U. S. Dept. of the Interior, Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, at a Lions Club dinner meeting. A plaque recognizing his national outdoor, recreation achievements and a personal letter from Sec. of the Interior Rogers C. B. Morton were presented to Skobel by Tom Gilbert of the U. S. Dept. of Recreation.

Sammy praised the Lions Club for backing him in inaugurating the American Blind Skiing Foundation, citing club secretary Louie Velasco, radio broadcaster Mark Edwards and attorney Robert Meersman for individual help.

The ski program, started in Mount Prospect in 1972, extends to Wisconsin and Michigan and will go nationwide.

Skobel operates Sammy Skobel's Hot Dogs Plus, Inc., 34 S. Main St., a short-order restaurant.

THERE WILL BE a Memorial Day parade in Mount Prospect this year.

In 1974, because of confusion in state and national dates for the Memorial Day observance, there was no parade.

The parade will be at 2 p.m. May 25. Formation of marching units will begin at 1:30 p.m. The parade route will be the same as in past years — from Duane and School streets west to Emerson Street, then south to Lions Park.

Post 137 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will be in charge of the parade and ceremonial service at Lions Park. Commander Russell E. Heidrich said plans are going ahead for the observance "to honor our deceased comrades who have given their lives in service to our country."

Village, U.S. in argument about post office building

The Village of Mount Prospect is taking the U.S. Postal Service to court to find out who has jurisdiction over the 3.12-acre site for the new Mount Prospect Post Office.

The village has filed a complaint against the postal service's contractor for starting construction at the northeast corner of Central and Elmhurst Avenue without having obtained a village building permit. The matter is scheduled for a hearing May 7 in Circuit Court.

"We had a meeting with all of the people involved this morning," Buell B. Dutton, village building director said Wednesday. "We're waiting for the courts to decide whether they have to have a permit."

DUTTON SAID the postal service representatives have said they will not apply for permits, will not permit inspections and will meet those village codes that don't cause "undue harm."

Gene Kruczek, project engineer, said the postal service has a nationwide policy of constructing buildings on its own land without filing for local permits.

"The postal policy has been that they don't have to take out a building permit for work that is done on the federal property," Kruczek said. He said the policy would be different for a building leased by the postal service.

Kruczek said the postal service will take out permits for water and sewer connections because that is not solely on federal property. He said the contractor will comply with the postal service's construction guidelines, although it will try to meet village standards wherever possible.

"The thing that is really in contention is whether the postal service has to take out a building permit to do work on their own property," Kruczek said.

DUTTON SAID one of the problems revolves around the village requirement that buildings more than 10,000 square feet have a sprinkler system. Kruczek said such a system is unacceptable to the postal service because "water can end up doing as much damage as fire can in a postal work room."

The village has not stopped work at the post office, Dutton said. He said the village has simply refused to approve the pouring of footings without a permit and filed action in court.

The new post office, a one-story masonry building with mezzanine, is scheduled for completion in March 1976. The building is estimated to cost $1.3 million and will replace the present leased office at 202 E. Evergreen Ave.

Arlington Heights parks project

The Arlington Heights Park District ran into opposition Wednesday night from about 40 residents whose homes border the park district's proposed historical Prairie Farm project.

"All we are going to get from this project is a lot more water than we already have, the smell of cow manure, the sound of roosters crowing and the sound of barn dances going on at night right across the street from our homes," said Robert Klein, 2116 Jody Ct., Mount Prospect.

Klein and several other residents of Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Elk Grove Township who live near the proposed farm, told the park board they fear the farm will worsen traffic and flooding in the area, as well as disrupt the neighborhood by storing livestock.

"No one ever asked us, who have lived in the area for years, what the flooding problems are and where the water is coming from," Klein said. "Those waters from the heavy rains come from the unincorporated areas and run down into our area. When you put buildings in the ground, that will keep more water from seeping into that park ground like it has been doing. We'll just have more water."

THE PARK DISTRICT is considering setting up a replica of a late 1800s family farm at Prairie Park, northeast of Arlington Heights and Golf roads, as a Bicentennial project.

Park officials said the farm would benefit the community as an "educational project," and assured nearby homeowners that a densely landscaped border would separate the farm from their homes.

The homeowners, however, for the most part, were not buying.

"I don't like the idea of this park at all," said Fred Dudek, 2100 Lawrence Ln., Mount Prospect. "I'd rather see a tennis court and baseball diamond there that we could use all the time instead of a farm we would visit only once. The purpose of a park is for local use, not to be a showplace for everyone in the Chicago area."

ONE RESIDENT, Geri Schrager, 211 E. Council Tr., Elk Grove Township, spoke in favor of the farm. "It's better than getting a shopping center or high rise in this area," she said.

Park officials said storm water runoff can be controlled and the number of animals kept at the farm "would be minimal," to represent the kinds of animals on 1800s farms.

"The drainage can be internally controlled by changing the natural contour of the land," said Richard Macias, a landscape architect advising the park board. "The land will naturally flow into a retention basin at the northeast end of the farm site and never touch the residents' nearby homes."

PARK OFFICIALS also told residents the park can afford to develop the farm without increasing its museum tax, which they said generates $50,000 a year.

Park Comr. Arthur Golberg, who sided with the residents against the farm, said however, he does not believe the project will "get off the ground" because of insufficient funds.

National Library Week to be a 'groundbreaking' affair

The highlight of this year's National Library Week observance in Mount Prospect will be the groundbreaking ceremony at 11 a.m. Saturday for the new public library building.

Site of the new library is the southwest corner of Emerson Street and Central Road, formerly the Central School site.

During National Library Week, which began Sunday, several special features are planned at the current library, 14 E. Busse Ave.

The main exhibit case will feature a history of the library and a copy of the plans for the new building. Elsewhere in the library, exhibits made by the library staff will include vocational books, reference books, travel books, films, a terrarium, a safety exhibit, a Williamsburg walk, and how to create a dry flower arrangement.

There also will be Bicentennial book marks and a bulletin board depicting Chicago as a historical and cultural city.

The library's children's department will have special storybook sessions:

10:30 a.m. Friday and 1:30 p.m. today for preschool and kindergarten children. The 10:30 a.m. Saturday session will be for children in kindergarten through second grade.

Registration is not required for any of the storybook sessions, however, nursery school teachers wishing to bring a class are asked to call and make a reservation.

Voter rebellion flares—and incumbents topple

A Herald staff report
Village elections in the Northwest suburbs Tuesday appeared to confirm widespread speculation of recent years about a latent spirit of rebellion among voters. In five of eight suburban towns, insurgent candidates claimed nearly a clean sweep against the officeholders in power; in a sixth, Rolling Meadows, the incumbent mayor and one alderman survived election threats with razor-thin margins and another alderman was unseated.

"You've got an 'anti' vote here," said Mrs. Carolyn Krause, who share defeat with four other village trustee candidates of the incumbent United Citizens Party in Mount Prospect.

"It was demonstrated throughout the Northwest suburbs that it was not a year for 'the state,'" said ousted Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Gary Armstrong, whose Best Government Party also lost three seats on the village board.

IN WHEELING, four "reform" candidates of the Wheeling Improvement Party swept the village board election in what the incumbents acknowledged was public reaction to zoning and bribery scandals in the village within the past year.

Three incumbent aldermen were deposed from the Des Plaines City Council, while one survived.

In Palatine, independent village Trustee Fred H. Zajonc not only survived a concentrated effort to defeat him by the Palatine Republican organization — which claimed a clean sweep in village elections two years ago — but led the ticket. Two Republican incumbents were successful over independent challengers, however.

There were exceptions to the "anti" vote in Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg. In Schaumburg, the incumbent Schaumburg United Party swept the offices of village president, village clerk, and four seats on the village board. Hoffman Estates elected three candidates of the ruling Republican Party, including one incumbent, over a single independent challenger.

GENERALLY, THE election results conformed to the opinion expressed by

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert, who supported the losing United Citizens Party. "Whatever happened in this campaign, it was the time for the independent — whatever that phrase means," Teichert said.

Poll workers of the United Citizens Party expressed surprise at the number of ballots marked for a straight independent vote. Defeated Trustee O. T. Gustus, a UCP candidate, said he detected the voter attitude toward incumbents when he became aware that Mount Prospect residents had no interest in questioning him about village affairs.

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer said he was not surprised by his narrow margin over challenger William Miseska, his predecessor as mayor. Meyer claimed a victory with 79 votes out of a total of 3,556. "In any election, it's easier to run against an incumbent," said Meyer. One of Meyer's running mates, Ald. John T. Rock, won by only seven votes over challenger Charles W. Zeller.

Republicans who failed to unseat Zajonc in Palatine interpreted his victory to his "watchdog appeal" to the voters in the village with a 6-to-1 GOP majority on the board.

"The people were saying they don't want a rubber stamp board — not that that's what we have," said Village Pres. Wendell Jones. "They want someone on the board who is critical and independent."

Major food chains in price war

by KAREN THOMPSON

Grocery prices were on the downswing Wednesday as clerks at food stores restamped cans and wrappers in what is developing as a price fight among major food chains.

Jewel Food Stores and Dominick's Fine Foods have announced cuts of 10 to 28 per cent on name-brand and house-brand canned goods, frozen foods, butter, eggs, margarine, cheese and many non-food items.

Dominick's spokesmen said between 8,000 and 10,000 items will be reduced in price. Jewel plans mark-downs on more than 3,000 of the 8,000 to 12,000 items carried in its stores.

THE TUSSELE for the buck began Monday when Dominick's purchased substantially more than its usual amount of newspaper advertising space to announce the birth of "Total Savings Policy" and the demise of its discount-stamp program.

"Buying groceries has become so complicated and confusing to the shopper — what with coupons, small print, limits, etc. — that we have decided to simplify the whole thing and go back to the basics of offering the lowest everyday prices possible," said Dominick's president, Dominick Di Matteo Jr. He said the company would continue to honor nationally distributed stamps.

Both firms said they expected sales volume increases and improved operational practices to help offset the price reductions and both denied there had been an increase in food inventories recently because of consumer resistance.

IN A SURVEY Wednesday of four representative grocery stores in the Northwest suburbs, prices appeared to be moving downward because of the battle between the chains.

Stockboys were cluttering up the aisles, stamping down costs, some of which will be changing throughout next week. Jewel expected to have most of the mark-downs completed by today. Dominick's will be changing prices until next week. A&P Stores and National spokesmen said they have been steadily reducing prices since the first of the year.

A 'happy face' at 81

The 'old rope trick' delights young David Racine.

Ever wonder where clowns come from?

Just ask Wally Matz.

The 81-year-old Matz, former star of the 1950s television program "Super Circus," came to Arlington Heights and Dryden School Wednesday looking like any businessman.

But he left a clown, to the delight of some 400 youngsters at the school.

A Chicago resident, Matz travels around the area with his show, a combination of games, magic tricks and an explanation-demonstration of just how clowns are made.

Step by step, to the wide-eyed wonderment of the youngsters, he applies his makeup, explaining as he goes just how he makes each feature.

As the tension and excitement builds in the youthful audience, Matz slowly assumes character, adding a wig, funny hat, vest and baggy pants.

"Don't these pants look like your mom's pajamas?" asks Matz.

"Naw, my mom's skinny," a youngster answers.

A call for volunteers produces a sea of eager hands. But only two are allowed to help Matz in tricks ranging from the traditional rope knot trick to making animals out of balloons.

With 10 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren, Matz is continuing to delight the young with his antics. Several more performances of the Chicago-based clown are scheduled in the area.

12 homes may be exempt from lighting assessment

Arlington Heights homeowners who live on Northwest Highway between Highland Avenue and Wilke Road may be exempted from a $174,000 special assessment street-lighting project if it is legally possible to do so.

Assessments for the street lights would be levied only against commercial and multi-family property along the 1½-mile stretch of the highway. The cost of lights in the two residential blocks would be paid from the village's motor fuel tax fund.

That is the plan of the village board's finance committee which will ask Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel for advice on how legally to exempt the homeowners who unsuccessfully tried to block passage of the special-assessment ordinance by the village board last October.

TRUSTEE Frank Palmatier got the special assessment sent to the finance committee for reconsideration after controversy over a proposal to install sodium-vapor lights in the village's Scarsdale subdivision.

The new lighting system for Scarsdale, estimated to cost about half a million dollars, will be financed with motor fuel tax funds, and Palmatier said it was unfair to assess homeowners on Northwest Highway for lights Scarsdale residents will be receiving without special assessment.

"I think we ought to ask the board of local improvements to redo the (Northwest Highway) special assessment, leaving out the two residential, single-family blocks," Palmatier said Tuesday. "This is the inequitable part of this. I don't think there is any inequity in assessing commercial property, which quite clearly stands to benefit from these lights."

Street-lighting standards for the village, including whether orange-colored sodium-vapor lights will be used on Northwest Highway, is pending before the village's plan commission.

Palmatier said he would prefer to see the more familiar mercury-vapor street lights installed on the western half of Northwest Highway. These lights would match the existing lights along the highway from Highland Avenue to the eastern village limit.

GERI SCHRAGER, left, of 211 E. Council Tr., Elk Grove township, and Phyllis Truppa, 121 E. Council Tr., listen to a presentation Wednesday night by planners of the Arlington Heights Park District's proposed Prairie Farm and Garden Park. The two were nearly the only residents present from the Forest View Homeowners Assn. to support the park plans. Other residents, whose homes border the farm site, believe the project will generate additional flooding and heavy traffic.

Panel urges OK for trucks to use Scarsdale streets

Trucks would be permitted to drive on Rockwell, Park and Fairview streets in the Scarsdale subdivision of Arlington Heights under a proposal endorsed Wednesday night by the village's public health and safety committee.

The proposed change, however, won't relieve the problems of residents of Davis Street, who say heavy truck traffic is disturbing their neighborhood and causing a safety hazard.

The committee in effect retained a 10,000-pound load limit on Davis Street between Bristol Lane and Arthur Avenue until the proposed McKinley Street grade crossing to Northwest Highway is completed.

IN ADDITION, the committee will recommend to the village board that an ordinance essentially banning trucks from Rockwell, Park and Fairview be repealed.

Nearly 20 Scarsdale residents appeared at the committee meeting to protest the heavy truck traffic on Davis Street since a recent widening project was completed. The trucks use the street to get to the village's central business district from the busy industrial area near Arthur Avenue and Northwest Highway. Before Davis Street was widened, the trucks either took Arthur Avenue south to Central Road or cut through the narrow residential streets in Scarsdale.

Davis Street residents complained that heavy truck traffic is damaging their neighborhood and posing a safety hazard.

"I feel the traffic is terrible, with all those Edison Co. trucks speeding down the street. We have cracks in our house that we never had before," said one woman.

LOIS NELSON, 701 E. Davis St., lashed out at the committee members, charging that the entire question was one of "trust in our village."

"They took down 50 per cent of my trees for a sewer project and then the other 50 per cent for the street widening. When this whole widening project was brought up, I came and brought up the speed and load limit questions. The village said it had no intentions of making Davis Street into a major thoroughfare," Mrs. Nelson said.

Trustee Alice Harms, committee chairman, noted that long-time Davis Street residents were suffering from a kind of "future shock." "After all, when they moved in, it was a quiet little street, cut off, where their children could play in the street all day," Mrs. Harms said. In recent years, the residents have seen a sewer project and a street widening project destroy many trees, and the installation of sodium vapor lights which other subdivision residents were able to fight.
